

Prizes Are Offered Corn Club Members

Valuable prizes of nitrate of soda and a college scholarship are offered 4-H corn club members of North Carolina in 1934 by the Barrett Company, distributors of Arcadian nitrate of soda, and by the Chilean Nitrate of Soda Educational Bureau, distributors of Chilean nitrate.

L. R. Harrill, club leader at State College, announces that the Barrett Company offers to each corn club member, growing one acre of corn in the contest next season under methods advocated by the Agricultural Extension Service, a donation of 100 pounds of Arcadian Nitrate. In addition to this material, the company will award, as a state prize, a one-year scholarship to the North Carolina State College covering the cost of tuition only. Mr. Harrill says any corn club member in the State is eligible to compete for this prize.

The material furnished by the Barrett Company must be used on one acre of land designated by the county farm agent and will be delivered to the club member upon the notice of the county agent that instructions have been complied with.

The Chilean Nitrate of Soda Educational Bureau offers 300 pounds and 200 pounds of the Chilean Nitrate of Soda as first and second prizes to 4-H corn club members winning these places in their respective county contests next season. In addition, four district prizes of free trips to the annual 4-H short course at State College and a state prize of a gold medal are offered by the Bureau, Mr. Harrill says.

In this latter contest, there must be at least 25 corn club members enrolled in a county for the prizes to be awarded. Each contestant should have his name filed with his county agent by June 15, 1934.

Complete regulations governing both of these contests may be had on application to Mr. Harrill's office at State College.

BUY NOT, EAT NOT

By BOOTH TARKINGTON

Sometimes we have to go against our training or go broke. Sometimes we have always believed to be a rule of virtuous conduct proves fatal in practice. For instance, we have grown up in the belief, fostered by our parents and teachers and enforced by our government, that we have no right to take or use the property of another person without his consent, but if the property in question happens to be a blackjack that the other person is about to bring down on my head I shall have a better chance of surviving if I perceive, in time, the unwisdom of clinging unalterably to old convictions. That is, there are times of emergency when clinging to an old conviction will be ruinous. Let us consider the present time in its relation to our old conviction in favor of thrift.

People of pioneer stock are often spoken of as the "backbone of the country," and probably they are. Pioneers are thrifty or they don't survive. If the wood pile is used too freely in the autumn it may not last through the winter, and the Midland child learned thrift at its grandmother's knee. Moreover, we've been taught for several generations that it isn't what a man earns that counts and takes care of him in his old age; it's what he saves. We've always believed that thrift is a virtue, that spending is risky and that squandering is suicidal. We demand thrift from our government, vote against political candidates proven unthrifty, and we investigate, and often relegate to private life, officials shown to be carelessly lavish with public funds. The value of thrift, indeed, is one of our strongest convictions. No one doubts that it is a right and useful conviction or that it would be dangerous to unsettle it; but here is the United States government coming to us now, asking us to buy, buy, buy, advising us to spend our money rather than to save it, and generally appearing to set itself strongly in opposition to that old principle of thriftiness in which we were trained. There seems to be a contradiction somewhere.

Moreover, the government asks us to spend at a time when we have the least to spare, at a time when the Federal government itself, as well as our State, county and city governments, are taking heavily from us in taxes and in that way lessening our power to spend. Worse still, our government, through the N.R.A., asks us to spend at a moment of great financial uncertainty in our lives, at a moment when we don't know whether we're emerging from the depression or going deeper into it, and when we aren't sure whether we're less afraid of the future than we were a year ago, or more so. The curious thing about the government's exhortation to us to spend is that the exhorters know how we feel and how we're situated; they know our old conviction in favor of thriftiness and they agree with that conviction—and yet these same exhorters ask us to buy, buy, buy!

What's the answer? Money is a means of trade. If you had a cord of wood and no food, and your neighbor had a cellar full of potatoes and no fuel, and if neither of you were willing to trade, he'd have raw potatoes to eat but he'd freeze to death, and you'd have heat enough perhaps, but you'd starve to death. Thrift is indeed a virtue; but this is a time of emergency during which it's necessary to buy goods so that somebody'll have money enough to pay us for what we produce. If it's hard for us to get rich by washing one another's shirts, it's certainly impossible for us to make a living by washing our own. It seems wiser to live by spending than to perish by saving.

We are thankful and glad to report a light shower of rain on Sunday. It seems to have done much good to the small grain crops. We would be glad to see rain enough come to soak up the earth and help fill up the wells again, some wells have gone dry, and others are getting low in water.

Mrs. D. D. Glover who has been in the Stanly General hospital for some time is improving we are glad to report, and is expected to be back home soon.

Mack Parker, P. H. Wagoner and wife visited Mrs. R. L. Wagoner Sunday in Salisbury. Mrs. Wagoner's husband, R. L. is working in Kentucky now. She is expecting him home by Christmas.

Mr. and Mrs. David Brown of High Point, visited in the home of Mrs. Brown's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Lowery, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Brandis Talbert who have been living for some time in the Walker farm have moved back over in Stanly, and we wish them happiness and success in their new home.

Mr. and Mrs. Reid Parker of Richfield are having a new dwelling house erected on highway No. 80, just west of Richfield. We wish Mr. and Mrs. Parker a long and happy life in their new home.

COOK GETS HIGHEST PAY

Boise, Idaho—A woman cook on a public works job near here whose name is withheld by the state bureau of highways rates a higher salary than the highest paid engineer in the bureau. She draws 65 cents an hour for skilled labor, and there is no limitation of her hours. Her salary is $9.10 a day or $273 per month.

The Family DOCTOR

by JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.

JUST PLAIN TALK

I have just been listening to a radio program—and, am impressed with the ballyhoo of medical quacks who resort to that method of swindling the sick and afflicted. The average listener perhaps is led to believe that the charlatan is a very eminent scientist who is working daily miracles—almost. He seeks to give that impression most certainly.

Dear reader, did you ever stop to think that the quack can reach millions of folks almost face to face over the radio? The humbug; I listened to last night owns his broadcasting station. He can say or do anything he desires—over his own property! It is too bad that our license system actually abets those who are engaged in swindling the sick.

This man with a voice as pious—

Urges More Livestock On Adjusted Acres

Reductions of cotton and tobacco acreage in North Carolina should naturally lead to the production of more livestock and livestock products for home use by planting the adjusted acres to pasture, legume hays and other necessary livestock feed.

"We do not keep before us the deplorable fact that this State imports more than 25 million pounds of meat annually," says Earl H. Hostetler, in charge of research work in livestock at State College. "If this fact were given its proper importance, we would seize upon the present opportunity to expand our livestock industry. More and better livestock will not only decrease the imports of meat but will furnish a local market for much of our cottonseed meal, soybean oil meal and other high protein feeds that are produced on North Carolina farms. Uses of these feeds at home will increase the fertility of our soils at a rapid rate and do away with a part of the huge fertilizer bill. The growing of hays and other forage will also be good for the land and eradicate the unsightly gullies and eroded hillsides which are a curse to the farm lands of the State."

Hostetler says recent tests by the North Carolina Experiment Station point the way to the production of livestock economically in this state. Much work in feeding animals has been done and the results show how locally grown feeds may be used to produce high quality of livestock products. For example, he says, tests indicate that hard bodied hogs may be produced with ease by balancing the feed; that beef cattle may be maintained and finished on local grasses and home produced grains; that pure bred bulls will improve the quality of beef produced by calves from scrub cows and that lambs may be grown successfully in spite of the stomach worm.

SIX COUNTIES ABLAZE

Forest fires are raging in six different counties of the state and have swept thousands of acres of timberland. Serious reports come from Bertie, Hertford, Northampton, Edgecombe, Warren and Halifax counties, and civil works funds are being drawn upon to combat the flames.

Nagging Pains are WARNING SIGNALS

TEMPORARY pain relief remedies may save you much suffering at the moment, but putting a mask over a warning signal does not clear up the condition it was telling you to avoid.

When periodic pains, due to a weak, run-down condition, distress you, treatment for the cause of the trouble should be started without delay.

Take Cardui to build up against the nagging symptoms of ordinary womanly ailments. It has been in use for over 50 years. So many women praise CARDUI, it must be good to have the widespread use that it has today. Sold at drug stores.
