The following table exhibits an approximation to the The following table exhibits an approximation to the losses of both parties by the several engagements during the year. The Confederate losses are compiled from the official reports of the commanding officers, (when such reports were published.) Of course, we can only guess at the losses of the enemy. The Northern papers seldom publish the official reports of the Federal Generals, and the publish the ellicial reports of the Federal Generals, and the latter have generally proved themselves such monstrous falsifiers that but little confidence can be placed in their reports when they are published. For 'nstance, Pleayune Butler stated his loss at Bethel at about thirty, when it is a notorious fact that one small squad of Magnuder's men alone buried thirty-two Federal bodies after the battle.—
In estimating the Federal losses, we have adopted the In estimating the Federal losses, we have adopted the opinions of the Confederate officers commanding, who are gentle men, and upon whose statements reliance may Recopitulation. Federal Loss Co nfederate Loss. 4911 7821 Wounded. 8177 20,909 That we have not overrated the Federal loss is proved by

That we have not correspondence the following extract from the Washington correspondence of the New York Times, of a late date.

By returns at the War Department up to the 20th Decem ber, I learn that the mortality in our army since the war broke out will reach 22,000. The number killed in battle, skirmishes, &c., is about 11,000, the number wounded 17,000. The number of prisoners in the South and deserters amount to 6000. If we had the means of ascertaining the Federal losses by the numerous smaller enga-ements, picket skirutishes, &c., during the year, we might easily carry the number of killed and wounded up to the figure indicated in the New York Tamen.
