Congress Bans Strike Injunctions

LOCAL LABOR LEADERS ARE WELL PLEASED

Salisbury-Spencer Officials Took Active Part In Urging Passage Of The Bill By Congress.

FEDERAL COURT POWERS ARE ALSO CURBED BY BILL

Represents Great Victory For Organized Labor; Power Of Court In Contempt Cases Minimized.

Local labor leaders are jubilant over the bill which has now become a law banning injunctions in strikes. The bill became a law this week when signed by the president after passing both houses of congress.

Officials of the Salisbury-Spencer Central Labor Union, when approached by a representative of The Watchman, were well pleased over the victory, which is considered one of the leading pieces of labor legislation enacted for some time by congress.

The officials included: C. A. Fink, president; C. H. Brinkle, vice president, and F. T. Cornelius, secretary; also D. J. Butler, vice president of the North Carolina Federation of Labor.

These leaders have been active in their efforts to have the bill passed by congress. Several officials have made trips to Washington urging its passage.

The long fight of organized labor to limit the use of injunctions in labor disputes ended in victory, with President Hoover signing the Norris-La-Guardia bill.

The measure, among other things, outlaws permanently the "yellow-dog" contract and recognizes in law the right of labor to organize and bargain collectively. It grants the right of defendants in contempt suits to a trial by jury and a transfer of judges.

It contains also a specific provision for protecting the freedom of the press, allowing editors charged with contempt for criticizing a judge, to demand a jury trial and ask for transfer of the case to another judge.

In its rigid limitation of injunctions in labor disputes, the bill prohibits the issuance of such writs without prior hearings and findings of fact unless unlawful acts have been committed or substantial injury to property in prospect.

Attorney general Mitchell in his letter, issued through the White House, was outspoken in his criticism. He said it would be impossible to settle many of the points by executive act and that the validity of some sections could be set at rest only by judicial decision.

Many of the objections, however, he asserted, were based upon "extreme interpretations which are not warranted by the text of the bill."

"It is inconceivable," he said, "that congress could have intended to pro-

N. C. Commercial Secretaries To Meet March 28

BETWEEN 25 AND 30 DELEGATES WILL ATTEND MEETING

Meeting Will Open Monday Morning At 10:00 o'clock At The Yadkin Hotel.

SEVERAL SPEAKERS TO DISCUSS PHASES OF COM. INTEREST

Mayor B. V. Hedrick To Extend Address Of Welcome On Behalf Of The City Of Salisbury.

The annual meeting of the North Carolina Commercial Secretaries Association will open Monday morning at 10:00 o'clock at the Yadkin hotel with Mayor B. V. Hedrick making the address of welcome on behalf of the city and Bryce P. Beard, president of the Salisbury Chamber of Commerce, welcoming the delegates on behalf of the Salisbury organization.

F. Roger Miller, of Asheville, former president of the National Association of Commercial Organization Secretaries, will be the luncheon speaker. The banquet will be held at 6:30 o'clock in the main dining-room of the Yadkin hotel. Ralph Bradford, manager of the Commercial Organization Department of the United States Chamber of Commerce, will be the guest speaker.

During the afternoon Mr. Bradford will conduct a round table discussion on subjects of interest to commercial secretaries.

C. M. Ketchum, of Greensboro, president of the North Carolina Commercial secretaries, and R. E. L. Niel, of Salisbury, secretary, will be in attendance.

FIRE AT MONROE
Monroe—Fire of undetermined origin destroyed four small business buildings here belonging to J. R. Shute, who said the damage was about $15,000 and that no insurance was carried.

tect racketeering and extortion under the guise of labor organization activity and the anti-trust division of this department, having carefully considered the measure, has concluded that it does not prevent injunction in such cases and that it does not prevent the maintenance by the United States of suits to enjoin unlawful conspiracies or combinations under the anti-trust laws to outlaw legitimate articles of inter-state commerce."

BUYS A HOME WITHOUT CENT!

Chicago—Without spending a cent, George Frankhouse, 40, bought a house and lot worth $19,000; three complete sets of home furniture, drapes and rugs worth several thousand dollars and jewelry valued at $2,400.

He made his amazing confession at the Town Hall Station, as police were investigating the complaint of another landlord at 3708 North Racine Ave., where Frankhouse tried to rent an apartment.

Frankhouse told the police: Last December, using the name of George W. Brooks, he called on George W. Beauchamp, Tessville real estate dealer, and bought a $10,000 home, at 6700 Sauganash Ave. Frankhouse told Beauchamp he was about to receive $32,000 from a railroad in settlement of a damage suit.

Then, using the real estate man as a reference, Beauchamp bought three sets of furniture, electrical fixtures worth $480, six expensive rugs, $400 worth of drapes and a radio and equipment, worth $850.

He went to a Park Ridge jewelry firm and obtained diamond rings and wrist watches valued at $2,400, giving an advance dated check, with Beauchamp as his reference. Recently Frankhouse moved all of his property into a warehouse and disappeared.

Yale's Apes Live In A Penthouse

New Haven, Conn.—Yale's experimental apes—like true aristocrats—now live in a penthouse.

Their handsome new abode is located atop the Sterling Hall of Medicine, a wing of the $7,000,000 Institute of Human Relations Building. The apes were moved over from the primates' laboratory on the property of Prof. Robert M. Yerkes, famous authority on ape psychology.

The apes' new home, commonly called the "ape farm," has been given a more "high-hat" name, in keeping with its luxury. It has been labeled "Laboratory of Comparative Psychology."

The professors in charge believe their specimens will thrive in the sunshine and fresh air of the penthouse. The university also has an ape farm in Florida, gift of the Rockefeller Foundation.

Suitor—Sir, I would like to marry your daughter.

Old Man—No, young fellow, you are too young—you are scarcely 20 and she is 28. Wait 10 years, then you will be 30—and my daughter will still be 28.—The Pathfinder.

Child's "Murder" Was Just A Nightmare

Portland, Ore.—Margaret Middlemiss, 7, climbed out of her bed and ran screaming to the home of neighbors at 3:45 a. m., here.

"Mama and daddy have been murdered!" she cried. Mr. and Mrs. Chris

Nielson, the neighbors, took the girl in and called police.

When officers arrived at the Ernest Middlemiss home with drawn guns they found both parents sound asleep.

Margaret apparently had a nightmare.
