Situate, lying and being in the Great South Ward of Salisbury, North Carolina.

Beginning at a stake on East Fisher Street 144.8 feet North 44 West from the West corner of the intersection of East Fisher and South Lee Streets, Peeler's corner; thence with Fisher Street North 44 West 56 1/2 feet, more or less, to a stake, corner of the Mowery (now Wallace) store lot; thence with the line of the said store lot South 46 West 125 1/2 feet, more or less, to a stake Mowery's (now Wallace's) Black-Draught is useful in stimulating them to activity, which, again started, should continue regularly until some future disturbance interferes. In this way, Theford's Black-Draught is one of the TONIC laxatives, tending, as it does, to establish a regular habit of evacuation.

A TONIC Laxative

CONSTIPATION, with the annoying symptoms that usually come with it, cuts down organic force and disturbs normal health and well-being. A thorough cleansing of the digestive tract is of great assistance in the removal of sickening constipation symptoms.

When excessive accumulated waste matter disturbs and strains the muscles of the large intestines, rendering them temporarily unable to perform their wave-like evacuating movements, Theford's Black-Draught is useful in stimulating them to activity, which, again started, should continue regularly until some future disturbance interferes. In this way, Theford's Black-Draught is one of the TONIC laxatives, tending, as it does, to establish a regular habit of evacuation.

Great New Buildings In The Capitol

Washington.—Before it is two years old, the Roosevelt administration will come into a kingdom of magnificent government buildings.

Huge, modern, fire-proof structures are rearing their heads eight stories high along Pennsylvania and Constitution avenues.

An army of workmen, three or four thousand strong, swarms over the lofty steel skeletons. Rivet guns split the air with the deafening rat-tat-tat-tat of steel on steel. Great cranes swing ponderously against the sky.

All downtown Washington is changed and the old Capitol and Washington Monument look down at these lusty youngsters rising at their feet. A broad area at the base of Capitol Hill is being cleared of dingy buildings and transformed into park. Congressmen coming back for the December session hardly know the town.

When Uncle Sam builds he builds for the centuries. Into these giant structures goes the best of everything. Yet five of the biggest together will cost but $42,300,000, compared to $17,000,000 for the new Commerce Department building alone, completed a little less than a year ago.

The difference is ascribed partly to the change in the level of wages and the price of materials and partly to the use of less showy and expensive fittings.

Another reason is that the Commerce Department building is larger than any of those now under construction.

Three of President-elect Roosevelt's new cabinet members will move into brand new buildings about mid-way in the administration, as the structures being erected include new homes for the Postoffice, Justice and Labor Departments.

The Justice building will cost $12,000,000, Postoffice $10,300,000, and Labor, together with a separate structure for the Interstate Commerce Commission and a connecting wing, $11,250,000.

The postoffice is expected to be completed by August, 1934, and the others soon after.

New buildings will house the archives of the Treasury and part of the activities of the Agriculture department.

Up on Capitol Hill is taking shape the new Supreme Court building, for which the cornerstone was recently laid by President Hoover. A new House office building to supplement the old one is about ready for occupancy and the Senate office building is getting a new wing.

To save space and provide greater convenience, the Postoffice, Labor and Interstate Commerce Commission buildings being erected between Constitution and Pennsylvania avenues and 11th and 14th streets will form one great unit, with connecting wings.

On a rainy day the Secretary of Labor will be able to walk over to see the Postmaster-General without getting his feet wet, although he will probably wish he had a bicycle by the time he has traversed a few hundred feet of corridors.

Gibraltar-like at the side of the new structure is the great gray hulk of the old Postoffice department building. Its days are numbered, although the difficulty of removing that mountain of stone has prevented any definite plans thus far for tearing it down.

In the "new Washington" which will come into being during the time President Roosevelt is in the White House, the visitor will see a succession of great white public buildings, majestic rather than massive, lining broad Constitution avenue almost from the Capitol to the Potomac. Already may be seen the outlines of this picture, etched in concrete and steel.

FATE RELENTS

Kinston.—James Wooten, 68, well-known resident of this city, lost the sight of one eye 58 years ago. While splitting wood a splinter struck him in the eye.

Wooten got along nicely until three or four years ago. While splitting wood a splinter struck him in the good eye and destroyed the sight. Fate could not have been more ironic, he said.

Now Wooten is regaining the use of the eye he thought ruined when he was a boy of 10. A surgeon worked on it, "just for a curiosity," a few months ago. He operated, and fitted glasses. Wooten discovered he could see a little—a very little. The surgeon fitted another pair of glasses. Wooten could see the ground at his feet. With the aid of a cane he could find his way about. Treatment was continued. Today he was able to read type smaller than pica.

But the eye which he depended so many years is hopelessly blind.

MAN IS FRIGHTENED TO DEATH IN HOLD-UP

Bryantown, N. J.—Two men who stole a wallet from William Ruge, of Paulsboro, N. J., also robbed him of life. Ten minutes after the hold-up Ruge was found slumped over the wheel of his car. "I've been robbed," he gasped, then fainted. He died in a hospital and doctors, diagnosing the cause as a heart attack, said he was frightened to death.
