PREPARING FOR A BIG CATCH

THIS is the first step in catching fish as it's done by the natives of Mexico. The two shown here are spinning the cord which later will be woven, or knitted, into sturdy fish nets—some small and fine-meshed, not unlike those used in chasing butterflies; others meshed like a tennis net and so large that several men in widely separated boats are required to manipulate them. Making these nets is one feature of the fish industry in which women and children can give the head of the house a hand.

In little river-side or coastal villages where fishing is the main business of the day, and the catch is the inhabitants' chief means of livelihood, a series of novel sights are presented to voyagers visiting the country on the fortnightly cruises from New York and California.

Early morning unfolds a shadow-picture of men hastening to the waterfront, scrambling into their battered boats and setting out for the fishing grounds. Mid-day, if all has gone well, lights up a scene in which mounds of fish appear along the shore, glistening in the sun like piles of gleaming armour, and streets are walled with nets stretched on poles like cobwebs hung with dewdrops. And day fades out on interesting close-ups of the villagers repairing old nets or making new, their hands flying like shuttles over the shapeless mass of cords.

Radio Planes Trap Bandits

Leicester, England.—A short-wave radio equipment, one airplane and a fleet of swift police cars recently demonstrated how easily it is to trap and offset the depredations of motor bandits.

A car containing thugs, supposed to have rifled a bank, was given a 10-minute start on the pursuers. They were spotted and trapped within less than half an hour.

For the purpose of demonstration the airdrome was regarded as police headquarters. A description of the car was wireless within 30 seconds the airplane was in the air chasing the bandits, and relaying a description of their flight to the pursuing cars.

Eavesdropping on the police wireless conversations this is what was heard:

"Hullo, police car, police airplane calling! Now over Lutterworth road and have sighted the wanted car proceeding north."

"Hullo, airplane; police car answering. O. K. We will head them off towards Bruntingthorpe."

"Hullo, airplane O. K. now. We have held up and seized."

Ladybugs Placed On Sale In Idaho

Boise, Idaho.—Mrs. Jack Hathaway, believes in making the most of every opportunity.

She recently collected more than two quarts of ladybugs from her garden and then advertised to California orchardists they were for sale.

Can't induce people to saw much wood now, but the old fiddlers are sawing up an awful lot of catgut.

Opinion differs as to the propriety of wearing shorts, but those who have good looking knees seem to believe in it.

Constipation Symptoms Soon Go Away After Use of Black-Draught

Mrs. S. G. Ramey, of Henryetta, Okla., writes that she has taken Theford's Black-Draught about twenty-five years, when needed, and has "found it very good."

"When I have a sour stomach and my mouth tastes bitter, and I feel bilious, sluggish and tired, I will very soon have a severe headache if I don't take something. I have learned to keep off these spells by taking Theford's Black-Draught. Very soon I am feeling fine. I feel that Black-Draught can't be beaten as a family medicine." . . . Home Town Thought

If you fail to help push your home town ahead, other people follow your example, and remain inactive. Thus the power of the community is weakened.

Every time you spend money at home, you sow seeds of prosperity. When you spend money away, those seeds are sown in somebody else's field.

When you advertise certain goods, not merely do people come in to see and buy those goods, but they see other things in the store and buy them.

The public has a tremendous capacity for forgetting things. They have a way of forgetting a store that does not advertise.

If the people could only remember to pay their bills as well as they remember to collect those owed them, business would run along much better.

The people who forget the good old home store when they have money to spend, help make their town a forgotten one on the map.

The business men are studying public relations, but many of them say their wives' relations are all they can attend to now.

BITES AND STINGS

In hot weather, when people are much out of doors, with children playing on the grass, wounds of a varying degree of severity are common. Spider-bites always produce more or less terror for mothers such insects being considered particularly venomous. I can remember when death from some unknown cause was attributed to the sting of a venomous spider. All guess-work.

In these modern times, it is very easy to obtain good professional attention—and it is always the wise thing to do. A small bottle of "Spirit of Ammonia" is a good thing to take along on your picnic; it is a good application for the sting of any flying insect, such as bees, wasps, yellow-jackets, &c. The wound should be kept wet with the ammonia solution, until the pain is gone.

I never advise around an insect sting with any sort of household instrument; you are as likely to spread infection as you are to correct it. We have—or at least I have—revised my ideas of procedure in bites and stings of insects, and I believe I have no regrets with the change. It doesn't do any harm to bathe an insect wound with soap and water, especially if the site be dusty or on a perspiring surface. And then—if you are fortunate to have the KING OF EMERGENCY REMEDIES with you—a bottle of Tincture of IODINE. It is a good application in ALL cases, regardless of their origin. Your doctor will tell you the same, as soon as he arrives—if you call him.

Do you remember when the "family almanac" sagely advised that we remove bee stings by pressing the wound with a watch-key? The crudity—the horror of it! Watches required keys to wind them in those days.

The day of rest has become the day of rush.
