mergers conceived and carried out by railway owners without any regard for the welfare of the railway employes was expressed by the Brotherhood of Railroad trainmen in opposing before the Interstate Commerce Commission the four road mergers of eastern railroads built around the New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio, Pennsylvania and Chesapeak & Ohio Railroads.

The Trainmens Brotherhood said that carrying out the proposed plan would "only add to the list of the unemployed," would "place a great burden on local, state and Federal Governments to care for those who are unable to find employment in other branches of industry, and tend further to deprive children of an opportunity for education, wipe out investments of railroad workers in their homes, wipe out the savings these men have made to protect themselves in their declining years, deprive them of railroad pensions where such plans are in effect, and deprive them of their hospitalization protection when they cease longer to be employes."

Subsistence Gardens

Subsistence gardens, to enable the jobless whom American employers refuse to hire to raise their own vegetables are recommended by the Presidents Organization on Unemployment

The organization, of which Walter S. Gifford, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company is director, thinks so much of this scheme as a substitute for wage paying jobs that it issued a special leaflet describing various vegetable-raising schemes.

They all hark back to a similar plan sponsored by Hazen S. Pingree, Mayor of Detroit, in the nineties of the last century, which saddled the Mayor with the epithet "Potato-Patch year comes May 9 to 16." Pingree."

The President's organization figures that if the millions of jobless can raise their own vegetables the private and public charity relief funds will be released of at least that much of the cost of keeping them alive.

Of course, even a jobless worker can't live on vegetables forever and charity funds will be called upon to provide the other things which professional dietitians on the menus for the unemployed conclude are absolutely necessary to keep them from

In 1917 Congress enacted and President Wilson signed the first Federal child labor law prohibiting the employment of children under sixteen in mines and quarries, of children under fourteen in manufacturing establishments and of children between fourteen and sixteen more than eight hours in any day, six days in any week, after seven in the evening, or before six in the morning. The enforcement of the law was vested in the Children's Bureau.

One June 3, 1918, the Supreme Court of the United States handed down a decision declaring the law unconstitutional. This decision brought to an end the elaborate nation-wide walter Murphy and W. C. Coughenour, Attorneys. Ap29-My20 plan for the laws enforcement built was a time when profit-mad employers were using every possible device to exploit child workers. The supreme courts mandate accentuated their unpatriotic work. Even though she was confronted with a negative decision by the Supreme Court, Miss Lathrop determined to protect the children along the lines laid down in the unconstitutional law and at her request the Secretary of War and the Secretary of the Navy issued orders that within their respective control the standards of the Federal law would be carried out. Miss I athrop then turned to the increasing exploitation of children in private industry. She laid this evil before the dustry. She laid this evil before the War Labor Policy Board and about a month after the child labor law had RENDLEMAN & RENDLEMAN, Ap29-My20 been declared unconstitutional the Board directed that the standards of the child labor law should be written into all Government contracts. "One of the most important automotive discoveries in recent years was the fact that efficiency of gasoline engines can be restored by simple, periodic attention," said R. A. Stranahan, President of the Champion Spark Plug Company.

"In a piece of machinery so complicated as the modern combustible engine many parts obviously must take more stress and endure more wear than others. Experiments by our engineering force demonstrated that the spark plug is one of the parts susceptible to this influence. During season's driving, totalling on the average about 10,000 miles, we found that each spark plug in an automobile fires at least 15,000,000 times, regardless of whether the car has four six, eight or more cylinders. The effect of such a terrific strain is necessarily severe.

"It is our confident belief that the spark plug Champion makes are the best in the world, but even with Champions experience has proved that it pays to install new sets in automobiles once a year. The new sets more than pay for themselves in their effective lifetime by the saving they effect in gasoline and oil, besides the large amount of added satisfaction they yield in improved performance.

"It was because of this discovery that we instituted Champion National Change Week eight years ago, and now millions of motorists make use of the annual period by replacing the spark plugs in their cars and thereby assuring themselves renewed new-car sell at performance at no cost to themselves. State revenue collections are over $3,500,000 behind budget estimates for the present fiscal year with a deficit of some $2,800,000 expected to be shown in the general fund at end of the year on June 30. A deficit of $2,300,000, however, was carried over from the 1930-31 year.
