A BURGULAR IS SHOT ---DOWN IN SAVANNAH

Robber of Belk-Harry Store is Wounded in Flight

Chief of police Frank Miller received word yesterday from convict camp No. 2 of Savannah, that a negro whose name was not given was shot while trying to make his escape. The letter continued that the latter had been arrested and sent to the Penitentiary for a term of one year upon some small charge. While a prisoner for only a few days he made a break for freedom and was shot down without serious injury. The Detectives were unable to extract a confession from him, but to the officer J. B. Davis, he told a story of a robbery in Salisbury about two weeks ago.

It is recalled that the store of Belk-Harry was broken into and a quantity of goods stolen. The thieves undressed and changed clothes and shoes, leaving their duds on the floor. They left about four blocks off, they deposited one case of goods and left out. No trace of them ever developed. Thru the faith humbugs, bloodhounds were after them soon after the robbery was discovered. Chief Miller offered a reward of 25.00 and Mr. Davis wrote an eloquent letter for it. Mr. Miller will send for his men and he will be brought back here for trial. The case can not be heard until the next term of court.

Man Stands Upright After Death
Mr. J. M. Maupin, of this city has just received a letter from his mother in Roanoke, Va. telling him of the strange incident.

Mr. Edwin Carper, a prominent hardware merchant of Roanoke, Va. Mrs. Carper heard a shriek from her bath room and upon entering found her husband standing on a register with his hand touching an electric button. His mouth and eyes wide-open---dead. She attempted to move him and was herself thrown across the room by the electric shock.

Just 36 years ago---Capt Newman Laid Dynamite on his breast and touched off the fuse.

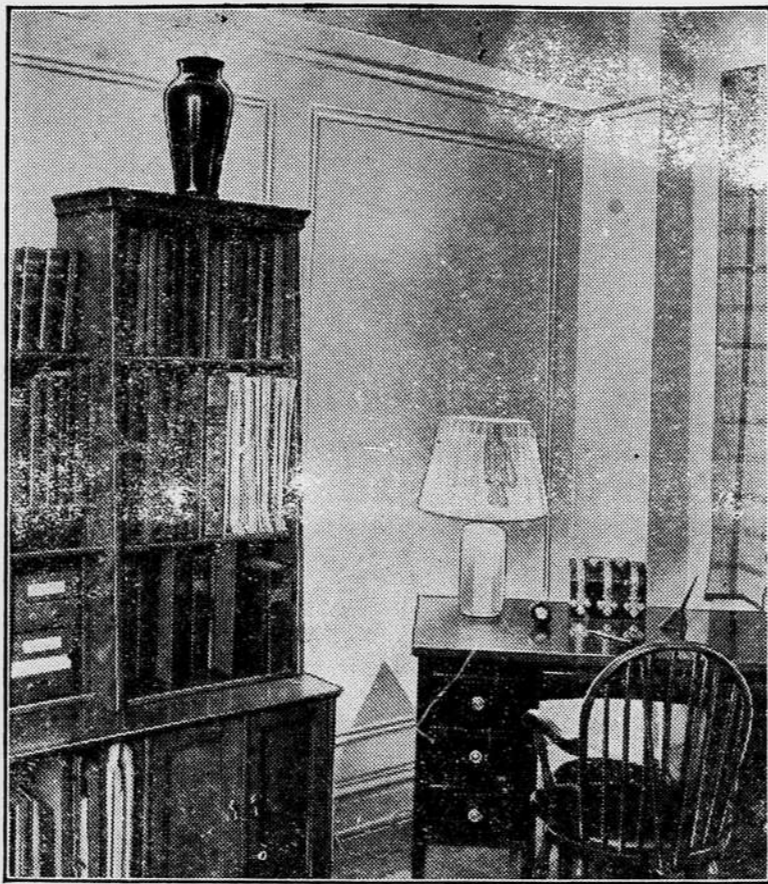

"Life is not worth the living" these were the last words of the late Capt. Joseph J. Newman, who took his own life April 17th, 1900 as related at that time in the April 18th issue of the Salisbury Daily Truth. He had frequently threatened to commit suicide while in a condition of melancholia, no attention was paid to it, however, it having been so often and the matter was no further thought of until yesterday morning when he was missing from Gold Hill.

The following are some excerpts from the diary of a suicide---quote---"The fates are against me" 1900 "The dawns open to me void of life, light, home and comfort and continues so for months."

Ever Make Lights From Vases? It's Worth Trying!

By Jean Prentice

Vases make charming decorative lighting units when wired and equipped with 100-watt bulbs. The interiors of the vases must be pure white, of course. Some stores carry them already wired. The effect produced is charming indeed.

WE hear so much about indirect lighting nowadays. Architects and decorators who strike for soft, pleasing effects invariably incorporate it into their plans and designs by means of built-in coves and panels.

A very simple and effective way to achieve lighting of this type is by means of ordinary vases. That is, ordinary vases that are given a different sort of treatment. Let me tell you about it. It's really quite simple, and costs a mere trifle.

Must Harmonize With Furnishings

The vases are selected to harmonize with the decorative scheme of the room, then wired to accommodate a 100-watt bulb. Some of them come ready-made in this way, and may be obtained at most department stores and specialty shops handling objects of this kind.

Should you decide to use an old vase and do the wiring yourself, or have the work done for you, be sure that you get vases that are white on the inside, so that they will properly reflect, and not absorb the light. The small hole through which the wire runs from the lamp socket to the wall plug or convenience outlet should be drilled not at the bottom of the vase, but at the side, about an inch or so from the bottom, so that the fixture will rest on an even base. A small reflector attached to the socket inside the base will throw more light upward and onto the ceiling, where it will be reflected in all directions. (Better have the wiring done by an electrical expert unless you are quite experienced at this sort of thing.)

Results Should Be Checked

Light thus obtained is very decorative in character, and provides soft general illumination. I have seen as many as four in a room, mounted on bookcases and tables where they couldn't glare into anyone's eyes, and the result was really something to be thought about.

Of course, even the best of decorative lighting effects must be aided by light of sufficient amount from floor and table lamps, and the general result checked by a light meter to make certain that there is enough illumination for such severe eye tasks as reading and sewing. Among the advantages of supplementary decorative lighting such as is obtained from lighted vases is that the illumination in the room becomes more flexible, and may be adapted to the changing moods and requirements of the family.

Everyday Cooking Miracles

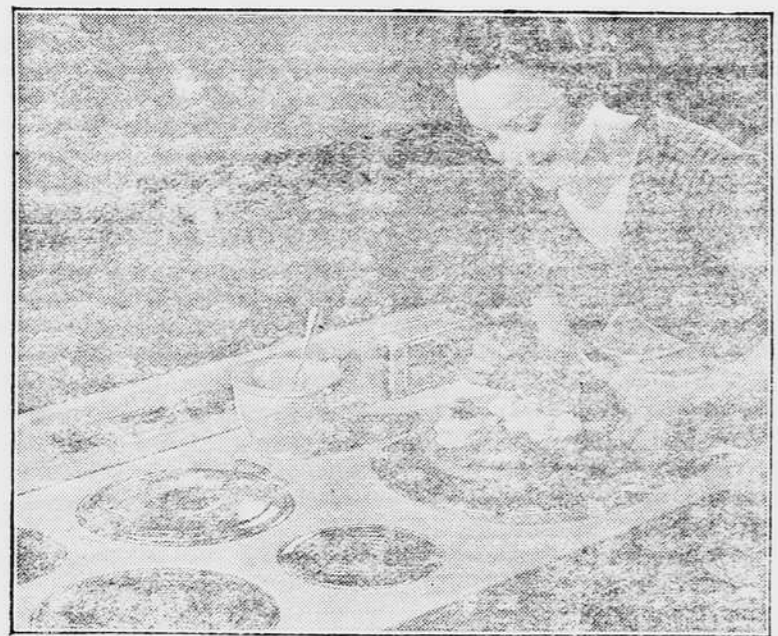

BY VIRGINIA FRANCIS

Director Hotpoint Electric Cookery Institute

We think Webster's made a terrible mistake. He tells us all about strawberry tomatoes, strawberry spinach, and strawberry sunburn, but not once (at least not in our volume) does he mention strawberry shortcake!

Now, if we were asked for definitions of strawberry shortcake they'd probably go something like this "the

It's not only a simpler task to put a shortcake into the cold, unpreheated electric oven, but you'll find your shortcake the best ever! It has a finer texture, it is taller than ever before and it is a beautiful golden brown--thanks to the draftless, heat-controlled and moisture-controlled construction of the oven. The slow rising oven temperature causes the most super-elegant dessert of the whole summertime." "a sandwich patterned after the best biscuits you ever ate put together with seeds of fresh, juice-dripping red strawberries," "the only dessert Uncle Zeke recalls for a second helping," etc. Isn't yours among them?

Start in Cold Oven

Since it's been so unanimously decided that strawberry shortcake is just about the "berries," let's pool our pet shortcake ideas. One ardent shortcake promoter tells us to dress them up like this: Drop huge spoonfuls of whipped cream on top of the shortcake and then plunk a great big, unstemmed strawberry on each "bed" of whipped cream. Another highly recommends "individualizing" the shortcake, while our contribution to the whole of shortcakedom smacks of all that's easy, quick and excitingly new in the field. We recommend starting shortcake to bake in a cold, unpreheated oven--a feature of this new automatic electric range. You know how easy it is to forget to preheat the oven? Well, the new electric range has fixed that as well as hundreds of other cooking snares and pitfalls.

shortcake ingredients to "act" gradually and thoroughly. Here's the recipe for making "miracle" shortcake--a shortcake so delicious, so easy to make that you won't have to define it; you'll just want to devour it!

Strawberry Shortcake

2 cups flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon sugar
3/4 to 1 cup butter
3/4 cup milk

Mix dry ingredients and sift twice. Work in butter with pastry mixer fork, or finger tips, and add milk gradually. Toss mixture on floured board and divide in two parts. Pat roll out and put half in round tin. Spread lightly with melted butter and place other half of dough on top. Place in cold electric oven. Turn switch to Bake, set Temperature Control for 475°, and bake approximately 15-20 minutes. When baked, split shortcake and spread with softened butter. Put together with sweetened, crushed strawberries. Serve with whipped cream.
