

Education Class Holds Banquet

The Elementary Education class at Catawba College, of which Mrs. T. E. Johnston is instructor, held their fifth annual banquet on Saturday evening at the college honoring the teachers from the City schools who cooperated in the work of practice teaching. They were assisted in receiving by Dr. and Mrs. H. R. Omwake and Dr. and Mrs. J. C. Hadley.

With "A Century of Progress in Education in North Carolina" as the central theme, the invitations, decorations and place cards displayed this motif. Red, white and blue streamers, were hung from the chandeliers and a large North Carolina flag was draped from the ceiling. The banquet was lovely with its tall red candles and beautiful red roses. The place cards were quills, representing pens used in olden days, and the programs represented the old time albums, fastened with a clasp.

Miss Martha Forney Bolick, toastmistress, greeted the guests and Miss Neely McCubbins welcomed the teachers, to which Mrs. Fred Henry from Henderson school responded most graciously. Each member of the class gave a short toast to the teacher who assisted her with her practice teaching. Miss Rose Catherine Lyerly welcomed the principals from the city schools and Miss Hazel McSwain welcomed the members of the Alumni who were present for the occasion. Miss Elizabeth Belt, of the class of 1933, responded. In his usual stimulating and enthusiastic manner, Dr. Omwake spoke especially to the class membership and to the Alumni, encouraging them to higher endeavor.

The main feature of the program was a short skit, written and presented by the members of the Elementary Education Class, entitled "Light Shines on Education." Miss Ruth Andrew represented Light and she described very vividly how much progress Education has made in North Carolina in the last century. To illustrate how backward Education was during the tragic years following the war, a typical schoolroom of that day was presented. Miss Vivian Hoffman represented the staff, untrained school teacher, typical of that day. A scene in a modern school was then presented to show the progress North Carolina has made in her school system. Miss Dorothy Gordon was the modern school teacher representing Miss Berry de Nena. The members of the class were her pupils.

The guest speaker for the evening was Miss Juanita McDougald, from the State Department of Education, Raleigh, N. C. The theme of her talk was "My Treasure Chest," in which she showed how various incidents stand out in the life of a young woman and contribute toward strong fine character formation. Miss Deletta Honeycutt and Miss Canille Templeton furnished sprightly music for the session.

The teachers, principals and members of the Alumni who enjoyed the occasion were: Misses Meatta Bringle, Mary Moyle, Anne Sherwood, Virginia Goodman, Mary Emma Wetmore, Betty Bennett Henderson, Ruth Pierce, Mary Dunham, Jane Honeycutt, Annie Bostias, Jessie Edwards, Ives Smith, Annie Lamb, Elizabeth Belt, Mary Farabee, Catherine Brown, Helen Murph, Lillian Wright and Lena Boley, Mesdames Rhea Goodman, M. J. Ragland, Franklin Pratt, O. C. McQuage, Fred Henry, Messers. L. N. Hand, Bill Bost, Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Johnston.

Summer Session Will Open On June Eighth

Plans are rapidly being completed for the tenth annual summer session of Catawba college. The first summer session will open June eighth and close July the seventeenth, while the second session will open July the twentieth and end August the twenty-eight.

The faculty of the sessions will be composed of the regular Catawba faculty and specialists from the public school field. In this group are Miss Nina De Berry, principal Salisbury city schools, Miss Frances B. Marsh, and Mr. Walter R. Schaff, principal of Maiden public schools.

Courses of instruction include subjects required for all types of certificates and for college degree requirements. Courses in literature, social sciences, and music will be offered as usual.

Judging from the many inquiries that Professor Hadley has received, the enrollment for the two sessions will be very satisfactory. Inquiries have been received from New York, Delaware, Pennsylvania, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Florida. Many students from other colleges are expected for the sessions, as well as teachers.

Senior Play In Final Stages Of Rehearsal

Variety is the keynote of the Senior play, "The Queen's Husband." The old description "from the ridiculous to the sublime" is remarkably portrayed in the role of the King. As he changes his mien from the checker-playing figurehead to the true ruler of his people the audience will be held spellbound.

The production staff has a very difficult job on its hands, especially those concerned with properties and sound effects. When the revolutionist uprising begins and the firing opens, the bugle calls whistles and drumbeats, will add atmosphere to the tense situation of the plot making the horror and bloodshed more realistic. The setting remains the same throughout the play. It is the private office of King Eric VIII in the palace of a fictitious kingdom located somewhere in Europe.

Mr. Sherwood wrote "The Queen's Husband" as a satire on the American visit of Queen Marie, of Roumania, several years ago. The comic element is centered in the character of the King who is dominated by his wife's fancy . . . until he . . . Well the best thing that can be told now is that the play will be presented in dress rehearsal on Friday night, May 22, for the Blue Masque members and will be ready for public presentation on Monday, May 25th. Don't fail to see it!

Lady Took Cardui When Weak, Nervous

"I can't say enough for Cardui if I talked all day," enthusiastically writes Mrs. L. H. Caldwell, of Statesville, N. C. "I have used Cardui at intervals for twenty-five years," she adds. "My trouble in the beginning was weakness and nervousness. I read of Cardui in a newspaper and decided right then to try it. It seemed before I had taken half a bottle of Cardui I was stronger and was soon up and around."

Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.
