CHARL ORMOND WILLIAMS
President of National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Inc.

Eight Girl Guides from France have been enjoying a visit to Camp Edith Macy near Briarcliff Manor, New York. In the group were girls from England, one Spanish representative and many Americans explaining to each other the techniques of their own organizations. The French girls, whose trip was financed by the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, was in charge of Mlle. Marguerite Marie Roy, nurse. The group visited Chicago to study housing and went to Philadelphia, Washington and New York, where they studied the markets, the Medical Center, Jones Beach and Christodora House. Camp Edith Macy is a training center for Girl Scouts.

Now that Mrs. Felicia M. Padon, primary instruction supervisor, has been able to construct, equip and furnish a model school reading room and library for $30, it seems quite likely that every elementary school can be supplied with its important educational feature. The demonstration was made at the Bagely Training School, which is the teacher training laboratory of the Northeastern Teachers' College at Tahlequah, Oklahoma. The model reading room contains six tables, twenty-four chairs, window seats, one stereoscope rack, four

Lady's Painful Trouble Helped By Cardui

Why do so many women take Cardui for the relief of functional pains at monthly times? The answer is that they want results such as Mrs. Herbert W. Hunt, of Hallsville, Texas, describes. She writes: "My health wasn't good. I suffered from cramping. My pain would be so intense it would nauseate me. I would just drag around, so sluggish and 'do-less.' My mother decided to give me Cardui. I began to mend. That tired, sluggish feeling was gone and the pains disappeared. I can't praise Cardui too highly because I know it helped me." ... If Cardui does not help YOU, consult a physician.

bookcases and one magazine rack. The decorations were done largely by students.

I have read with great interest of the initiative and progress of the women of Talladega, Alabama, who organized the first women's Chamber of Commerce in the United States. Other groups have followed their lead and are doing excellent work. The Talladega women, under the guidance of Mrs. Ida E. Elliott, president of their organization, are doing for women what the men's organizations are doing for men. The women stress building their home city from an educational, health and artistic standpoint.

Action is what the women behind the peace movement need, Mrs. Angela Booth says. She was at the International Peace Month gathering of the National Council of Women in Australia and suggested that women should make themselves such a power that the governments would have to listen to them. She even hinted that a world-wide demonstration by women for peace would help.

The Garden of the Nations at Rockefeller Center, New York, has its own bees, 20,000 of them, sent on from Ohio, which have a hard time battling the wind currents. The "Keeper of the Bees" is Miss Caroline Hood, hostess of the gardens, who says the bees are there to pollinize the garden's fruit trees.

E. H. Hillis, Manager Local Sterchi Store

E. H. Hillis, an experienced man in the furniture business, who has been located at Nashville, Tenn., for the past five years, has arrived in Salisbury to aid in the arrangements for the opening of the local branch of the Sterchi Brothers furniture store, and will be the manager here.

Mr. Hillis has been with the Sterchi firm, said the south's largest furniture dealers with a number of stores in several states, for a number of years. Prior to that time, he was in Charlotte and Durham with the Southern Factories Corporation, which conducted six furniture stores in the two Carolinas. He is a native of Texas, but has lived in this section of the country for a number of years.

"I am very fond of piedmont North Carolina, and hope that I may live here the rest of my life," he says. A native of Texas, he now prefers the rolling piedmont area.

In Nashville, Mr. Hillis was a member of the Kiwanis club, and was a member of the board of directors, as well as active in civic and church affairs. He is a member of the American Legion; is a Baptist; is married and the family includes three children. He is making his home at 327 Mocksville avenue.

The Salisbury store to be opened by Sterchi Brothers is located at 124 East Innes street. Extensive remodeling and renovations are being made now, and when completed the store will be one of the most attractive and modern in this entire area. A large stock of merchandise, which includes everything for the home and numerous other items, will be carried.

For opening announcement, read advertisement in this issue.

Destroy Cotton Stalks Before Winter Sets In

Every day that cotton stalks are left standing in the field after picking is completed increases the possibility of boll weevil infestation next year.

Weevils feed on the stalks, and the longer they are allowed to feed, the stronger they become and the better chance they have of surviving the winter, said C. H. Brannon, extension entomologist at State College.

But if the stalks are cut and plowed under early, the weevils will be hungry and emaciated by the time winter sets in and they will have but little chance of living until spring, Brannon continued.

It is especially important that stalks be destroyed before the first killing frost, at the least. Destroy them sooner if possible, Brannon urged.

Cotton opened early over most of the State, and this is an ideal season for early picking and early destruction of the stalks.

Brannon emphasized that by destruction he means cutting and plowing under. Never burn the stalks, as burning destroys plant food that should be left in the soil.

He also pointed out that plowing under the stalks is a good farm practice even where there are no weevils, as the stalks will rot under the ground and add organic matter to the soil.

In view of this fact, plowing under stalks for boll weevil control is really no extra trouble, as it should be done anyway by all good cotton farmers.

To get the best results in weevil control, he added, whole communities should cooperate. If one grower leaves his stalks standing, weevils from his fields may infest his neighbor's land.

"Smoke Camels for Digestion's Sake"

"AN EXPLORER needs good digestion," says Sir Hubert Wilkins. "Camels bring me a sense of well-being."

COLLEGE GIRL, Miss J. O'Neill, says: "Camels make food taste better and aid digestion." Camels help the flow of digestive fluids ... increase alkalinity.
