Making The Home More Livable

With End-Lamps for the Davenport

By Jean Prentice

Did you ever notice how your family or guests gravitate toward the davenport when entering the living room? They usually do.

So it's really not surprising how much pleasure and livableness can be secured by adding, as perfect complements to the davenport, good lamps—properly placed!

Like an artist with a pallet of paints, a home maker with a davenport, lamps and end tables, can create a balanced arrangement that is beautiful to the eye—and more than that—good to the eye from the standpoint of lighting.

How to go about it when one's davenport is placed against a wall is illustrated in the accompanying sketch.

Although the lamp arrangement looks casually and gracefully simple, it embodies several technically correct things over which a lighting specialist would nod his head in approval.

To begin with, the lamps (quite modish as twins!) are just the right height for this arrangement. Two 60-watt bulbs in each lamp insure adequate light. The shades are open at the top and sufficiently opaque to avoid undue brightness and glare even when both bulbs in a lamp are in use for reading, sewing, or studying.

Since the end tables in this living room are relatively low, the lamps selected are tall in order to send a sufficient spread of light on the book to be read beside it. However, if the end tables used were higher, the eye would catch raw glaring light from beneath the lamp shades.

Many of the better lamps of course have adjustable upper stems and movable sockets, allowing for change in height or spread of light.

Bridge or floor lamps, of adjustable types like those sketched in the center, are second choice for this davenport arrangement. They should be placed at either end, the former with a 60 or 75-watt bulb in each lamp and the latter with two 60 or 75-watt bulbs in each one.

If your davenport, however, stands away from the wall, well, that's another—a coming story.

Bible Sunday Endorsed By Governor Ehringhaus

Raleigh.—Governor John C. B. Ehringhaus urges upon the churches of North Carolina an observance of Universal Bible Sunday on next Sunday, December 9.

The four hundredth anniversary of the publication of Martin Luther's translation of the Bible will be commemorated in thousands of churches within America and in foreign countries on next Sunday, according to a statement issued by the American Bible Society, under whose direction Universal Bible Sunday is promoted, and through whose missionary activities the Bible is circulated in more than forty countries in close to two hundred languages.

In urging the observance of Universal Bible Sunday Governor Ehringhaus says: "I am of course interested in the commemoration of the four hundredth anniversary of the publication of Martin Luther's translation of the Bible and the work which is being done to carry its teaching in the lives of our people. The efforts of the American Bible Society in directing the attention of church-goers to the value of the Bible is to be commended and I am in sympathy with the observance of Universal Bible Sunday."

He was 20 years old and the second son of Mr. Thomas L. Tomlin and the late Mrs. Ella Belle Reid Tomlin who died little more than a year ago.

Reid and his brother Charles 17, and J. H. Campbell 16 were hunting on the Costin Murdock place about 3 quarters of a mile from his home. He and J. H. Campbell were standing on a brush pile watching for a rabbit and when they jumped off the pile to head off a rabbit their feet tripped and both fell, the left barrel of each gun being fired simultaneously. It was not determined which caused the fatal wound. The entire load of shot from one gun entered his thigh severing the large artery in the upper thigh. He was rushed to the Davis hospital but died about 5 hours later from loss of blood and shock.

He is survived by his father, two brothers, James A and Charles H. Tomlin and one sister, Miss Maddie Lee Tomlin, of Cool Spring.
