FIELD OF BEANS
13 MILES LONG

Hyde County Has One Of The Largest Bean Fields In The World; Also Grows Rice.

Kinston, Aug. 5.—Word had here is that New Holland, plantation east of Swan Quarter which used to be a lake, will produce its finest crops this year. One of the sights there is a soy-bean field 13 1/4 miles in length, one of the largest fields in the world and probably the largest devoted to beans. Rice and corn yields promise to be heavy.

New Holland was Mattamuskeet lake before the water was pumped from it and it became a farm 18 miles long and nine miles wide. It is criss-crossed by canals and roads. Its executives and laborers live in a modern hotel and modern cottages. The hotel is surrounded by landscaped grounds. Its second-story porches afford a view of the entire farm, one of the largest and most unique plantations anywhere. A gigantic pumping plant keeps it from flooding again.

The state is improving the road which leads to Mattamuskeet. It has been in bad condition a part of the time recently, but many visitors have braved it to see the New Holland farm and the "earth fires" along it. The peaty soil of Hyde county is burning at a number of points, but none of the blazes is of a threatening nature.

NOT UNUSUAL
 "How did you come to raid that barber's shop?" the dry agent was asked.

"Well," he replied, "it struck me kind of funny that such a lot of fellows should buy hair restorer from a bald-headed barber."—Boston Transcript.

CHECK FLASHER ESCAPES FROM ROCKINGHAM STORE

Rockingham, Aug. 5.—A check flasher giving the name of Sam J. Bowen tried his trick on the Penney store here, buying $29 worth of goods and offering a Bank of Boone check for $72.04. Manager M. C. Thomas a few minutes earlier had received a letter from the Penney store at Statesville warning about the same man; but before an officer could be reached, the stranger skipped.

ORGANIZED CRIME COSTS BILLIONS, SAYS CHURCHMAN

Old-fashioned Crimes Are Growing Less As Such Do Not Pay Well For Risk Involved.

Dr. Ralph W. Sockman, of New York, spoke recently at the Leadership Training school of the Methodist church, South, at Lake Junaluska, on "Gentlemen and Gangsters," saying that organized crime was as efficient as modern business as it was costing the citizens of the United States as much as they pay in taxes to the Federal government.

"Gentlemen and Gangsters" was Dr. Sockman's subject and he pointedly called attention to the fact that all gangsters are confined to the tough sections of the city.

"The crime bill of the United States today," the speaker declared, "exclusive of the business racket, is placed by some competent observers at six billion dollars and by others as high as 16 billion dollars annually. When we add the business racketeering to this item, we are told that we Americans are paying as much to the invisible government of crime as we are paying in taxes to our Federal government for the conduct and protection of our country.

"The old-fashioned crimes, like housebreaking and train robberies, are growing less for the reason they do not pay well enough in proportion to the risks involved. Crime has become organized like modern business. It flourishes today because its organization can guarantee immunity to its criminals.

"Al Capone and his followers, Jack Diamond and his followers, usually fight the police. Their organizations either do away with the witnesses before the trial or they arrange matters with the political leaders who influence the local courts. If we are to secure more convictions of our criminals we must attack not so much the laxity of our police as the corruption of those higher up.

"For the reforming of our city crime conditions, we must have the co-operation of our State and Federal authorities. In New York, we citizens may be no worse individually than are the residents of rural sections, but we have become almost hopeless about cleansing our politics of their alliance with crime. Unless the country at large can bring its censure and its aid to bear upon our cities like New York and Chicago, law and order are seemingly doomed in such metropolitan centers.

Wonder what has become of the chap who wore galluses and kept pins in the lapel of his coat.

GARDNER SEEKS REDUCTION IN CROP ACREAGE

State Has Cut Cotton Acreage 28 Per Cent Since 1929, Governor Tells Texas Executive.

Raleigh, Aug. 5.—Governor Gardner has sent a telegram to Governor Sterling, of the southwestern empire, giving wholehearted commendation to the Texans in their desire to reduce cotton acreage. The only very serious rival that Texas has in cotton culture is North Carolina. This state seems to best all its sisters in growing two stalks or two bales of cotton where the commonwealths produce a whole crop of politicians. And Governor Gardner's county, Cleveland, beats the world in acreage production. In talking calico to Mr. Gardner, therefore, Mr. Sterling was addressing the champion cotton culturist.

Governor Gardner flung in a fine word for North Carolina in making his manners to Texas. Since 1929 North Carolina has cut its cotton acreage 28 per cent. There must be a hint to Texas in that. And the inevitable conclusion is that had Texas reduced its crop in the same.

There are at least 290 references to birds in the Bible, says the American Forestry Association. Thirty-one species are mentioned. One hundred and thirty of the birds mentioned are general in the sense that they refer simply to birds as such. The rest refer to certain species.

According to Alexander Sprunt, Jr., in the May issue of American Forests, the magazine of the association, the dove is mentioned thirty-five times; the eagle, thirty-two; the raven the cock and the hen are mentioned, twelve times each. The owl is mentioned eleven times; the pigeon, ten; the sparrow, seven; the stork, six; the pelican, five; the quail, swallow and vulture, four times each; the ostrich, bittern peacock and cormorant, three times each; the crane, partridge, osprey, kite, cuckoo, hawk, heron, nighthawk and lapwing, twice each.

"Birds antedate man himself," says Mr. Sprunt, "for in the Genesis scale of creation they are second of the creatures which were endowed with life. First came the denizens of the sea, then the birds. After the account of the creation, one of the earliest mentions of birds is at the time of the deluge. When the patriarch Noah was desirous of ascertaining whether the waters were subsiding it will be recalled that he employed two kinds of birds, at first a raven; and then a dove."

BOURNE WILL TAKE OFFICE OCTOBER 30

Charlotte, Aug. 5.—Henry C. Bourne, of Tarboro, newly elected state commander of the American Legion, will be inducted into office October 30, it was learned from J. M. Caldwell, of Mooresville, state adjutant.

At that time the state headquarters will be moved to Tarboro, since it is the custom for the office to be maintained at the home of the commander.

Until then, Con C. Johnston, of Mooresville, the retiring commander, will remain in office.

Mr. Caldwell said the place for the ceremony in which Mr. Bourne will be installed formally as head of the North Carolina legionnaires had not been decided.
