

Hoover Proclaims Thurs., Nov. 26 Thanksgiving Day

Washington.—President Hoover has proclaimed Thursday, November 26, a day of national Thanksgiving for the advantages enjoyed despite a "measure of passing adversity."

The presidential proclamation said: "We approach the season when, according to custom dating from the gathering of the first harvest by our forefathers in the new world, a day is set apart to give thanks, even amid hardships, to almighty God for our temporal and spiritual blessings. It has become a hallowed tradition for the chief magistrate to proclaim annually a national day of Thanksgiving."

"Our country has cause for gratitude to the Almighty. We have been widely blessed with abundant harvests. We have been spared from pestilence and calamities. Our institutions have served the people. Knowledge has multiplied and our lives are enriched with its application. Education has advanced, the health of our people has increased. We have dwelt in peace with all men. The measure of passing adversity which has come upon us should deepen the spiritual life of the people, quicken their sympathies and spirit of sacrifice for others, and strengthen their courage."

"Many of our neighbors are in need from causes beyond their control and the compassion of the people throughout the nation should so assure their security over this winter that they too may have full cause to participate in this day of gratitude to the Almighty. "Now, therefore, I, Herbert Hoover, President of the United States of America, do hereby designate Thursday, November 26, 1931, as a National Day of Thanksgiving, and do recommend that our people rest from their daily labors and in their homes and accustomed places of worship give devout thanks for the blessing which a merciful father has bestowed upon us."

"In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Seal of the United States to be affixed."

"Done at the City of Washington this third day of November, in the year of our Lord, 1931, and of the Independence of the United States of America the 156th."

"(Signed) HERBERT HOOVER"

One Farm Product Has No Surplus

There is no surplus of farm work-stock and the scarcity of mules and horses will increase as the main breeding centers continue to use tractors for power.

"One important live-at-home policy being over-looked in North Carolina is the production of a farm supply of mules and horses," says David S. Weaver, agricultural engineer at State College. "Horses and mules suitable for farm power are dying off from old age more rapidly than they are being produced. In the western states, which formerly produced a large part of the horse and mule supply, farmers have gone into tractor farming. This has resulted in a displacement of breeding-mares. No other section seems to be interested in producing the animals of the size the Southern farmer needs and it looks as if he will have to get into this work for his own protection."

Restrict Turkey Range And Feed For Market

Since most of the turkeys grown in North Carolina are produced under free range conditions, this range must be restricted as it becomes time to furnish birds for the holiday trade.

"The very fact that most of our turkeys are grown under free range conditions makes it unwise to confine them in small pens when fattening for holiday trade," says C. F. Parrish, extension poultry specialist at State College. "However, the range should be restricted. Unlimited range is harmful because the excessive exercise prevents the birds from putting on flesh. To confine the birds in small pens or coops will cause them to become nervous and lose weight. It is best to simply restrict the range and to feed a fattening ration."

The best fattening ration for these birds is a mixture of corn and wheat, equal parts by weight, suggests Mr. Parrish. The grower should feed this mixture both night and morning giving as much as the birds will clean up. As the fattening period progresses, increase the amount of corn and decrease the amount of wheat until the last few days before the birds are sold, they are on corn alone.

Mr. Parrish warns against feeding immature, new corn. This may cause ill-effects and ruin the results of the feeding work.

There is an excellent crop of turkeys in all parts of the State and some farmers are planning now to cooperate in selling carlot shipments to eastern markets. Best prices for these birds will be received if they are brought in from the free range and fattened before shipment, says the specialist.

Farm Selling Agency To Market Poultry

A central sales office to handle poultry, turkeys and poultry products has been established with headquarters at Durham and with R. W. Galphin, formerly county agent of Pamlico County, as manager.

"For the past four years the 40 small farm exchanges of North Carolina have handled some two million pounds of poultry and the growth of interest in poultry forming has shown the need for some efficient central selling agency," says C. W. Tilson, manager of the Durham Mutual Exchange and president of the newly organized North Carolina Producers' Mutual Exchange.

"In some instances the small exchanges have grouped together to sell the poultry products of their members but as to the work has grown, a strong central agency has seemed necessary. Mr. Galphin organized one of the first mutual exchanges in this State in 1925 and his had a part in forming others. He is known as an authority on this kind of cooperative effort."

"ALFALFA BILL" TO "RAISE HELL" IN JACKSONIAN STYLE

WILL SERVE THE MASSES AND NOT THE IDLE RICH IF ELECTED PRESIDENT

Friends of William H. "Alfalfa Bill" Murray will soon begin an active campaign to secure for the Oklahoma Governor the Democratic Presidential nomination, according to news reaching Washington from the West.

The Oklahoma Democratic State Committee at a recent meeting perfected plans to let the people know of Governor Murray's national political program which is based on the cry of "Bread, Butter, Bacon and Beans."

Murray says politicians and not the people select party candidates and for this reason he has little hope of securing the nomination. He is certain to go to the next convention as Oklahoma's candidate for the Democratic nomination.

He has promised if nominated to "RAISE MORE HELL THAN ANY CANDIDATE FOR PRESIDENT SINCE ANDY JACKSON."

During a recent trip to Omaha, the Oklahoma executive, to show that he wears his 72 years lightly, stood on his head for a full minute before Governor and Mrs. Charles W. Bryan.

Governor Murray has not announced a platform built from his views on national issues, but he does have a receipt for answering prohibition questions. Interviewed on the issue, he said:

"Oh, I've heard a lot of nuts talk about prohibition. A fellow asked me one time if we had prohibition in Oklahoma. I told him sure we did. He asked me if we liked it and I told him sure we did. He asked me if prohibition was enforced down there. My answer was, of course, not. But you know that fellow just wanted an argument, and I didn't give it to him."

Oklahoma's colorful Governor has definite views on Wall Street, which he claims is dictating every loan made in the country.

"I'm for a return of constitutional government whereby a farmer can go to his local bank, pledge his crop and borrow 75 per cent of its value so that he may harvest and market it," Governor Murray says. "I'm for making the banks lend to manufacturers and producers so that business can go ahead."
