WOMEN'S CLUBS LIKE THIS HOUSE

When a house meets with the approval of women's clubs it sets a trend in home building. National House, pictured above, is a house which faces the Hudson River on Riverside Drive, New York City. It is one of the best of over 500 steel houses of this style erected in as many American cities this year. It is architecturally modern and supervised by William Van Alen famous architect, from a plan suggested by the Federal Housing Administration. This small home was approved by the New York City Federation of Women's Clubs because it is built for permanence, is spacious, economical to maintain and has many labor-saving appliances.

Full gas equipment throughout includes house heating and hot water units, a refrigerator and range all automatic in performance and economical to operate. The convenient, compact kitchen pictured is divided from the dining corner by an attractive low partition illustrating the elimination of waste space. Resistant to fire winds lightning, termite and earthquakes this house is so well insulated it can be heated at reasonable costs in any climate.
