

State Is Worst Labor Offender

Gorman Says It Leads In Discrimination Against Former Strikers

"North Carolina is now the worst state in the union in the matter of discrimination against former textile strikers," declares Francis J. Gorman, vice president of the United Textile Workers of America, who conducted the September nation-wide strike of that organization.

"A checkup shows that we have filed complaints against no less than 106 mills in that state out of a total of 401 in the country and while half of these cases have been settled the percentage in North Carolina is even lower than that."

Mr. Gorman declared he had no criticism of the Textile Labor Relations Board of which Judge W. P. Stacy is chairman but declared that the mills have absolutely repudiated the settlement ordered by the President and that unless there is quick action the union is ready to consider further strikes.

The Stacy board about two weeks ago declared that all strikers who had not engaged in lawless violence should be taken back immediately, but has so far issued no orders.

The board is expected to consider the question further today when Judge Stacy returns from Pittsburgh.

Gorman declared the labor organization will oppose any exchange of American cotton for German textile goods. In this endeavor, at least, the organization will find itself for once fighting shoulder to shoulder with the mills.

Funeral of Mrs. Wiley Klutz of Organ Church

A Faithful Member Gone To Her Reward

The funeral of Mrs. Wiley Klutz took place at Organ church on Sunday afternoon, November 11th, in the presence of one of the largest congregations in its history.

Grandmother Klutz was born December 7, 1843, departed this life November 10, 1934, making her earthly pilgrimage 90 years, 11 months, and 3 days. She was one of a family of 11 children, two sons and 9 daughters, born in Cabarrus County, N. C.

On August 23, 1866, she was married to A. Wiley Klutz, esq., from which union there were born unto them five children, three still living, Z. A. Klutz, of Rockwell, Mrs. L. H. Brown, Washington, D. C., Mrs. L. H. Davis, Birmingham, Ala., and two deceased, Mrs. Calvin Eddleman died April 1933, and George O. Klutz, died July 3, 1931. There were 26 grandchildren and 28 great-grand children.

Mrs. Klutz's long and useful life was spent in various departments of work. During the Civil War was engaged in teaching school quite a number of years, and was held in the greatest esteem by her pupils, whose Christian characters were formed and moulded by her religious example.

Also, she was post-mistress for a number of years. The post office was in her home, which was called "Organ Church."

Also, she was a charter member of the Missionary society of Organ church, which was organized July, 1888, was also treasurer of the same for a long time.

Grandma Klutz was an exceptional fine teacher in the Sunday school and noted for her punctuality, and for which was presented by the Sunday school a new Testament as a reward.

In infancy she was dedicated to the Lord in Holy Baptism in Organ by Rev. S. Rothrock and in early life was confirmed by Rev. Rothrock in a class of catechumens, numbering about 75 in 1848 or 49.

From early life, she was a burning and shining light in the home, in the community, in the church. Her family of godly children bear testimony to her piety and godliness—training them up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord, and all of them have been faithful and true to Christ and the church.

What a blessed life to live! What a power for good! The influence of such a godly life lives long after one is gone away.

For Mrs. Klutz to live was Christ, and to die was gain. She lived an ideal life, a life of faith, a life of conservation and devotion to Christ and his Kingdom, a life of following closely her Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

Her life was a Bible—an Epistle read and known of men, "Well Done, Good and Faithful Servant." It is enough therefore, for us to know that our beloved and faithful ones are infinite happy and that Christ with whom they are, is also present with us, we are after all not very far apart.

—By her former pastor, H. A. Trexler.

Reynolds Is For Bonus Payment

Charlotte.—Senator Josiah W. Bailey will support the President on the bonus issue in the next congress, he states, while Senator Robert R. Reynolds makes it plain that he is "100 per cent for payment of the bonus—more earnestly for it than ever before."

"I shall follow the President on the bonus question," declared Senator Bailey. "It is a financial question and the President is head of the financial program of the nation. I shall follow him on this issue as I have consistently on all other financial matters." The senator readily admitted he would stand by the President and give him his enthusiastic support. During the last session, Senator Bailey upon several occasions brilliantly championed Mr. Roosevelt's views on fiscal matters and led successful debates on those questions.

Senator Reynolds, whose views were also expressed freely, declared in a statement given out in Washington that he felt confident the bonus would be passed by the next congress, "and I do not believe," he said, "that the President when all the facts are presented, will oppose it along the lines as before."

State Will Buy 75 More Busses

Expect Increase In PWA Grant Will Be Made For This Purpose

Raleigh.—An additional grant of PWA funds is expected shortly, which combined with some state funds, will provide another 75 school busses and thus bring the total number of new school busses purchased with federal and state funds this year to 750, LeRoy Martin executive secretary of the State School commission said.

When the original grant was made by the PWA under which it agreed to provide 30 per cent of the cost of buying new school bus chassis to replace busses now in use, it was supposed to be large enough to buy 750 new bus chassis. But owing to the later decision of the school commission to buy some 17 and 19 foot chassis in addition to the 450 standard length of 15 foot chassis, only 675 new chassis in all were purchased.

Now that all of these have been bought, however, it has been found that enough state funds are still on hand to buy about 30 more standard length chassis trucks. But the state needs at least 75 more school trucks. So Mr. Martin went to Washington to confer with PWA officials to see if they would not authorize another grant for 45 more school trucks, so that the original total could be brought up to 75. On his return here, Mr. Martin was confident that the additional grant from the PWA will be forthcoming and that as a result the state will be able to get 75 more trucks and bring the total of new busses up to 750.

All of the 450 standard trucks purchased several months ago have already been assembled, sent to the various county schools systems, C. F. Gaddy, in charge of school transportation for the school commission said.

Sabre Rattling Heard In Europe

France And Germany In Armament Race For Another Conflict

Paris.—The sabres are again being rattled in Europe. Now comes the French finance minister to the front demanding another three hundred and seventy-six million francs to be spent upon armament and the excuse to the French people is that Germany has been preparing for military operations for some time past and that she is now more powerful than she was in 1914 the year the great war broke out, that the Hitler machine has now an organized army of over half a million trained soldiers and the French minister declares that no time should be lost in giving the French minister of war all the money he names in order that France may be fully prepared to hold its own against any German onslaught that may be made.

It is also announced that Japan is demanding full naval equality with Great Britain and the United States notwithstanding her previous agreement to accept a lesser tonnage. There is no doubt in the minds of anyone who is familiar with Japanese diplomacy that the Nippon government will stand pat in her latest attitude. Japan is generally regarded as an artful dodger when it comes to diplomatic games and is equal to measuring intellects with the best of the European, American or Asiatic statesmen.

Fertilizing Value Of Cottonseed Meal

A ton of cotton seed has approximately the same fertilizer ingredients as 1,053 pounds of cottonseed meal, says C. B. Williams, head of the agronomy department at State College.

But when meal is used as a source of nitrogen in applying a complete fertilizer to a crop, the yield is usually 10 per cent higher, he says than when the nitrogen is obtained from cotton seed.

Therefore, Williams says, growers will usually find it profitable to fertilize with meal rather than with seed, though seed can be used when applied properly.

On an average, the meal will contain 5.8 per cent nitrogen, 2.8 per cent phosphoric acid, and 1.8 per cent potash, while the seed will contain 3 per cent nitrogen, 1.4 per cent phosphoric acid, and 1.2 per cent potash.
