National Chamber Report Charges Improper Supervision of Funds

QUIZ CANDIDATES

New steps to assure an overhaul of New Deal laws which it finds objectionable were mapped by industry through two of its biggest organizations—the chamber of commerce of the United States and the National Association of Manufacturers.

In a report to the chamber, one of its special committees held that existing emergency agencies with stupendous spending power operate without proper financial supervision. With "reasonable limitations," the committee suggested "definite and adequate power to control expenditures should be given to the President."

At the same time, the National Association of Manufacturers instituted a poll of all congressional candidates on a number of things about which business is concerned.

Congressional candidates already are receiving a questionnaire from the American Federation of Labor asking their views on continuance of NRA, particularly the troublesome section 7A, and on unemployment insurance and other prospective legislation.

The announcement of the manufacturers association made no direct mention of the A. F. of L. queries, but C. L. Bardo, president of the manufacturers association, said:

"The effort primarily is educational to the voter. It is not a central demand upon all candidates to give a strict accounting to one group by telling how they will vote if elected. This sort of domination by maneuvered minorities is un-American and unwholesome in a Democracy."

The manufacturers' questionnaire asked 12 questions:

- 1—Do you believe congress should resume its full legislative and deliberative powers?
- 2—Do you favor reducing government control of the management of private business?
- 3—Will you work and vote for an early return to balanced governmental budgets?
- 4—Do you believe employees should be free to join or not to

Cardui Helped Lady For Nervousness and Run-Down Condition

"I have taken Cardui several times for weak, run-down condition and it has helped me," writes Mrs. Walter M. Coulon, of Forsyth, Ga. "I was nervous and suffering from a weak condition. There were days when I had to lie down during the day. I sent for six bottles of Cardui, as it had helped me before. Cardui gave me strength, stopped my nervousness and helped me in every way."... Cardui may be just what you need. It can't do you any harm, so why not try it? Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician. $1 a bottle, at drug stores.

Steam Engine Progress Vividly Shown at Fair

join a legitimate labor organization of any sort without coercion from any source?

5—Should an individual be free to sell his own labor individually or collectively, as he and his employer may agree to their mutual satisfaction?

6—Do you believe where collective bargaining exists there should be corresponding collectively responsibility for its exercise.

7—Do you believe in maintaining the constitutional division of power between the federal and state governments?

8—Do you favor awarding governmental contracts to the lowest responsible bidder, in accordance with law, instead of using contracts to compel acceptance by bidders of governmental policies not specifically provided by law?

9—Do you believe the powers of taxation should be used solely for securing revenue for the legitimate functions of government?

10—Do you favor government competition with private business?

11—Do you believe government operations should be placed on a comparable accounting basis, particularly where government competes with private business?

12—Do you believe in creating by law, through such measures as compulsory unemployment insurance, old age pensions, etc., a private right to publicly controlled funds, thus reducing the efforts of individuals to provide for themselves and increasing their willingness to rely on the government for support, thereby aggravating the very evils which such legislation is intended to relieve?

Farmers Are Borrowing Money From Productive Credit Corps

Columbia, S. C.—Farmers of the Third Farm Credit Administration district comprising the States of North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Florida borrowing from production credit association already have repaid over $1,600,000 on their loans, according to a statement issued by Ernest Graham, president of the Production Credit Corporation of Columbia.

A large portion of the repayments have come from the tobacco belts, particularly in Georgia, South Carolina and in the section of North Carolina bordering on the other tobacco belts of North Carolina which opened later are expected to be heavy during the remainder of the month.

Indicating the splendid manner in which the tobacco growers are meeting their obligations to the associations, the Lake City (S. C.) association has collected 87 per cent of its total loans, 222 of the 238 farmers having loans with the associations having made payments totaling $52,684.08. Many of these farmers will have their cotton crop entirely in the clear.

The Marion (S. C.) association has collected about 76 per cent of its total loans already, 125 of the 147 farmers having loans with the association having made payments totaling 73 per cent. The Dillon (S. C.) association has collected about 65 per cent, 114 of the 123 farmer-borrowers from that association having made payments. The Florence (S. C.) association has collected about 60 per cent of its total loans and the Lumberton (N. C.) association about 60 per cent.

Mr. Graham said that the splendid manner in which the farmer-borrowers throughout the tobacco belt are meeting their payments indicates that the faith which the government has shown in cooperative credit organizations by helping the farmers to set up their own lending institutions has not been misplaced and he feels that the farmers of this district are going to make a wonderful record in the repayment of their loans and thus protect their credit standing.

"We are confident," said Mr. Graham, "as a result of the way in which farmers are beginning to repay their loans that the officers of the production credit associations in this district have made sound loans. With the collection season still in its primary stage, borrowers have repaid over $1,600,000 and from specific reports which we are daily receiving, we believe these production credit associations will make 100 per cent collections.

"The farmers, through this cooperative system of production credit are eager to repay their loans in order that their Class B stock as well as the Class A stock of the associations may be maintained at or above par. Farmers repaying their loans promptly are establishing a permanent credit standing with their association and with the Federal Credit Bank which discounts the paper of the associations, which will place them in a position to continue to secure, at low rate of interest, cash with which to meet the expenses of their farming operations."

Keep Poultry Records Advises Dearstyne

Poultrymen who keep records of their flocks will stand a better chance of making a profit in spite of high feed prices, says Roy S. Dearstyne, head of the State College poultry department.

With a well-kept record, the poultryman can find the weak points in his flock management when profits are low and thus determine what to do to remedy the situation.

to save money by doling out small quantities of feed to the birds. Such practice will lower egg production, impair the vitality of the birds, and increase the mortality rate.

True, he said, it is good policy to provide winter grazing in order to cut down on feed costs, but this is advisable because winter grazing is beneficial. Non-beneficial feeds should not be substituted for the higher priced feeds, he warned.

The extension service at State College is offering a complete system of record-keeping free to all poultrymen within the State. Record books will be sent to those who wish them. The books contain sheets in which month-by-month record can be kept.

If the poultrymen will send these sheets back to the college each month, poultry specialists will be glad to figure for them the following data: feed cost per dozen eggs, feed cost per bird, value of eggs produced, return above feed cost, mash and grained consumed, and other valuable pointers, Dearstyne said.

The record book also contains incubation and brooding record forms and an egg record sheet which should be of great advantage to the poultrymen.
