LABOR NEWS

By F. T. CORNELIUS, Secretary Salisbury-Spencer Central Labor Union

"Strange and contradictory as it may seem, we must commit ourselves today to a philosophy of high wages and shorter working hours, a philosophy that has not been evolved by what one might term as spiritual processes. It has come as a result of the best study of our eminent industrialists."

J. S. MILLER Editor Charlotte (N. C.) News

LABOR HOLDS MEMBERSHIP

According to reports received by the Salisbury-Spencer Central Labor Union from the executive council of the American Federation of labor, the present membership of the A. F. of L. is more than two hundred thousand greater than in 1918, far greater than in the years of 1924-1927 and within six thousand of being equal to the peak of 1928.

GREEN URGES CO-OPERATION OF LABOR

In a special message directed to members of the labor movement of this vicinity, President William Green calls upon the members of organized labor to co-operate with all local enterprise and activities which may be interested and engaged in the raising of funds for unemployment relief. President Greens message stated in part as follows:

"There is no organization more vitally and directly interested in this character of work than are the labor organizations in each and every community. Because of this special interest and because of the humane principles involved, I respectfully call upon the officers and members of city central bodies and of state federation of labor to co-operate fully with the unified relief organizations created in your respective cities and communities for the purpose of extending all assistance possible so that suffering may be relieved and distress resulting from unemployment be kept at the lowest possible point. The call of the hour is for co-operation, unified effort, and the exercise of the highest and best service possible."

Dim Recollections Shedding Light on a Dark Past

YOU have often heard it said that we are living in a wonderful age. So we are. Telephone, radio, airplane, talking pictures—and who knows what will be next?

But among all the inventions that have added to our pleasures and our convenience isn't the electric light about the most important?

Without the Mazda lamp, in fact, few of the other great inventions of this scientific age would have been possible.

Think of going back to the dark days of smoky, smelly oil lamps! Who would be willing to get along with them if it were possible?

Yet there are many people who think electric light costs so much that they must use it sparingly. That is a foolish idea which has come along out of the dark past.

You can have adequate electric light today for less than it cost your grandparents to burn oil lamps or candles.

Good light is one of your greatest needs, and it costs so little that everyone may enjoy its benefits.

For a limited time you can have cartons of genuine Mazda 60-watt lamps, or any other sizes, delivered at your home, priced at a discount, and pay for them in two months along with your light bill.
