THAYER'S PATENT BRIDGE.

A NEW and valuable trestle Bridge has been patented by Mr. G. W. Thayer, of Massachusetts, which will be found to be an important invention. The amount of strongth attained by the structure is speken of as being wonderful.— The inventor feels confident that no weight which could be placed upon it, could break it down. This consideration, taken together with the economy with which it may be built, will render it worthy the attention of all who are interested in the subject. This bridge is adapted peculiarly to Rail-roads as well as county roads, as it can be made of any re-quired span, so as not to obstruct the navigation of streams when rafts or boats might be desired to pass, and can also be built at a very moderate expense. ISAAC WELLS, Wilmington, N. C., is Agent for this State, as also for South Carolina and Virginia, and will attend to all communications upon the subject addressed to him, post paid

VALUABLE REAL ESTATE FOR SALE.

I offer for sale my entire Real Estate, upon which are thirty-five sets of Boxes ; the most of which have only been in use from one to two years; with a sufficient quantity of round trees to cut at least twenty sets more ; the lands upon which these are situated, is not easily surpassed by any piney lands in Eastern Carolina! There is upon the premises two Distilleries neatly and conveniently fitted up, with all necessary out-houses. Upon the farm, I think the buildings altogether are seldom excelled. Those wishing to purchase are invited to examine for themselves. Terms shall be low, and payments accomodating. Come and see.

Any person wishing to purchase, can be furnished with a sufficient number of teams and wagons to carry on both the operations of Farm and Turpentine, and with a year's supply of provision. JOHN A. AVIRETT.

From the American Agriculturist. Growing Ryes

Moses Baker, of Tiverton, Rhode Island, grew win-

The secret of growing such a crop, where it had been considered useless for years before to make the attempt, is very important, and now made public by Mr. B.'s permission. This is it : The soil is a granitic, dark-colored loam, based upon a hard pan of compactly cemented gravel. He commenced upon four and a ball acres in the spring of 1849, and by hard scraping got three or four loads of manure to the acre, to which he added 50 barrels of fish and 35 bushels of shell lime, and then put the plow up to the beam, and harrowed and plowed again and planted corn. The yield was 46 to 50 bushels to the acre. As soon as ripe enough to cut pp, he removed the corn and manur-ed with 18 ox-cart loads to the acre, (say one and a half tons to a load,) of compost, made of sea muck, road wash, sods, weeds, leaves, and every substance that will decay, even bushes, and of course, all the butcher's offal, bones, and stuff from the kitchen, &c. He plowed and harrowed heavily, and sowed in Septem-ber, one and a half bushels of type to the acre, and harrowed in smooth. Upon half an acre, which everybody said was so poor it would not sprout rye, he put 100 pounds of guano, and this made a bigger growth than the remainder. After the ground froze, so he could cart over it, he put upon each acre six loads of compost, as a top-dressing, to prevent winter-killing. At harvest, the straw was generally seven feet high, and sold, after threshed, for seven tons, bringing $42, besides what he used, from the four and a half acres, The grain weighed 561 pounds to the even bushel .--The stubble was turned in with ten loads of manure to the acre, and sowed with a bushel and three pecks of seed, and afterwards top-dressed with six loads. The growth, last spring, was so rank it was necessary to feed it off, and the present crop is the wonder and admiration of that part of the country, demonstrating as it does, that the land had not run out for rye-it was only the owners who had run out of common sense, and expected crops without expending money or labor to fertilise or till before planting the seed.

One man, who had been a farmer 80 years, came several miles to see what he had never seen before, a crop of rye that would yield 30 bushels to the acre .--How many Rhode Island farmers will be induced by this account to put in a crop in the same way this son ? Perhaps not one, except it be some book farmer from New York city, like Mr. B., who was laughed at for supposing he could grow rye and corn upon that poor old worn-out farm.

ter rye last year at the rate of 31 } bushels to the acre. after corn, upon ground so poor when he took it in hand, his neighbors told him he could not get the seed back again. The crop this year is still better, and he thinks equal to 40 bushels to the acre. In measuring, the half bushel was heaped considerably.

Assyrian Discoveries.

The last number of the London Athenneum contains a communication from Col. Rawlinson, announcing an important historical discovery. He has deciphered some of the cuneform inscriptions brought from Nineveh by Mr. Layard, and found them to contain some remarkable verifications of Bible history. They are records of one of the Assyrian kings, who proves to be the Sennacherib of Scripture. They notice his war against the King of Sidon ; and describing the battle between the Assyrians and Egyptians, in conformity with the accounts of Josephus and Herodotus, notice the proceedings of Sennacherib against Hezekiah King of Judea.

11 The names of Hezekiah, Judea, and Jerusalem are given in the inscriptions as Khazakiyah, Ursulimma, and Jehuda ; " and the tribute which the Jewish king pays, in order to free himself from his enemy, is stated almost in the very words of Scripture. The annals of Sennacharib in this inscription extend over seven years, and a cylinder has been met with which gives the events of two years more. Other points of identity between these annals and the Greek and Biblical notices 2.89 2.24 of Sennacherib likewise occur; but the chief point of interest is the establishment of the identity of the king who built the great palace of Koyunjik with that soys ereign. A secure starting place is now obtained for historical research, and a rapid progress will be made 91 in fixing the Assyrian chronology."

The French Assembly, by a vote of 319 to 232 has made an appropriation of 78,000 francs to continue M. 56 Botta's explorations at Nineveh, and the scientific expeditions to Mesopotamia and Media. The explorations at Nineveh were abandoned on the suppression of the French Consulate at Mosul after the revolution of February, 1848; and it was stated in the Assembly that, in consequence of that event, many antiquities which M. Botta had discovered now enriched the museums of other countries.

He had the Tin.

We think we have seen the following story, but it is good enough to repeat :

Uncle Eb, as we used to call him, among lots of good qualities, had a failing. He did love good li-quor, but such was the state of his credit that no one could trust him. He therefore one day resorted to a trick, to answer the great desire of his appetite. He took two case bottles, put a quart of water into one of them, then put a bottle in each pocket, and started for the store. " I'll take a quart of your rum," said uncle Eb, as he placed the empty bottle on the counter.

The ram was put up, and the bottle replaced in his pocket, when Uncle Eb pulled from his purse what at a distance might seem a quarter of a dollar. "This is nothing but tin, Unele Eb," said the trader.

"Eh, now it's a quarter," said Uncle Eb.

" It's tin," said the trader, "I shan't take it."

"It's all I've got."

"Very well, you can't have the rum."

Uncle Eb, without much demuring, pulled from his pocket the quart of water. The trader took it, poured it into his rum barrel, and off walked Uncle Eb chuokling.

Excuses, or even just reasons, for the thing being left undone, do not do it.
