

Recesses of North Carolina, 1893.
The above is the title of an elegant little publication, of 116 pages, issued by Messrs. Bannister, Cowan & Co., Real Estate and Financial Agents, New York and Wilmington. A copy of which has been placed before us. It is, as its name would indicate, a description of the natural wealth, condition and advantages of this State as existing in the present year. It contains a great amount of most valuable information and will prove of great benefit in developing the resources of our State. It was not issued for sale, but is presented to the capitalists and people of the Northern States as a means by which correct and valuable information may be obtained. The work is beautifully printed and neatly bound, and we count it quite a valuable addition to our shelves.

The Charleston Daily News informs us that the planters along the South Carolina low country have already made heavy contracts for Chinese laborers, and that large numbers will arrive there during the early part of the new year.

There is something about the people of our little State that always calls for admiration. Let them be ever so much cast down and trampled upon, they are yet ready to rise up from the slough of despond, brightened and refreshed, and with an energy to work out anew their fortunes, that we seldom see equalled and never surpassed.

Our own State must soon follow the lead of her sister, and we doubt not that long before the year 1870 will have rolled its course, the Chinaman laborer will have obtained a strong foothold in every Southern State.

According to the reports by the telegraph the "horse jockey" and "boy" has sold himself to the Bowtell Radicals, heart, body and soul. The price paid was not named, but it was probably a few thousand dollars, or a new horse or some other little toy with which to please the "restless boy, needing constantly to be amused."

The transfer of his valuable assistance is the more interesting on the present occasion, inasmuch as the national cigar smoke has seen fit, in this instance, to "go back" on an intimate relation, Gen. Dent, thus ignoring those family ties which have lately had so much influence over him.

But this "support of the administration," over which some of the Radicals have already grown so jubilant, will, judging by past precedents, amount to more in words and on paper, than in actual reality; for if our monetary system is correctly, this very same countenance was given to Wells in Virginia and to Stokes in Tennessee, each of whom were defeated by overwhelming majorities.

The indications now are to the effect that the prices of coal will rule much higher this winter than they did the last, and it seems hard to tell where the blame must rest. The New England and New York papers charge it all to the tariff which prevents the importation of foreign coal, but it is more probable that the cause lies in the increasing demands for wages made by the miners in Pennsylvania. The effect of this will be felt all over the country, and it will prove a serious thing to us if we are compelled to pay fifty per cent. more for our coal this winter than we did the last.

Yet there is one reason why we should not care very greatly if it does command even double of its former value, as we are in hopes that such would prove a blessing in disguise. It might stimulate the reopening and working of the mines at Egypt, in Chatham county, in our own State, where the supply is actually inexhaustible. It is true that this coal is all bituminous, yet, if it can be placed here in Wilmington at one-half the ordinary prices of the Pennsylvania coal, say from three dollars to four dollars per ton, as we have been assured that it can, we see no reason why its use should not become general in this city at least. In some of the Southern cities, New Orleans in especial, bituminous coal is used all together, it being shipped there from Cincinnati.

So, my we, let the prices of Yankee coal go up, up, up, we need care but little, as every figure on the ascending scale, as it is reached, but gives a greater guarantee of the development of our own resources.

We rejoice, says the Baltimore Gazette, to see that the Democracy of Ohio has now made a fair and square issue with its opponents by nominating the Hon. George H. Pendleton as its candidate for Governor. Of Mr. Pendleton's fitness for the position for which he is named, no one can doubt. He is a man of high personal character and of unquestioned ability. In addition to this, he is a bona fide representative of the party. We confess that we are tired of seeing the Democracy of the North shirking real issues, catching at unworthy compromises, trembling at worst-out war cries, and clinging to the skirts of leaders who but yesterday were strangers in their ranks. Unless the principles of the party are to triumph, it matters little to us whether the Democratic party wins or loses. To a success on its part, which places in office men who have been tramping on all it holds dear, and justifying what it regards as infamous, we are indifferent. But Mr. Pendleton is no such man. He has battled through evil and through good report for the principles of the Constitution. He has stood by the lotter of the law. He has not been blase and a storm during which it was difficult to be a Democrat and to escape insults and outrage. He holds to day to all the cardinal points of that party, and there can be no misunderstanding now about the character of the canvass and the meaning of its result. Mr. Pendleton maintains that the course of the Government under Radical direction has been violative of the fundamental prin-

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 16, 1893.

No doubt you this you have seen the letter of General Tarbell, Secretary of the Executive Committee of the Radicals in Mississippi, in relation to his interview with General Grant in reference to the Conservative movement in that State. The "Associated Press" very willingly telegraphed it over the length and breadth of the land, and it brought, no doubt, hope and comfort to the sinking hearts of the Radicals who feared that Grant might remain for once true to his knowledge of right and above all things not desert the interests of his family. But to the intense joy of the Radical hordes, Grant has "gone back" on his convictions and left his brother-in-law "in the lurch," and now is as far from where he was, with reference to the Conservatives in Mississippi, ten days ago, as one pole is from another. We know he was then in favor of Dent's election, but only from family reasons did I expect he would "stick" to Judge Dent. But the "knout" in the nervous fingers of Master Bowtell was so savagely cracked in his ears that he succumbed, and said "Let us have peace."

Judge Dent, with a spirit which reflects credit upon him, will accept the nomination if offered him, and has signified that if any other be nominated he will in any event stump the State. To-day we have the Chief Magistrate of the American Nation engaged in the petty and unglorified business of interfering in the State elections, by dismissing those of his own party, who helped to elect him and who yet claim to be his political friends, because they cannot consent to degrade and trample their white brethren of the South under the rule of racially white adventurers and sharper and brutal negroes. For this they must be punished. Such tyranny as this is unprecedented in political parties, and will arouse a spirit of resistance that will only hasten the downfall of Radicalism instead of driving the liberal ones of their party into their illegitimate measures. They judge our people to be a base and clinging slaves that only the "lash" or the "coercive power of public opinion" will hold together a slight misting my friend "Hole in the Sky." It may do with the "Coat with a Peace," but the yomanry cannot be lashed to do your bidding. The cry of Rebel and Copperhead has lost its charm, its music has departed. The people's lips are "puckered" to other tunes, the old song is "played out," the changes were rung on it until their eyes have been opened to the villainy of the past few years, and now come the avanche.

S. Gordon Adams, U. S. District Attorney for the Southern District of Mississippi, has tendered his resignation to General Grant, in words courteous but severe, and to any one who was not entirely calmed it would be a stinging rebuke, but "there is no use kicking against the pricks."

Mr. Adams states that he cannot retain his position without being identified with the acts of the administration, which so far as he relates to his own State he cannot approve. He also pitches into General Ames, Military Satrap of Mississippi in the severest manner, charging him with using his power in the most tyrannical manner, and for his own personal aggrandizement. General Ames' conduct has been the object of approval of General Grant, and his Cabinet, and all the wrongs and cruelties inflicted on the people of that State will be laid at the door of the White House, General Grant being entirely responsible. Judge Jeffords, of the Supreme Court; A. Warner, Secretary of State; Judge Speed, of the Criminal Court, of Warren county, with a large number of other officials were removed by General Ames. These gentlemen are all prominent in the Conservative movement. The Procrustean rule is to be applied without fear, favor or mercy to all who flinch, and the result will be that Mississippi will outdo Tennessee in the largeness of her majority for the Conservative ticket. Do not those fanatical bigots see the "lied writing on the wall," or seeing it, as it were, these despotic measures the last efforts of despair? A canard was started to the effect that the Tennessee Legislature would repudiate the State bonds. To-day the story is denied. The associated press are very prompt to send news that can in any way injure the Democratic party. They are well aware that once a lie is started, the retraction, if one is made, is very often not soon, and when it is does not always extract the poison, hence they should be more careful. The interests of the Radicals are more tenderly cared for. The gentlemen who are elected to the Tennessee Legislature are men of integrity and honor, and are pledged to the maintenance of the State credit at all hazards. Do not this last Radical lie and trick to the counter.

The nomination of the Hon. George H. Pendleton, by the Democracy of Ohio for Governor, gives universal satisfaction to the Democracy party. The yell of gratification which the Radical party set up over the declaration of General Hancock, has been succeeded by a most dismal wail, in which the big white and black cur of the "Tribune" leads. He yelps that the nomination of Pendleton means war, and that they must take off their coats and go to work on their shirt sleeves in order to seal the Democracy in that State. They will know as never before they did, when their friends of the Associated Press click over the wires the unwelcome news "that Ohio has wheeled into her old position in the Democratic column."

The counterfeits $10 legal tender notes are so well executed that General Spinner, United States Treasurer, after a minute inspection of one of them, found it impossible to tell whether it was genuine or not. The only remedy is to call them all in. The weather has grown very warm, and everything, including news, is extremely flat.

It is found that the loss of currency by wear and tear is more than sufficient to pay the expenses of printing and issuing it. The average life of a bank note is three years, and that of currency a much shorter time.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of this is time abandoned, and we have the satisfaction of seeing the Democratic doctrine boldly placed before the people by a man who, if elected, will unflinchingly enforce it.

...of the Constitution and laws of this country—that its present policy is destructive of our most cherished institutions and to insist that it shall be honorably administered in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, is to the Democratic party. Between these two conditions and the shifting programme of the Radicals, the people of Ohio are now called upon to choose. The expediency of