

RELIEF UNIT IS FORMED IN COUNTY TO AID THE NEEDY

Responding to a call issued by H. E. Ruffy, chairman of the county board of commissioners, a relief association was organized here Monday afternoon and definite plans were mapped out to aid the needy and unemployed in this county during the winter.

The meeting was held in the court house and was well attended, the commissioners room being taxed to its capacity.

The purpose of the organization was explained by Mrs. Ed Land, of Statesville, who was appointed to handle this work by Governor Gardner.

Mr. Ruffy presided over the meeting and was elected. Mr. Ruffy general chairman with Mrs. M. O. Linton, county welfare officer for Rowan, as executive secretary. A central committee was named composed of W. G. Yeager, farm agent for Rowan; Miss Mamie Whisnant, home demonstration agent for the county; Dr. C. W. Armstrong, city and county health officer, and S. G. Hasty, superintendent of schools for Rowan.

A number of vice-chairmen, representing all sections of the county, were named, as follows: Rev. J. L. Parks, for Spencer; J. O. Sparks, for Yadkin; Max L. Barker, Salisbury; Wade Little, Cleveland; Knox Culbertson, Woodleaf; Hearne Swink, China Grove; G. O. Lipe, Landis; Rev. L. A. Peeler, North Kannapolis; G. A. Brown, Faith; Robert Lyerly, Granite Quarry; Yorke Peeler, Rockwell; Matt Hedrick, Gold Hill; J. C. Sherill, Mt. Ulla; S. R. Knox, Bear Poplar; John Kennerly, Franklin; Lee Sloop, Prospect church; Mooresville, route 2; Arthur Deal, Enochville; Ralph Current, Scotch Irish; DeWitt Patterson, Bradshaw, and Mayor F. R. Sifford, East Spencer. A vice-chairman for Dukeville and also Morgan township is yet to be named.

PIG BITES CHILD

Reidsville—A five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Settle Watkins will grow up minus its right finger because a pet pig, allowed to roam at large in the house, bit the child's finger off. The dimpled hand of the baby was hanging from the crib at the time.

Food Crop Increase Shows Great Gain

Since 1929, North Carolina farmers have increased the acreage to food and feed crops by the remarkable total of 695,000 acres. During the same period, the acreage to cotton and tobacco has been decreased by 576,000 acres and allowing for an increase of 19,000 acres in the peanut crop, the total decrease in the State's so-called cash crops amounts to 557,000 acres.

The only loss in acreage to food and feed crops has been a slight decrease with wheat because of low prices. Since 1929, there has been 2,000 less acres of wheat planted, finds Charles A. Sheffield, assistant extension director at State College, who has been studying North Carolina's condition since the live-at-home program has been underway.

The dry figures on the situation are as follows: corn has been increased by 334,000 acres or 14.5 per cent; wheat decreased by 2,000 acres or less than one per cent; oats increased by 48,000 acres or 15 per cent; rye increased by 10,000 acres or 10 per cent; barley increased by 12,000 acres or 30 per cent; cowpeas increased by 18,000 acres or 20 per cent; soybeans increased by 83,000 acres or 47.5 per cent; hay increased by 105,000 acres or 11.8 per cent; Irish potatoes increased by 29,000 acres or 39.7 per cent; sweet potatoes increased by 41,000 acres or 55 per cent; sorghum increased by 15,000 acres or 75 per cent.

During this same period since 1929, Mr. Sheffield says the cotton crop planted has been decreased by 534,000 acres or 28.5 per cent and the tobacco crop by 42,000 acres or 5.5 per cent.

Further decreases in the acreage to both cotton and tobacco are expected for 1932 with more legumes planted and more land seeded to grain and other feed crops, Mr. Sheffield says.

Thrift And Economy In Remodeled Clothes

The properly remodeled, hand-me-down coat, suit or dress no longer has any terror for the small boy or girl for when home demonstration club members get through making new garments from old, not even brother or sister will recognize the old garment any more.

This is the opinion of Miss Willie N. Hunter, clothing specialist at

Man Drops Dead From Effects Of Cutting Tree

J. W. Knight Jr. aged 26, of Winston-Salem, dropped dead at the home of J. V. Schroeder, Spencer, N. C. shortly after one o'clock Thursday.

Mr. Schroeder and the young man had just finished cutting down a tree and started back in the house when the young man suffered a heart attack, death was instantaneous.

The deceased is survived by a father and brother of Winston-Salem. The body was moved to Winston-Salem, where interment will probably take place Saturday at 2 o'clock.

GREENSBORO ROW ENDED

Raleigh—The state board of equalization has approved a supplemental budget of $200,548 for the extended term for the Greensboro city schools, bringing to a close the open break between the Gate City school board and the equalization board.

The Greensboro supplemental budget, as submitted, called for the expenditure of $229,496 of local funds, but approximately $15,000 of this amount may be transferred to capital outlay which the state board of equalization agreed not to include in approving supplemental budgets.

State College, who has been working with home demonstration club women and girls in all parts of North Carolina this fall to aid them in remodeling old clothes into stylish new winter garments.

"Changing old frocks into new ones, taking grown-up clothes and making them into school togs for children, is the vogue now among rural women and girls," says Miss Hunter. "Old packing trunks and attics are being searched for out-of-date garments of good material which can be used again. Discarded garments are being re-examined for future use. To make a good looking up-to-date garment from an old one, the owner must be thoroughly familiar with what is new in the fashion world. It would never do to make a garment that could be spotted as a made-over. A study of the fashion magazines will acquaint one with the trends in fashions and will offer suggestions as to what might be done with any given garment."
