

Forms Available For Making Cotton Loans

County farm agents in the cotton growing counties of North Carolina now have on hand the necessary forms and blanks to be executed by growers desiring to secure loans on their cotton.

"Any local bank, marketing association, person or other leading agency may loan farmers ten cents a pound in middling 7-8 inch produced in 1933 and may be assured that the Commodity Credit Corporation will stand behind this loan assuring of its being paid whenever the lender desires," says I. O. Schaub, dean of agriculture at North Carolina State College.

"The producer may secure ten cents a pound on cotton of low middling grade or better and of 7-8 inch staple or better. Below this grade and staple, eight cents a pound may be secured. The Commodity Credit Corporation will purchase eligible paper at par with accrued interest at the rate of 4 per cent. The Corporation will either make the loan directly to producers or will buy the paper from such local lending agencies as the banks or Mr. Schaub said these loans should be attractive to banks, because many banks have cash on hand but are averse to loaning money. The loans on cotton unusually liquid because the Commodity Credit Corporation will take up the loans whenever desired. All the producers' notes mature on individuals."

Those who secure loans on their cotton should be careful not to tender any cotton on which there is a lien. Producers should also keep in mind that those who expect to obtain the loans must agree to the cotton reduction program planned for 1934, Mr. Schaub said.

Married Men Live Longer

The old contention that married life, particularly for men, is conducive to health and longevity, is supported by statistics which show the death rate of husbands to be lower than that of bachelors.

Analysis of vital statistics compiled by the bureau of census discloses that at ages between 35 and 45 the death rate of husbands is not more than one-half and at all ages between 25 and 65 it is not more than two-thirds that of bachelors.

Prof. Walter F. Wilcox of Cornell university, who made the analysis for the bureau, says that while the statistical results are uniform, the explanations are diverse. Young husbands, he says, are doubtless healthier on the average than men of the same age who do not marry.

"The question remains whether the continuous process of selection through marriage suffices to explain the great and persistent difference," he said. "Those who doubt or deny it claim that married life is intrinsically normal, at least, for men, and conducive to health and long life.

"In support of the contention, they point out," he added, "that widowers as well as husbands have been through the selective process of marriage and yet the death rate of widowers is about the same as that of bachelors and much higher than the mortality of husbands."

WHEN PULLETS START LAYING

It is important to have pullets in their laying quarters at least two or three weeks before they start laying. A radical change in their environment after they start laying may lead to a moult which, possibly will postpone egg production for some considerable time. As pullets are usually more profitable than hens, it will pay to plan to cull out the older birds in order to allow sufficient room for the incoming pullets. It does not pay to overcrowd these layers but, if there is any question about allowing sufficient floor space it is better to crowd the older birds than to allow insufficient room for the pullets.

Perhaps the most important consideration in the prevention of cannibalism in pullets is the amount of space allowed per bird. For general purpose or heavy breeds, it is best to allow four square feet per bird. For Leghorns three and a half square feet per bird if penned up during the winter and three square feet if the birds run out year round, is standard. Less space per bird is needed in large flocks than in small ones. More pullets can be housed successfully in a given area as the pullets are more susceptible to colds than are the hens and, has already been mentioned, are more liable to become cannibalistic. It is also important to allow at least one nest to each four or five pullets.

Before the pullets are placed in their laying quarters the house must be free from disease and parasites. A mixture of boiling water and household lye is commonly used, at the rate of one pound of lye to forty gallons of water. The hot lye solution, applied as near the boiling point as possible, helps to remove dried manure and dirt that may be on the floor, walls and equipment of the house. Following the washing, it is advisable to apply a spray containing some good disinfectant. There are many disinfectants on the market suitable for poultry houses. In purchasing disinfectants, it is advisable to note the phenol coefficient of the materials, as disinfectants are rated by a comparison of their germ-killing power with carbolic acid. Pine oil disinfectants have been found to be very effective germ killers.

In addition to the elimination of disease or apparently diseased birds at the time the pullets are housed, many poultrymen take precautions of vaccination against chicken pox and the treatment of the pullets for intestinal parasites while they are still on range.

Pullets require careful supervision at the time they are first put into their laying quarters. It is usually necessary to give them some assistance in becoming accustomed to the roosts.

An epidemic of fall colds often starts by allowing pullets to spend the night on the floor, huddled into a corner, on or in the nests, on the rafters of the house, or even in the windows at the front of the house.

HAMLET OF ROOSEVELT-TOWN AFTER IT GETS NEW DEAL

The sleepy little St. Lawrence Valley hamlet of Nyando, N. Y., named for the initials of a railroad, is to be rebuilt under the name of a president.

Because the opening in November of a highway bridge to Canada promises a new deal for the village it was decided that "Roosevelt-town" would be an appropriate and significant name. The toll bridge will open a new highway route into Canada. No other highway bridges the St. Lawrence River between New York and the providence of Ontario.

Build Up Health and Pains Go Away

WOMEN who suffer from weakness often have many aches and pains which a stronger state of health would prevent.

Women in this condition should take Cardui, a purely vegetable tonic that has been in use for over 50 years. Take Cardui to improve the general tone of the system in cases of run-down health and "tired nerves." Women have found, in such cases, that Cardui helps them to overcome pains and make the monthly periods easier.

CARDUI is safe and wholesome for women of all ages. Try it! Sold at the drug store.

Keep Eggs Indefinitely Without Storing

A new machine which processes eggs and makes it possible to keep them fresh indefinitely without storing was displayed at the National Poultry, Butter and Egg convention at Chicago last week. The process seals the eggs to retain the carbon dioxide which is the life preservative of eggs.

The Family DOCTOR by JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.

Most ear-troubles are born and bred in the nasal passages. In these intelligent days, parents are careful to take their children to the capable doctor—to see about possible adenoids, tonsillar infections, and the like; it is good, sane procedure.

For back in the nostril, begins the little "eustachian tube," or canal, which leads from the outer ear to the real inside of the ear—the "middle ear." Through this canal, germs find their way. Then abscess of the ear may result—always dangerous to the hearing. I hate to run up against a bulging eardrum—a case of earache!

The nasal passages should be kept clean, as far as possible; a good nasal spray with a capable antiseptic solution—always selected by your physician—should be kept and used intelligently. I do not recommend nasal douches—quantities of fluid soused into the nose—which may actually force germs into the eustachian canals, instead of washing them all out! No other than a specialist should force fluid into and through the nasal passages.

One should always be GENTLE in applying self-treatment to the air-passages of the head. I do not believe in pinching the nose and "snorting" hard, to force air into the ear-drums. It is a sure way of advancing the infection upward—it is laying the foundation for future trouble with the ears and hearing.

There is no excuse for permitting the little boy or girl to carry a "running nose" to school or wherever they go. These days of nice sprays should keep everything in order. Another caution: Don't rely on the radio for your choice of antiseptics or treatments; ask your physician, whose interest is in something else than your pocketbook.
