

MIXED POULTRY FEEDS

Best Results Obtained by Studying Needs of Flock.

One Essential to Laying Hens is Exercise—Many Methods Resorted to in Addition to Scattering Grain Among Straw.

(By R. G. WEATHERSTONE.) Hens will do better on mixed feeds than on any other. A quart of corn meal mixed with some other food such as cooked potatoes.

A great variety of chicken feed is manufactured, consisting of mixtures of various grains, dried ground bone, dried blood, best scraps and such matter, but the best results can probably be obtained by studying the needs of one's flock and supplying them at first hand.

Exercise is of course very essential to laying hens when confined during the laying season. To obtain this many methods are resorted to in addition to scattering grain among the straw as for instance suspending a cabbage or a bunch of beets about two feet above the floor in order to induce them to jump up to reach it.

Exercise by jumping after it, but our experience is that when fed a moderate amount of clover or ground alfalfa they have no taste for any other kind of green food.

Nothing equals cut clover for feeding the chickens. Alfalfa comes next, but clover stands at the head and if this is fed regularly and in moderate quantities it will take the place of all other green feeds.

Wet versus dry mash is a question that has received much attention from experimenters during the past few years. The general consensus of opinion at the present time is that the dry mash is the most desirable. Many practical poultrymen, however, still prefer the wet mash. Labor is one of the greatest problems that the poultry raiser has to consider, consequently, if he can find a method which will be labor saving and yet give results, it is worthy of consideration.

Like old wheat in the bin are good draft horses of salable age. Both are ready money whenever the farmer wants to cash them in. Reliable advices from all sections of the horse-breeding country state that the time is not recalled when farmer-breeders were so well cleaned up on their market horses, nor at such satisfactory prices to the producer.

It is highly significant that some of the big firms of the cities are again in evidence about the horse markets. The man in the country who already enjoys a ready market for the good ones should prepare himself to supply a still greater demand and at still more remunerative figures.

Probably no other line of agricultural machinery has made such marked advance and adjustment to actual farming conditions during the past few years as the tractors. It is now possible to purchase tractors of practically any desired size, weight and power, adapted to all classes of farming, from the 80-acre field to the farm or ranch comprising many thousand acres.

The price of the smaller machines is within reach of farmers of moderate means, and it is, consequently, in this direction that the greatest improvements are being scored.

The wild cow gave only enough milk to support its young. Proof of what man has been able to do in improving dairy cattle is found in the fact that the present world's record for milk production is more than thirty thousand pounds per year.

Present Production by Improved Dairy Cow More Than Thirty Thousand Pounds Per Year.

LOWER STONE. July 14.—We are having a plenty of rain for the last few weeks which has stopped the wheat threshing for a few days.

Some people are making very good crops of wheat and oats, while others are not. L. M. Brown made 285 bushels of wheat and Mr. Nussman who has land adjoining Mr. Brown's made 572, C. M. Brown 100, L. J. Cauble 256, C. A. Miller 236, R. L. Holshouser 62, Mr. Huffman 130, Lewis Fontz 68, C. E. Bost 102 and not quite 100 bushels of oats, M. A. J. Bost 44 bushels of wheat, Jacob Cline 107 wheat and 50 oats, Isaac Loyer 44, Caleb Cruise and Frank Moore 128 wheat and 72 oats, H. J. Bost 87 wheat, and 114 oats, and Jacob Beaver 44 wheat.

The corn is looking very well in this neighborhood, but I am afraid we are having too much rain for the good of the crops. I suppose people can plow stubble land when it stops raining, as I think the land will be well soaked. This and next month is a good time to plow stubble land. I think it is better to plow it in July and August than it is to plow it later, especially for wheat and oats. We do not have a season like this to plow stubble land every year.

Towns Throughout North Carolina Co-operating in Relief Effort.

Raleigh, July 24.—The special fund for flood sufferers being raised by Governor Craig's general committee, amounts tonight to around $1,400 and is growing rapidly. Numbers of large checks $50 and more each, came in on the afternoon mail and indications are for still greater influx of funds the next day or two.

A telegram from Hopewell, Va., to Governor Craig today asked for permission to proceed there under the auspices of the general relief committee of North Carolina to raise funds for the flood sufferers and asking that some members of the North Carolina committee come there for a special meeting at the Du Pont Club to launch the movement. The chairman wired in reply that the assistance of Hopewell would be immensely appreciated and expended to the best advantage, but that it would be impossible for any member of the committee to visit Hopewell as stated. He promised to advise as soon as possible just what the needs are estimated to be. A committee of 100 Raleigh citizens was named tonight to raise funds in Raleigh under the auspices of the general committee.

Man Killed at Mill Bridge. One of the most distressing accidents to occur in Rowan county in a long time was that at Mill Bridge Saturday morning and which cost the life of William Martin, 35 years old. He was employed at J. He leaves a wife but no children.
