Restless, could not sleep

"THERE were days when I felt like I could not get my work done. I would get so nervous and 'trembly' I would have to lie down. I was very restless, and could not sleep at night.

My mother advised me to take Cardui, and I certainly am glad she did. It is the first thing that seemed to give me any strength. I felt better after the first bottle. I kept it up and am now feeling fine."—Mrs. T. K. Gibson, Fort Payne, Ala.

GOLD MINE IN RANDOLPH COUNTY PROBABLY BE REOPENED SOON

The Hoover Hill gold mine, perhaps the richest and certainly one of the earliest worked in Randolph for this metal, may be reopened and worked. The mine is now owned by Mrs. Lee Briles, of High Point, widow of the late Lee Briles, who was the last operator of the mine.

The mine was found quite by accident by Joseph Hoover many, many years ago. This man and his son William were going to the woods one afternoon for a load of light-wood, the boy driving the team while the father walked along swinging his axe, hitting at rocks in the path. One rock attracted Mr. Hoover on account of its unusual composition and he struck another blow with his axe and found gold. The man then set to work mining gold from this location, several miles west of Asheboro and it became known as "one of the richest mines in this country." Records then show that after working the mine for some years, in fact until his death, the property was then sold to McDowell and Woodfin, who purchased this large tract, rich in gold reproducing rocks, for $8,000.

In 1806, during the early period of mining, a cabin was built by Joseph Hoover at the mine. In this cabin many of the Hoovers were born and reared, as well as some of their descendants. Oscar Redding, chairman of the city school board of Asheboro, was born in this house.

R. A. Gaddis, of Asheboro, grandson of Joseph Hoover, has reproduced this log house in a novel desk. The house had, and the desk likewise, four rooms, two below and two above with a very narrow passage-way down stairs. The stairs themselves are unique, narrow and winding after the fashion of the day. The front of the miniature cabin, built by Mr. Gaddis, drops down making a desk, and the opening in the side is covered by a clever "trap door" filling in the doorway, thus making a perfect writing desk. The outside of this house-desk is painted to give the idea of logs, copied from the original interesting structure.

The original shaft, sunk by the discoverer and first worker of the mine is 350 ft. deep, now filled with water as are several other shafts. C. H. Rush, an older resident of Asheboro, was connected with the mine forty-odd years ago, when the Briles shaft was sunk and recalls some interesting incidents connected with this period of the activity of the mine. A drift was sunk 70 feet below the main shaft with wings in several directions. In prospecting around far below the surface of the earth, the miners came across the richest stops ever discovered in the mine. Mr. Rush recalls how the gold lay uite apparent along the wall of the steps but when his supply gave out, the workmen found no more. It is Mr. Rush's idea that there is still plenty of gold in this mine, but he believes it to be in "pockets" rather than in straight veins. This theory is, of course, problematical but drawn from the past history of the mine and the manner in which the gold was found, but be that as it may the gold is there.

Estate Is Doubled After Man's Death

White Plains, N. Y., Aug. 19.—Since his death fifteen years ago, the estate of the late Richard Harding Davis, noted author, has more than doubled in value as a result of posthumous royalties from his writings, it was disclosed in a formal accounting submitted to the surrogate's courts.

When Davis died in 1916 his estate was appraised at $49,029. Today its total value is $136,181, according to the accounting submitted by the Bank of America. More than half of the increase has been in the form of royalties for the adaption of Davis stories in motion pictures. The rest has come from book publishers and dramatic rights for the legitimate stage.

The author's will established a trust fund under the terms of which his widow, Mrs. Elizabeth McCoy Davis, is to continue as beneficiary as long as she does not remarry. In the event of her remarriage, the income would revert to a daughter, Hope. Mrs. Davis and her daughter are at present touring Europe.

Dignity is the mask behind which we hide our ignorance.

Truth-Serum Convict Is Paroled In Killing

Oklahoma City, Aug. 19.—Oklahoma's "truth serum" convict, Claude Newton, has won a parole from Gov. W. H. Murray from a life sentence on conviction of killing Briggs Chumley, Oklahoma City policeman, in 1924.

Newton, who maintained his innocence under the influence of "truth serum" before a peace officers' convention at Holdenville, Okla., in 1926, was paroled for a year to his mother, Mrs. Annie B. Newton, of Waco, Texas, and was promised extended clemency if he behaved.

C. E. B. Cutler, State pardon and parole officer, said Elmer D. Miller, fellow-officer who was wounded and the only eyewitness to the killing, insisted that Newton was not the slayer. Nevertheless, Newton was convicted, said Cutler, "by securing testimony from persons who knew nothing about the killing."

The "truth serum" did not enter into the parole order.

Photographs Self On Parachute Jump

Chanute Field, Rantoul, Ill., Aug. 19.—Acting Corporal Garland E. Cain, of the United States Army Air Corps, knows today just how he looked when he made a parachute jump of 4,000 feet. He took pictures of himself as he descended.

Two built-over cameras of midsize, each weighing three ounces, were used. They were tied to his chest. Eight of the pictures were upward views, which included close-ups of his facial expressions. The others were downward views.

"I had a lot of things to remember," Cain said, "but made my first shot holding the camera out at arm's length directed at my face. I had then fallen about 800 feet. I took eight shots and the camera indicator registered empty. Then I pulled up the other camera. When the rush of wind escaping through the vent of my chute would subside for a moment, I could even hear the click of the shutter."
