ENGLISH JUDGE RULES HUSBAND MAY BOSS WIFE

Dudley, Eng.—English wives have no right to say where they will live.

A Dudley judge handed down this decision when Mary S. Jenkinson applied for separate maintenance because her husband had lived in Scotland for the last four years.

Mrs. Jenkinson said she was willing to live in Dudley with her husband but she did not want to go to Scotland.

"It is not for you to say where you are going to live," declared the judge. "You must live where your husband decides."

DANIELS URGES LAND BUYING AS AN INVESTMENT

Raleigh Publisher Declares Man Who Buys Land Now Is Making A Wise Investment.

"The man who has money and buys land at present prices is going to make a wise investment," declared Josephus Daniels, Raleigh publisher and former secretary of the navy. Mr. Daniels' statement was prompted by the current general tendencies to "look to the land" as a solution of the present economic stress.

"The mud-sill of all property," Mr. Daniels said, "is the land. Every factory and every railroad must, like Anteus of old, firmly fix itself to the land. The prostration in prices of crops, largely due to the loss of foreign markets, contributed to the present drop in tobacco prices, but the nation-wide depression has struck down other species of property, as well as land. In fact, those who put their money in the stocks of corporations, which had excessive issues, have suffered quite as much as the owners of land, though, of course, they have escaped continued payment of taxes, which has borne heavily upon land.

"In the panic of the early nineties when cotton was bringing four and five cents a pound, agricultural land went down to a very low level. Most people with money declined to buy it. At that time the late Senator Matt W. Ransom, ambassador to Mexico, seeing the conditions and having faith in the restoration of land values, invested every cent he could save and obtain in buying cotton land in Northampton county. He became one of the largest land owners in the south. Within a comparatively few years after his purchases, the value of these lands rose so that if his heirs had sold at the prevailing price in 1917-18 they would have been independently rich.

"I do not predict any return of values such as prevailed during war time, but reduction of land tax is essential for the upward trend. But I have faith in North Carolina. That is another way of saying that I have faith in the land of the state. Men who have money who wisely invest it at the prevailing prices will undoubtedly reap rich returns."

GOLD HILL ITEMS

Farmers are very busy finishing planting, and some have gone to cultivating their crops.

The annual footwashing was held at Flat Creek Baptist church Sunday morning. A large gathering attended the footwashing, but not very many took part in the washing of their feet, as the membership is not very large at present.

Mr. Reid and Mr. Price Parker recently purchased new Chevrolet cars. Ralph Shaver of New Zion church has returned home after teaching through the winter and spring. Mr. Shaver is a graduate of Mitchell Home High school, and Catawba college, Salisbury.

P. H. Wagoner and family spent a few hours in the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Barrier near Misenheimer Springs, Sunday. Mrs. Barrier, who has been ill for some time, is not expected to live much longer.

Mrs. L. H. Eller, of near Dukeville, visited her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Wagoner, Sunday, and also other relatives in Stanly county.

WRITER FACES SUIT ON TAXES

Berlin—Prosecution of Erich Maria Remarque, author of "All Quiet on the Western Front," for alleged evasion of income tax laws is threatened by German officials. It is asserted that not only has the author failed to declare his actual earnings on his books and the movie rights but has sequestered the money in foreign countries in violation of the "capital flight" decrees.

One bank account of Remarque's aggregating $5,000 has been confiscated, although the authorities allege his profits from his writings have brought him not less than 4,000,000 marks (roughly $1,000,000).

The nationalist newspapers in Germany are making much of the case because they were bitter in their denunciation of "All Quiet on the Western Front" as "an insult to the German soldier." They are assailing him also as favoring residence in a foreign country to his own homeland.

Lowell Thomas, world traveler, author and radio speaker, bought a Malacca stick at Tiffany's in New York, and then had it stolen while in Malacca.

There is less to worry about after the worst has happened than there was before.

The trouble with candidate is when they throw their hats in the ring they seem to lose their heads, too.
