Entered as second-class matter Jan.
19th, 1905, at the post office at Salisbury, N. C., under the act of Congress of March 3rd, 1879.

Salisbury, April 1st, 1914.

The ground hog has had his day.

You may take forty papers and not THE WATCHMAN and would still be lacking, but you can take THE WATCHMAN and not the forty and be fully satisfied.

When you pay a dollar to a stranger for a ten-cent pen, a pair five-cent spectacles, or a ten cent knife and a paper, you are being worked for a sucker.

Prof. H. B. Varnar, of Luxing-ton, N. C., has decided not to run for congress in his district. The Professor has acted very wisely.
THE WATCHMAN had nothing agi-our neighbor and therefore did not flatter him because of his ambition, thereby encouraging him to attempt too much. The Professor however, generally makes a good showing when he goes after something and would no doubt average up well should he occupy a seat in congress. There are not many newspaper men who would not.

BEYOND LIMIT OF PATIENCE

Small Girl Finally Rose in a Revolt Over the Much Disliked Study of German.

German lessons were the bane of little Elizabeth's existence. But her aunt, who had just finished her education in Germany and was acting as her tutor, was determined her favorite niece should master the German language in her kindergarten days. A well behaved little girl was Elizabeth as a rule, but when occasional outbursts of temper called for punishment one method used, and one that to the child's peculiar reasoning seemed characteristic of cruelty, was to compel her to go to her room and say her prayers in German. That punishment always called forth tears and protests.

One afternoon while she was poring over a child's book in the dustiest German and failing to understand the little story she was reading Uncle Jim was surprised to see the usually quiet Elizabeth rip the leaves from the book, tear them into strips and throw them angrily aside as she burst into tears.
"I just couldn't help it," sobbed Elizabeth; "that German is so hard I couldn't make anything out of it. I suppose Aunt Mandy Hollis will be mad at through like I am this very minute.
Beckon. I'll have to say those German prayers twice this time, 'n' I might as well do it now as any time."

Rushing to her mother's room little Elizabeth knelt solemnly at the side of the lounge and between sobs twice repeated the German prayers. Rising and wiping away her tears, she said to her astonished mother, who had seen nothing of the outbreak of temper:
"There, mamma, dear, I've been very naughty, and I wish you'd tell Aunt Mandy Hollis when she comes home that I took my punishment twice with her d-d old German prayers."—New York Herald.

Tango Not New.
The tango, according to Le Cri de Paris, is no new dance in France. It is derived from the "degognade" or "degognade" of Auvergne. Madame de Severgne, who saw it danced at Vichy in 1878, declared that she was infested with it, and that if it were launched at Versailles, all the court would go crazy over it. It is surmised that the old French dance was taken by the gipsies (who often ran down Auvergne) over the Pyrenees to Spain, from where it went to the Argentine and now returns with the new name of "the tango." "All the clergy of central France," says Le Cri, "thundered in the eighteenth century against the 'degognade.' It was for-bidden under pain of ex-communication, and interdicted in public assemblies, but the Auvergnais resisted and triumphed. Will the tango show the same vitality as its ancestor of Au-vergne?"

Ghostly Indian Rite.
For nearly a hundred years the British have tried to suppress the ancient Indian rite of "sati," or the selfimmolation of Brahmin and other high caste widows at the cremation of their deceased husbands. But from time to time a case is recorded and it is believed that there are many more which are never heard of. A story reached London from Calcutta recently of one of these tragic cases of self-destruction.
The night after the death of a Brahmin named Manoranjan, his widow, a girl of fourteen, prepared a funeral pyre in a corner of her house unknown to any one, and, rising early next morning, she saturated her clothing with kerosene oil, ignited it and lay down on the pyre. She was discovered and dragged from the flames, but died as a result of terrible burns.

living three miles east of Salisbury, lost their infant daughter, Christine Rebecca, March 25. This little infant was only eight days old, yet it had endeared itself to its parents and given its soul to God. Funeral services were held by Rev. L. B. Spracher and the tiny body laid to rest at Union Church beneath a mound of flowers. The heart broken parents have the sympathy of many friends over the loss of their only child. May God bless and comfort them in their sad bereavement.

Friday morning about 9 o'clock
