THE DAILY JOURNAL. WILMINGTON, N. C. TUESDAY, AUGUST 17, 1869. The Direct Trade Movement.

The following circular has just been issued, which we publish by request: COMMISSIONERS' OFFICE OF THE INTERNATIONAL COMMERCIAL COMPANY, NORFOLK, VA., Aug. 14, 1869.

The committee appointed by the convention held at Bristol, Tenn., to establish a line of steamers between Norfolk, Va., and Liverpool, England, of which General William Mahon was chairman, reported to the Norfolk convention, held in October last, that it was expedient to organize under the charter granted to the International Commercial Company by the Legislature of Virginia.

The requisite amount being subscribed to authorize the organization of the company, the following was unanimously adopted by the convention: Resolved, That the commissioners named in the charter of the International Commercial Company of the city of Norfolk be and they are hereby requested to call a meeting of the subscribers which have now been secured, at some central point, as early as practicable, with a view to a provisional organization of the company, and to the end that effective means may be had for procuring the full amount of capital required to put the enterprise upon a permanent footing.

Under this resolution a meeting was called to meet in Lynchburg, which was duly held and additional subscriptions made, and the subscribers adjourned over without organization until a further call by the Commissioners.

The Memphis Commercial Convention having unanimously endorsed this scheme of organization for the establishment of a line of steamers between Norfolk and Liverpool, the Commissioners deem it proper that the subscribers to the company should meet on the 1st of September next, in Norfolk for provisional organization, and have therefore called on them to assemble on that day.

The importance of direct trade to the property of Virginia and the other Southern States being acknowledged by all, the Commissioners deem it unnecessary to say anything on this subject, and regard it as only necessary for them to state the plan upon which it is proposed to conduct the company in the beginning.

In the report to the Norfolk Convention it was stated that: Your committee have further ascertained that under the existing laws of the United States in respect to ship-building, steamers suitable to the purpose of direct trade cannot be constructed in the United States, except at a cost far exceeding that of like vessels built in England, and that British vessels cannot be registered and owned on this side as American property. Besides, it is well understood that the expenses of operating American built steamers are greater. In view of this state of facts, your committee would recommend the policy which has governed the formation of the leading steam lines of the country, such as the Cunard, where the system of chartering English vessels sailing under the British flag has been successfully pursued; and this plan of operations is fully authorized by the terms of the charter to which reference is made. This manner of organization, in your case, and which your committee would recommend, will secure practically the results which you seek to obtain, and at a cost which your committee entertain the hope, will be found within the compass of the several interests involved in the success of the enterprise.

Both speed and capacity will be needed. Chartered vessels can be displaced by more suitable ones at any time at a trifling cost, while to sell an ocean steamer is a very difficult job. A number of fine British steamers have been offered the Commissioners for the proposed line and on most favorable terms. By this system of chartering, our American Company can use European capital to supply the steamers, while retaining absolute management of the line.

Three hundred thousand dollars is all that is required to give the Company the requisite warehouses, docks, &c. and ample margin upon which to charter a fleet of ocean steamers. As it is important that a provisional organization of the Company should be effected at once, the Commissioners request that all subscribers who cannot attend personally will be represented by proxy.

Commissioners—William Lamb, James V. Leigh, George D. Parker, John B. Whitford, Jacob Umstatter, E. C. Robinson, W. H. C. Ellis, Lewis W. Webb, Thos. T. Kempe.

Mississippi Politics. A letter from an indignant Republican. G. Gordon Adams, United States Attorney for the Southern District of Mississippi, and one of the most prominent supporters of Judge Dunk, has forwarded to the President the following letter resigning his position:

WASHINGTON, D. C., August 10, 1869. To His Excellency, U. S. Grant, President of the United States: Sir—I respectfully tender my resignation of the office of Attorney of the United States for the Southern District of Mississippi. Though the office is not one of much importance, I cannot retain it without being identified, to some extent, with an administration whose acts, so far as they relate to my own State, I cannot approve.

Major Wofford, an officer of the late rebel army, in defiance of the contumely and reproach heaped upon him by the Southern people, supported bravely and almost alone in his district the reconstruction policy of Congress, has been removed from office. From the late approval published statement of your views I am justified in the belief that this is done in accordance with the established policy of your administration.

From the same source I learn your confidence in and support of General Sherman, who has degraded his position as military commander of the fourth military district by exercising the functions of a judge in his own person, and in aid of his subsisting avowal that he desired to use the high office of Senator from my State as a stepping-stone to the appointment of a regular officer in the regular army, and whose whole career in that State has been a by-product of the reconstruction laws.

Major Wofford, and other officers of the late rebel army, who have been retained in office, and whose names are on the list of the republican party in this State, though never a political aspirant, I would be false to my State and to the republican principles which I have always maintained if I longer retained the office to which your kind preference has assigned me.

I am, very respectfully, your obedient servant, G. GORDON ADAMS.

Hon. A. H. Stevens. The Southern Recorder learns from a gentleman of Milledgeville, who spent a day recently with Hon. A. H. Stevens, that Mr. S.'s health is very good, and that he is slowly but certainly recovering from the ailment which has for months deprived him of locomotion and caused him no small suffering. With the assistance of crutches he moves frequently through the passage of his airy house. Notwithstanding his situation, his indomitable mind is occupied in the preparation of the second volume of his great work, "The History of the War between the States," which in a few months will be given to the press.
