

Government Begins Issuing Bonus Bonds On June 16th

TO GET CASH, TURN BONDS OVER TO P. O.; CHECK WILL BE SENT

World War veterans will begin getting their bonus bonds Tuesday, June 16. It is expected that the first week's distribution will cover about 60 per cent of all veterans entitled to the bonus. After that the bonds will keep coming along as rapidly as the treasury and the post-office department can get them out of Washington.

Here is the procedure to be followed:

A veteran will receive his bonds by registered mail. They will be in $50 denominations, and odd amounts will come with them in the form of checks. For example, if a man has $525 coming to him, there will be 10 bonds and a check for $25.

The registered package will be delivered only to the addressee in person. If he is not known to the postmaster of his town or to the carrier on his R. F. D. route, he must be identified. If he wants to turn his bonds into cash, he surrenders them at the post-office through which they came and gets an interim receipt. If the post-office is not one of the 241 designated as a paying office, the bonds are forwarded to the nearest one so designated, where checks will be drawn and mailed to the veterans.

The bonds bear interest at the rate of 3 per cent a year, but no interest is payable on any bonds redeemed prior to June 15, 1937.

Through a radio broadcast Saturday, June 13, Postmaster General Farley will give veterans all necessary information about the payment of the bonds.

PLANE FIRE HAZARD REDUCED

London—After months of research British scientists have conquered the boggy of the air lines—fire. An automatic fire extinguisher has been perfected which makes it almost impossible for a machine to catch fire, either in the air or after impact with the ground.

"Met" Star on Air Program

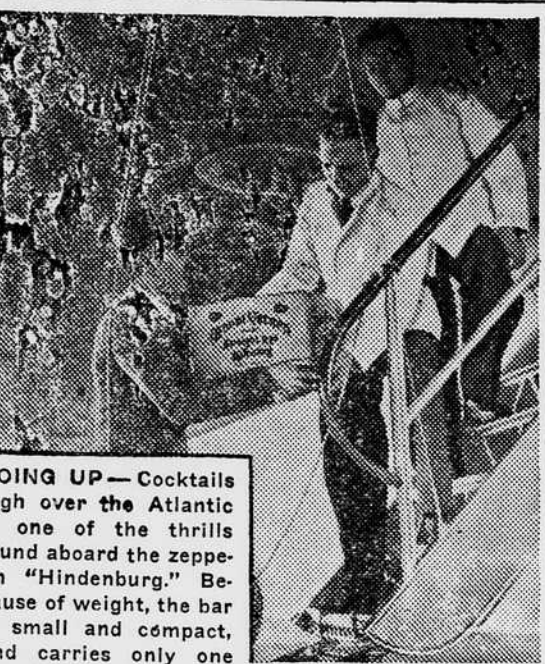

Marion Telva, noted for over a decade as a prima donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company, will be heard in her first broadcast in some time as the featured soloist of the Magic Key program to be heard over an NBC Network at two o'clock Sunday afternoon, June 7th. Marion Telva was born in St. Louis, Missouri, worked through the training school of church and concert activities, and made her debut as soloist in the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra prior to her engagement by the Metropolitan in 1920.

Featured also with Marion Telva will be Joseph Knitzer, noted concert violinist; Frank Black with his NBC Symphony Orchestra, and numerous other outstanding bits of radio entertainment.

How Cardui Helps Women To Build Up

Cardui stimulates the appetite and improves digestion, helping women to get more strength from the food they eat. As nourishment is improved, strength is built up, certain functional pains go away and women praise Cardui for helping them back to good health. . . Mrs. C. E. Ratliff, of Hinton, W. Va., writes: "After the birth of my last baby, I did not seem to get my strength back. I took Cardui again and was soon sound and well. I have given it to my daughters and recommend it to other ladies." . . Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

GIVE RATES OF SOIL CONSERVING PAYMENTS

The average rate of the soil-conserving payment in Rowan county under the 1936 farm program has been fixed at $8 per acre, according to Dean I. O. Schaub, of State College.

This rate applies to general soil-depleting crops other than cotton, tobacco, and peanuts, the dean said and will vary with individual farms.

The general rate for each county has been determined according to the average productivity of general soil-depleting crops in the county.

The rate for an individual farm will be above or below the county rate in the same proportion that the productivity of general soil-depleting crops on the farm is above or below the county average.

The general productivity of each farm will be based upon the average past yields of soil-depleting crops other than cotton, tobacco, and peanuts.

For tobacco and cotton the rate of payment have been fixed at five cents a pound on the average tobacco and cotton yields of the farm. The rate for peanuts is 1 1-4 cents a pound.

The soil-conserving payment will be made for shifting land from soil depleting into soil-conserving crops this year.

A farmer who takes high productive land out of cash crops and puts it into soil-conserving crops is making a bigger sacrifice than the farmer whose land is low in productivity.

For this reason, the dean explained, the rates of payment have been based on the productivity of the land.

WOOLERS MUST BE HONEST

Bucharest—Rumania has cracked down on the lover who "swanks" in the new penal code. Anyone who seeks to win the love of a girl by pretending to be richer than he really is or falsely claiming a title is liable to three months imprisonment under the code, even if he really intends to marry the girl.

How to Cut Relief Cost

The state of New Jersey turned the burden of relief back to the state's municipalities a few weeks ago. One of the first results has been to cut down the burden upon the taxpayers, in some instances to a degree that is positively amazing.

In the city of Hoboken, for example, there were 2,145 cases on the relief rolls, representing 7,344 persons, before the city took the relief job from the state. Within a month, this number was reduced to about 90 cases, representing fewer than 360 individuals. And there have been no food riots or public disturbances of any kind as a result.

Harry L. Barck, Hoboken's Overseer of the Poor, reports that all he did was to cut the "chiselers" off the relief rolls, by returning to old and tried principles in making the poor show convincing proof of their inability to get work and their need of aid: "Under the free handed system," he says, "they didn't have any incentive to get out and scratch for a living."

Of course, there are many folks

Gambling is Fun Rules Court

The United States Court of Claims Monday dismissed a wealthy Southern expatriate's suit for a refund of taxes paid on gambling losses in France, ruling that he had played not for profit, but for fun.

In seeking a refund of $8,396 on losses of $41,980 sustained playing jeu de fer at Cannes and Deauville, J. B. Whitehead, member of an Atlanta family and who since has died, testified he gambled to win money to meet increasing expenses, "including alimony to two wives and a pending breach of promise suit for half a million dollars.

The court's decision described Whitehead as "an individual who had inherited a great fortune who had never earned any money, except for a short time when he was in the Navy in the World War." It added that he "led a life of leisure as a so-called sportsman" in Paris from 1921 until 1935.

During those 14 years, the court found, he had spent six weeks each season at Cannes and Deauville, and while "not a professional gambler" frequently had "indulged in that alluring pastime, but was never a winner when he left the casino."

"The decedent (Whitehead) had made a study of the game and knew that the odds were against him, but he pitted his luck against the odds and lost," the decision read.

Whitehead's testimony that he had played for a profit to meet mounting expenses "in a game where he had consistently lost for years and realized the odds were against him," the court's decision declared, "overtaxes our credulity and stretches credence to the breaking point. . . ."

"Profit is not what usually motivates the continued playing; it is the thrill and exhilaration which are inherent in taking a chance."

who think that to limit relief to the actual necessities of those who are really in need is a hard-hearted inhuman procedure. But Mr. Barck who has been forty years on his job in Hoboken, takes a different view.

"I'm in favor of giving the old American pioneer spirit a chance to assert itself, and it looks to me as if it were working now," he says. "These people must have gone out and found enough work to keep themselves from starving or they'd be back here asking for relief."
