"LINDY'S" NEW SON

The announcement that another son was born in England on Coronation Day to Col. Charles E. Lindbergh and his wife, the former Anne Morrow, is news which makes one feel more certain that fate has its compensations for those who deserve the good-will of the world.

There is something about this domestic event in the Lindbergh family which should touch every American heart. The "Lone Eagle" who first flew the Atlantic alone just over ten years ago still remains the heroic figure which he became at that time.

SOLVING THE RELIEF PROBLEM

There is much to be said in favor of the plan, now being discussed in Washington, for throwing half of the burden of unemployment relief back upon the states and municipalities.

The merit of the plan is that it would tend to much more careful scrutiny of relief rolls by state and local officials charged with administering relief and raising half of the money locally.

This may not be the best possible solution, but it seems better than the present situation. It is certain that relief expenditures by the Federal government cannot continue forever as a permanent part of our national economic system.

BUILD THE FLORIDA CANAL

has moved another step toward ultimate construction, by its approval by the House Rivers and Harbors Committee. The bitter partisan prejudice which has lost most of its force. The Chief of Engineers of the U. S. Army, whose corps will do the job of building the canal, has reported, after intensive investigation by the Army experts, that there is no reason why it should not be completed, and a hundred reasons why it should be.

The public is at last beginning to realize that a sea-level ship canal across Florida is no mere local project, but one which, by providing a shorter, swifter and safer passage for ships between the Gulf of Mexico and the Atlantic seaboard, will benefit the commerce of the entire nation east of the Rocky Mountains.

It will cost $200,000,000 to build the Florida Canal. It will pay every cent of the cost back with interest, in 36 years. It ought to be built, and Congress ought to make an appropriation at this session to carry on this self-liquidating work.

TODAY AND TOMORROW

by Frank Parker Stockbridge

Rockefeller . . . an organizer

Before he was fifty, John D. Rockefeller, son of a country horse-doctor, had made himself the richest man in the world. He did it by seizing the opportunity offered by a new industry, oil. He was an organizer by instinct.

When he died the other day at 97 he was perhaps the best-loved man in America. For in those forty years he had given away, for the benefit of humanity, almost all of his vast fortune. He endowed education, medical research and many other great movements for the betterment of the world.

Money . . . and men

I know and have known many of the world's wealthiest men. I do not think of many who valued money for its own sake. Most of the rich men I have known have felt that their wealth placed an obligation upon them to use their money for the service of their fellow-men.

Henry Ford once told me that he bought out his stockholders because they wanted the Ford profits for themselves, in dividends. He felt they did not own the money; it belonged to the people who made and bought Ford cars, and he wanted to use the profits to pay the workers more and build cheaper and better cars.

The fact that a few men have used their great wealth selfishly does not seem to me to warrant denunciation of all rich men as enemies of the people.

Opportunity . . . vision

Mr. Rockefeller, like all

She Fashioned Better Than She Knew—by A. B. CHAPIN

other men who have accumulated wealth by their own efforts, made money because he seized an opportunity which was open to anybody. Others may have seen it, but he was able to utilize it.

It is often said that there are no more opportunities. That is true for those who lack the vision to see and the courage to grasp the opportunities which lie ready to their hands.

Big fortunes are being made by men who saw the opportunity in such new things as radio, aviation and the chemical industries. Every day develops new opportunities for the able.

Character . . . essential

I have seen many men fail, and in most instances I could trace the cause of their failure to the lack of one essential ingredient of success—character. All the ability, technical skill, "smartness" in the world will not bring enduring success unless those qualities are backed up by the most important of all—character.

Work . . . price of success

Nobody ever made important money without working for it. The only exception I can think of is those who discovered treasure hidden in the earth—and most of them have had to work hard before they found it.

It is certainly true that the men who operate great business enterprises work a lot harder than do most of their employees. The price of success is literally to have to live with one's business. Even when they appear to be playing, successful business men are thinking about their business, trying to figure out ways to turn chance contacts to good account. There never has been an easy road to riches. It makes me sore, sometimes, to hear men who drop everything when the clock strikes "quitting time" and give no thought to their work until next morning, grouse because the "boss" has more than they have. He works for it.

THE SCRAP BOOK

WE ARE NOT going to say EXACTLY WHERE this TOOK PLACE, and we are REPEATING IT, for we WANT to show you that HOPE EVER springs eternal, AND that there is NOTHING SO catty as a WOMAN. "HE says he LOVES ME, but he hasn't KNOWN ME but three DAYS," SAID one maiden LADY TO another. "Then YOU'D BETTER hurry up," SAID THE other, "and MARRY HIM before he GETS BETTER acquainted." I THANK YOU.

Sheep growers of Tyrrell, Hyde and Washington counties held a cooperative sale of lambs at Plymouth on June 1. The animals were graded by L. I. Case, livestock specialist from State College.

H. T. Watkins of Blanch, Caswell County, will secure three tons per acre of hay from a fourteen acre field of oats, barley, wheat, vetch and winter peas. The hay will be fed to a herd of 20 Jersey Cows.

MORE FIRST AID

A small boy isn't worth a cent who doesn't try to climb the shade tree in the rear lawn once in awhile. Naturally he may fall in his effort to get some place that he doesn't belong. He may tumble from his tricycle in an unusual burst of speed.

Don't fear fracture of the skull from a trifling injury. Don't fear bleeding to death. Wash the wound with clean soap and warm water, using clean things always. DON'T POUR PEROXIDE IN A SCALP WOUND at any period. After washing as above, paint the wound with tincture of iodine; smarts a little, but apply it freely.

For a "crop" of chiggers, get 'em early as possible, before they have bored deeply. First a scrubbing with good soap and water; dry and apply the bug-icide, whatever you have. I use a mixture of carbolic acid, one dram, spirits of camphor, one ounce, menthol, twenty grains, and rose-water, enough to make four ounces. This can be dabbed over the lesions freely, allowing it to dry without wiping off.

Sunburn is not to be sneezed at; it has been accompanied by big dose of the ultra-violet ray—a blessing in disguise. The oxide of zinc, a dram to the ounce of rose-water ointment will soothe the inflamed skin in time. Keep out of the strong sunlight until well.

For a child's "stubbed toe," bruised, torn bleeding, soak the foot in water with a teaspoonful of carbolic acid—or formalin—to the pint. Make the member clean. Trench apply dressing or carbolized or borated vaseline and wrap comfortably.

And, O, green apples! Colic! A big dose of milk of magnesia quick. And who would object to fifteen drops of paregoric for the pain?

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

The Brotherly Love of Judah. Lesson for June 13th. Genesis 44:18-34.

Golden Text: Hebrew 13:1.

Judah, Jacob's fourth son, proposed that Joseph be sold to the Ishmaelites rather than be killed, "for," said he, "he is our brother and our flesh." Later, when the silver cup was found in Benjamin's sack, and the brothers were thrown into a panic of fear, Judah made the pathetic appeal to Joseph chosen for our lesson text. Very appealingly he offered to take Benjamin's place as a slave in Joseph's service in order that the youngest brother might return to bring comfort to Jacob in his years of decline.

It seems fitting that Judah should receive the right of inheritance belonging to the first-born. Reuben, the oldest brother, lost his birthright because of his lust. The blood-thirsty Simeon and Levi, the next in line, were defeated by their enemies and fell into disfavor with their brothers. Judah therefore became the head of the family, and his tribe early established itself at Bethlehem where David, one of its greatest sons, founded a dynasty culminating in Jesus.

Our Lord was loyal to the spirit of Judah when he made the love of man a cardinal emphasis in his teaching. "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself" was to Jesus the second great commandment. It was not a novelty with him for we find it in the Book of Leviticus. But he gave it a much grander setting, the parable of the Good Samaritan, one of his happiest inspirations. The priest and the Levite had undoubted zeal for God, but their piety was sadly divorced from sympathy with their fellows. The Samaritan, on the other hand, although doubtless deficient in the technical training of the synagogue, cherished a vital faith. For mercy and compassion are central in true religion.
