

South's Industry Enlarges Plants

North Carolina Shows $8,000,000 Increase In Permit Capitalization For Six Months

The awarding of contracts for more than $50,000,000 of new industrial plants, additions and modernization work in the south during the last eight months was cited by the Manufacturers Record of Baltimore, as a specific development contributing to an optimistic outlook.

"Another indication of the south's progress out of the depression," said the publication, "has been the increasing number of new business charters issued."

New companies chartered in Louisiana, for example, were said to have set a record, and North Carolina was reported to have shown an $8,000,000 increase in business permit capitalization for the first six months of the year.

"This section," said the Industrial Journal, referring to the south, "has made more rapid recovery than other parts of the country and it is in a better condition than any other section." Other specific developments to substantiate this position include:

Material advances in crop prices and improvement in wholesale trade over the low point of 1932 and 1933, improved car loadings, increased electric power output, a bore active market for real estate, and a large new influx of tourists to Florida, the Carolinas, and other southern states.

Local Man Gets Permit To Make Corn Liquor

R. Lee Mahaley, business man of this city, and C. M. Little, oil distributor in Virginia, have been granted a permit, by the federal alcohol control board, in Washington, D. C., to manufacture pure straight corn liquor.

The applicants, trading as the Old Dixie Distributing company, thus received the first permit in the United States for the manufacture of corn liquor, it is said, and may manufacture as high as 1,275 gallons daily. The plant is located on the Richmond-Petersburg highway five miles south of Richmond. It is indicated that the state of Virginia might purchase the entire output of the concern.

Two new road projects for Rowan county are announced by Ross M. Sigmon, member of the State Highway commission.

One calls for the widening of the highway in front of Catawba college for a distance of several blocks and will make a boulevard of that section. The other project calls for the removal of the parkways in Highway 10 through the northern part of Spencer for a distance of about six blocks, and paving that section in order to make a double width road through the entire town. Both projects are expected to be started at an early date.

372 U. S. Banks Opened Again

Washington.—Three hundred and sixty-two closed national banks with "frozen" deposits of $303,311,000, have been reopened since January, Comptroller of the Currency J. F. T. O'Connor announced.

Twenty with "frozen" deposits of $9,023,000 were reopened in August, O'Connor said.

"As a result of activity by the comptroller's office, the number of licensed national banks had been reduced to 50 on August 31. This represents merely 3.5 per cent of the 1,417 national banks which were unlicensed following the termination of the general banking holiday."

All but seven of the 50 unlicensed banks had received approved plans of reorganization.

"Frozen deposits which will be wholly or partly released by the 43 banks for which plans have been approved amount to $52,450,000. Six of the plans were approved last month.

Incendiarist Is Suspected In Fire

Ship Head Gives Reasons As Basis For Belief Ship Was Fired

New York.—At the investigation into the probable cause of the conflagration which sent nearly two hundred passengers of the ill-fated Morro Castle to an untimely grave three of the officers of the steamer gave testimony before the Federal Investigating body that the fire which resulted in such a human holocaust was of incendiary origin. They agreed that the fire started in a closet in the library or lounge and burned through a panel of the door before spreading throughout the ship. They agreed that a lighted cigarette could not have been responsible in the first instance and are positive that the great ship which now lies off the coast of Asbury Park, N. J. a mass of charred woodwork and steel and its hundreds of human victims in various undertakings establishments, was not struck by lightning. None of these officers could account for the rapidity with which the fire spread throughout the ship.

The chief officer of the ship said that he suspected the fire was of incendiary origin, basing his belief upon the fact that an attempt had been made to fire the boat on its previous voyage.

When, speaking about the earlier fire, Warms said "someone set it," Inspector-General Dickerson N. Hoover of the steamboat inspection service asked "how do you know?"

"I found charred paper on the cargo," he said. The company's formal report of that fire produced at the hearing agreed with the details of the chief officer's story.

Warms said the first word of fire he had was at 2:45 a. m. when the night deck watchman informed him.

"He reported he had seen smoke and fire coming out of ventilators on the portside amidships."

"What did you do then?" Neilson asked.

"I sent the second officer to investigate."

"Then the salon night watchman reported fire in the library."

"Did you leave the bridge," Neilson asked.

"No, sir."

"I sounded the general alarm a few minutes before 3 o'clock."
