

North State Baseball Clubs Promise Hard-Fought Season

(From the Pioneer)
Catawba, Lenoir - Rhyne, Elon, Look Good As Spring Season Opens

INDIANS TRAIN

By Paul Caldwell

Salisbury, March 11—North State conference schools, still groggy from one of the best and most interesting basketball races in many years, begin their first week of baseball drills with a feeling of optimism prevailing around the entire circuit. The North Staters have produced some powerful baseball clubs during the past four years, and 1937 will be no exception. Big Five teams, non-conference foes, semi-pro clubs and out-of-state outfits have found teams from the little North State league rich in diamond talent, and loaded with surprises. They are regarding the North Staters with far more respect than in past seasons. Invading teams from across the Mason-Dixon line find very little difference between the big fivers and the North Staters as far as baseball talent and ability is concerned. The coming season looms as another banner year for the seven members who are apparently battling in the last stages of the present North State conference. The organization of the new Carolinas-Virginia conference, which embraces liberal arts schools in three states, will eliminate High Point, A. C. C., Western Carolina, and Appalachian. The first two schools are ineligible, because they do not have football teams, while the latter schools are both teachers colleges. Perhaps it is too early to make predictions, but it is a known fact that Elon, Catawba and Lenoir-Rhyne are causing no little comment as the mentors begin their early season drills. The Quakers from Guilford college boast of one of the best pitching corps in the league, and trust Virgil Yow at High Point to unveil another good nine from his experienced band of Panther's. Coach Gordon Kirkland's defending conference champions from Catawba college look like another powerful outfit as the popular mentor begins to experiment with his material. Five men, including two good pitchers, a shotstop, and two outfielders must be replaced, but the Tribe is finding a great deal of consolation in the large number of new recruits. Coach "Peahead" Walker faces the problem of replacing nine graduated lettermen, but he has Paul Royce, catcher, Captain Bob Fowler second baseman, Bullock Shelton, and Edwards returning for another season. The grand old man of North Carolina coaches has had to rebuild many times during his ten year stay at Elon, and his teams have always developed into first division clubs. Last year's race was close throughout the season with the Catawba Indians winning eight straight games before they stumbled across Peahead Walker and his Christians, the nemesis of the Tribesmen for several years. The Christians licked the Tribe four straight times, while the Tribe took revenge on Lenoir-Rhyne, handing their traditional rivals four consecutive defeats. However it was a 3-2 victory for Lenoir-Rhyne over Elon that gave Catawba the 1936 title. Good pitching staffs were the chief assets of the North Staters during the 1936 season, and graduation has caused very few weaknesses in these departments for the coming year. Probably the greatest losses among the pitchers last year were Lefty Briggs of Elon and big Dave Robinson, the 215 pound giant of Catawba. But there is still plenty of hurling talent to be found among the North State entries, and the newcomers will no doubt fill the gaps. Youth needs a chance for self-expression, says a writer. Yes, give the youth a chance for expression and you will never be able to get the floor away from him.

Davie Man Is Only Dissenter; Expect Senate Approval

Measure Will Go to Senate for Concurrence in the Amendments; Program Will Cost $16,000,000.

Raleigh — The House has passed 97 to 1 the old-age assistance and child aid security bill and returned it to the Senate for concurrence in amendments. Grant of Davie voted against the proposal while Davis of Hyde, was paired against it after voting in the negative. The house adopted a number of amendments described as merely clarifying and the measure was expected to receive speedy senate approval and become law as it passed the upper division recently with only Senator Bell, of Mecklenburg voting against it. It is estimated the program will cost $16,000,000 for the biennium 1937-39. Old-age assistance up to $30 monthly, including federal funds, and child aid of $18 for the first needy child and $12 for each additional child up to a maximum of $65 monthly are provided as benefits.

Modern Women

Crown Princess Juliana of Holland, recent bride of Prince Bernhard zu Lippe-Biesterfeld, received a novel wedding gift from the women of Rotterdam. It is a carpet in the weaving of which women of all stations in life had a part. A committee took entire charge of the plan. When word of the proposed bridal gift got about among the women of that city, many begged to help and finally it was decided to permit some to contribute foot cushions to match the carpet as there was not enough work on the carpet itself for all of them to do. A document of special interest to women is that of Senate Document No. 319 recently printed. Dr. Emma Wold prepared this material which is the first survey of the equality status of women in this country under the civil, political and industrial laws of the Federal Government. Also, of the states individually. It was done at the request of the Sixth International Congress of American States. From the survey one may see exactly where our women stand in our struggle for equality before the law. They have women acting as station masters in the Soviet Union. One of them, a member of the staff which is composed entirely of women, is Miss Claudia Mironova who is considered an expert traffic manager. New York State club women have been making a pilgrimage to the metropolitan city of their state just to visit points of interest and learn something about its art, its industry and its historic features. The pilgrims were led by Mrs. Percy V. Pennybacker, president of the Chautauqua Women's Club of Chautauqua, New York, which is affiliated with the General Federation of Women's Clubs. Lillie S. Cutler of Lowell, Mass., is a radio police broadcaster and she says she finds the job intensely interesting. The only woman bank director in Trenton, N. J., is Mrs. Mary G. Roebing, a widow. Governor Hoffman has also named her a member of the State Unemployment Compensation Commission. Another of her interests is her state's history and in following this bent she has become a member of the State Commission on Historic Sites. She is also finance chairman of the Material Health Center of Trenton and a director of a health league. Her many activities show what one woman can do when she has a real and vital interest in her surroundings.

Baked Without Bother

TODAY'S housewife need no longer be a slave to the kitchen, tied there completely during the preparation of a meal. When she wishes to be free while dinner is cooking, it's relatively easy with the modern oven way. A whole meal is placed in the preheated oven, the clock is set and the baking proceeds without attention in the automatic gas range. For, it is equipped with a heat control to maintain the needed temperature and a time clock turns off the gas when the baking is finished—just like a well-trained servant. There's freedom, too, in the choice of utensils. Any type, glass or otherwise, may be used for gas oven meals. The pans are spaced to permit free circulation of freshly heated air which bakes and browns the food evenly. Complete freedom is possible if foods are selected which will bake in the same temperature and within the same time limit.

Reddy Kilowatt Urges:

"Study These IMPORTANT FACTS About Electric Ranges!"

Most of the housewives using electric ranges today purchased them when electric ranges were higher in price and when it cost much more to operate them than it does at present!

Everyone, of course, knows that the electric range eliminates drudgery from the kitchen; it reduces the time the housewife has to spend in the kitchen; it is insulated and keeps the kitchen practically as cool in the hottest weather as any other room in the house; better cooking results are obtained through its uniformed, controlled heat—

BUT

Too many housewives who might be using this labor-saving and comfort bringing appliance, don't realize, as Reddy Kilowatt would like for them to realize, three facts:

1. That it is just as easy to buy an electric range as it is to buy an ordinary cook stove.
2. That, according to the testimony of electric range users, it is just as cheap to cook on an electric range as it is on an ordinary cook stove.
3. That a modern electric range will outlast by many, many years the ordinary type of cook stove.

Housewives, particularly those who do their own work and those who have a real pride in the cleanliness, modernness and efficiency of their kitchen, can't afford not to investigate electric cookery.
