

Prospects Of Addition Of Night Passenger Air Service

Plan Faster And Bigger Air Planes

Public Demand For Greater Time-Saving Between New York And Atlanta In Transportation Felt

Rumors of early improvements in service and changes in policy of the Eastern Air Transport corporation were in circulation at the Salisbury airport.

One report forecast the inauguration within a few weeks of a night passenger service between Atlanta and New York to meet the public demand for greater time-saving in transportation. The company is planning to put larger and faster airplanes into service on this route a short time hence.

A slight gain in passenger traffic and the volume of airmail has occurred in recent weeks, it was reported. Figures made public by the E. A. T. showed planes of this company now fly 13,300 miles daily on routes 2,488 miles long. This service along the Atlantic seaboard now is five years old and in that period planes of this company and its subsidiaries have flown 16,550,000 miles, have carried 3,250,000 pounds of airmail and 218,000 passengers. The air express was started nine months ago and 51,200 pounds of express have been transported. This company's original fleet of six small planes has been replaced with 48 airliners requiring 610 employees to operate the service in all its divisions.

Realizes 50-Year 'Dream' With Canoe On Mississippi

New Orleans.—Guy Wanless, fifty-four-year-old toolmaker, had to wait nearly fifty years to realize a boyhood dream which came true when he shot his canoe into the Canal Street landing here and completed his trip down the Mississippi river from Milwaukee, Wis.

He departed last September and laid over at Memphis, Tenn., from November 16 to March 10. He said he ran into rough water at times, but his canoe never turned over. He has a wife, daughter and son, and said today that, after a rest, he planned to return home and wants to repeat the trip later with his son.

At night he camped on the river bank and was fed by river folk, he said.

Girl Gagged, Slain; Wounds In Neck, Arm

North Adams, Mass.—The body of Leah Lloyd Johnston, eighteen, of North Adams, was found in the brush near a railroad underpass with wounds on the neck and arm and a gag stuffed into the mouth. Police believe the girl a murder victim.

Edward Dolan, walking through the brush, came upon the body and called police. Medical Examiner James W. Bunce said there was a deep wound on the left side of the neck which severed an artery; another over the heart and one on the right wrist. A shoe string was bound about the girl's throat.

Dr. Bunce said he believed the wound in the neck was responsible for the girl's death.

The girl had been choked with a shoe string, stabbed three times and a handkerchief forced into her mouth. Police immediately began an effort to trace her movements from the time she left the home of her grandparents immediately after supper saying she was going to a friend's house to stay with children.

Police at first believed the girl had been slain some other place and brought to the spot in an automobile, but a search of the scene revealed a small piece of the girl's clothing caught on a bush about 30 feet north of where the body was found, and her hat near the torn clothing.

The place where the body was found was visible from the highway. The medical examiner said the girl had been dead eight hours.

Fifty Paid For Single Infant As Its Father

Feminine Racketeer Exposed In France; Made Good Income From Men Accused

Paris.—A baby with 50 fathers is the chief exhibit in one of the most remarkable criminal cases that has ever come to the attention of the French Surete.

Margaret Camillon, who is charged with perpetrating a remarkable series of frauds, adopted the baby at a foundling hospital to start her racket. Then got in touch with numerous men through a journal which specializes in such introductions. She then instituted proceedings against each one, claiming that he was the father of her child. Some paid rather than risk publicity.

Others went to court, and in each case orders were made against them. Each was required officially or unofficially to sign documents admitting fatherhood, and so 50 such confessions have now been officially filed in the archives of the Surete.

At the time the fraud was discovered the "mother" was drawing an income of $125 a week from her various "husbands." The baby was her sole source of income.
