It is testimony like the following that has placed Doan's Kid-Kidney Pills so far above competitors. When people right here at home raise their voice in praise there is no room left for doubt. Read the public statement of a Salisbury citizen:

E. B Bland, 812 North Clay street, Salisbury, North Carolina,

"I have used Doan's Kidney Pills and they have been taken in banks, the over-wintered weevils are my family. The results have been often sufficiently numerous to puncsatisfactory. I had backache and ture the squares as fast as they form my kidneys. My kidneys were ir regular in action. I used Doan's tered weevils to multiply before the Kidney Pills, procured at J. Insect Moves About but Little Except in the Fall.

Pest May Be Greatly Reduced by Picking Them Off the Little Cotton Until Squares Begin to Form in Spring.

(By G. H. ALFORD, Special Agent of the Farmers' Co-operative Demonst Work, Jackson, Miss.) Farmers who destroy the squares, bolls and foliage—the sole food supply of the weevil-on or before October 20 and add strength to this almost knockout blow by plowing under all the weevils in the cracks and holes in the ground and in the grass and trash on the ground and by destroying practically all the weevils hibernating along the turn-rows, fences, hedges, and in general the vicinity of the fields and follow up the destruction by picking the weevils off the little cotton until the squares begin to form and by picking up the punctured squares for at least one month after the squares begin to form, will certainly reduce the number of boll weevils to the minimum.

When the over-wintered weevils emerge from winter quarters in the spring and reach the little cotton there is little further movement until the general dispersion season in August, September and October. The over-wintered weevils go from winter quarters to the nearest cotton field and remain there until the migratory period in the fall. The fact that the weevil moves about but little except in the fall makes it possible for an individual farmer to obtain the best result from his own efforts in fighting the pest. There is little danger of the arrival of weevils from fields where they have not been picked off the little cotton until in August when the cotton crop is normally set. The danger of the movement of weevils from farm to farm before August is Club were found guilty and not important enough to warrant any trash, weeds and other vegetable matter that serves as winter quarters for the weevils and by destroying practically all the weevils hibernating along the fence rows, hedges and ditch it is not necessary for the over-winsquares are punctured as fast as they form on the cotton. When the overwintered weevils are sufficiently nu-

Dr. W. D. Hunter of the bureau of entomology estimates the possible progeny of a single pair of weevils during a season beginning on June 20 and extending to November 4 at 12,755,100. Nature has provided a number of agencies to prevent such excessive multiplication, however, the picking of a pair of weevils off the little cotton means millions less later on. Every pair of weevils picked off the little cotton and destroyed reduces the number of puncture squares and bolls by

Before squares form on the cotton, emerged feed upon the opening leaves or bud of the little cotton. Early in the morning it is an easy matter to find the weevils in the buds of the little cotton. It is not at all difficult to pick them off the buds of the little cotton and destroy them.

The only reason why we cannot eradicate the weevil by thoroughly picking them off the little cotton is that the majority of the over-wintered weevils do not emerge until after the squares begin to form on the cotton. As soon as squares form on the cotton the weevil gets on the inside of the bracts and feeds only by inserting its beak deeply into the squares. After the squares begin to form on the cotton it is hardly practicable to pick the

The over-wintered weevils cannot in the adult stage and breeds only in squares and bolls. The most conspicuous indication of the presence of the boll weevil is the flaring of the squares. When the weevil punctures One hundred and twenty pounds a square it turns yellow and the a few days.

The over-wintered weevils live only a few weeks after they emerge from winter quarters in the spring. If the little cotton is thoroughly picked two or three times just a few days before the squares begin to form on the cotton and every punctured square destroyed for at least one month after of the over-wintered weevils will be a. m. terminated in one year. While it is not possible to destroy every punctured square and boll, we can by careful and painstaking work get practi-

while the cotton is small. The beneficial results obtained from picking the punctured squares depends mainly upon the seasons. When the punctured squares fall to dry ground in July and August, and are subjected to the unobstructed rays of the hot sun, practically all of the larwae and pupae are killed. Where the soil is dry and the cotton small practically all of the "grubs" in the punctured squares are killed during the hot, fair weather, especially if there is a dust mulch on the ground. If the soil is moist, the rows narrow, the cotton rank and shades the ground, or if it is cloudy practically all of the grubs in the punctured squares will come to maturity unless the squares are picked and destroyed. The more moisture in the ground, the more rankly the cotton grows and the more the ground is shaded, the greater the necessity for gathering and destroying the punctured squares. Under any and all conditions it is certainly advisable to collect all the punctured squares for at least one month after the first squares form on the cotton. The soil is cool at this season of the year and the sun is seldom very hot It is not advisable to burn the puno tured squares. The punctured squares should be placed in wire cages for the reason that many weevil larvae in the infested squares harbor parasites. These parasites prey upon the boll weevil. There are about 25 species of parasites which by means of their ovipositors place eggs on the larvae and pupae of the weevil within the square The young of the parasites feeds upon the immature boll weevil which it kills. The bureau of entomology records one instance in a field near Robson, La., where the parasites killed 7? per cent. of the weevils. About the same time 61 per cent, of the weevils in a field near Victoria, Texas, were killed by parasites. The meshes of the wire cage to pu the punctured squares in should be at least 16 to the inch. The parasites are very small and can easily escape while the weevils will soon die fer lack of food. A tinner will make the cages at a small cost.

The destruction of myriads of wee vils can be accomplished during the growing season by working in co-oper ation with the natural agencies that destroy the weevil. The temperature at the surface of the ground is generally about 40 per cent. higher than at two or three feet above the surface It is not surprising that the cotton Alison Overcash, Cleveland quares that fall on the hot grou July and August and are not shaded are parched at once and the immature weevils destroyed. If the immature weevils are not killed at once by the heat, they will starve for lack of food because of the hardening of the square—the weevils' food.

The use of brush on cultivators to brush or agitate the plants when cul tivating the crop will assist to some extent in destroying the weevil. The punctured squares will be knocked to the hot ground sooner than they Abuer C. Cartner, Scotch would fall and at the same time a few adult weevils will be knocked to the of Boll Weevil and Flaring of the hot ground. When an adult weevil is Bracts. Dr. W. D. In all the experiments per formed in the field by the bureau of entomology very heavy applications throughout the season from chopping to picking have failed to show any ad vantage in the use of poison.

THE BEAUTIFUL

He who has erected a beautiful house has blessed a whole community in building it. No man wants to build an ugly house thereafter, but strives to build a handsomer. Little by little it lifts the people from the low grade of insensibility to beauty, to appreciating it and following it. I think every man who has money should see to it that the town in which he lives is steadily growing more and more beautiful. -Henry Ward Beecher.
