the publication of Father Hyacinth's letter of September 20. The second, dated September 25, is his superior's reply. The letters do not indicate the precise character of the interviews by which the eloquent Frenchman inspired the displeasure of his order, though they leave no doubt of his present attitude toward the Church of which he has been such a distinguished member. It seems that there has been no actual interference with his preaching, and no formal complaint that in the pulpit at any date he was at all heterodox. But he has repeatedly been found fault with during the past five years for letters, addresses, &c., to political and other clubs, and as remonstrance seems to have had no effect, the general of the Carmelites at last forbade him to publish any letters or discourses, to deliver any address, except in church, or to take part in any meeting not strictly religious and Catholic. It was on receipt of this order that Father Hyacinth determined to leave the convent, and wrote the letter which has caused so much notice. The superior's letters are as follows:

Rome, July 22, 1869. My Very Reverend Father Hyacinth—I have received your letter of the 9th inst., and in a short time after the speech which you delivered at the Peace League. I have not, happily, found in that speech the heterodox phrase attributed to you. I must say, however, that it contains some dangerous opinions, and some unchristian interpretations, and that such a speech does not come well from a monk. The habit of the Carmelite was certainly there no longer in its place. My reverend father and dear friend, you know the great interest I have always taken in you. From the commencement of your sermons at Notre Dame de Paris, I have earnestly exhorted you not to identify yourself with questions in regard among Catholics, and on which all were not agreed. Because, from the moment you attach yourself ostensibly to one side your ministry becomes more or less unfruitful with the other.

Now, it is patent that you have made no account of the intimation of your father and superior, as last year you wrote a letter to a club in Paris in which you freely disclosed your opinions in favor of a party, having little regard, and in a congratulatory letter to the Holy Father, the episcopacy, and the clergy in general. I was alarmed, as were also the French clergy. I wrote to you immediately to enable you to see the false path you had entered on, in order to stop you. But in vain, for some months after you authorized from yourself a periodical review in Geneva to publish another letter, that has been the cause of so much vexation to you and to me. Lastly, during your last sojourn at Rome, I made you serious observations, and even rather strong reproaches on the false position you were placed in on account of your imprudence, but you had scarcely arrived at Paris when you published under your own signature, a letter deploring, even by your friends.

Lastly, your presence and speech at the Peace League have caused a great scandal in Catholic Europe as happened about six years ago, on the occasion of your speech at a meeting in Paris. You have, beyond doubt, given some reason for such recominations by some bold, obscure and imprudent persons. I have done all that I could up to the present to defend and save you. To-day I must think of the interest and honor of my holy order, which, unknown to yourself, you compromise. You write me from Paris, Nov. 19, 1868: "I avoid mixing the Paris Convention and the order of Mount Carmel with these matters." Let me say to you, my dear father, that this is an illusion. You are a monk, and bound to your superiors by solemn vows. We have no answer for you before God and man, and consequently have to take the same measures in your regard as that of other monks, when your conduct is prejudicial to your soul and our order.

Already in France, Belgium and even here, some of the bishops, clergy and faithful are blaming the superiors of our order for not taking certain measures in your regard, and it is concluded that there is no authority in our congregation, or that it shares in your opinions and course of action. I do not certainly regret the course I have followed up to the present in regard to you, but matters have arrived at such a point that I would compromise my conscience and the entire order if I do not take more efficacious measures in this matter than I have done in the past. Meditate in solitude on the great truths of religion, not to preach them, but for the profit of your soul. Ask light from heaven, with a contrite and humble heart. Address yourself to the Holy Virgin, to our father St. Joseph, and to our dear mother, St. Theresa. A father can well address these words to his son, although he be a great orator. It is a very serious question for you and for us all. I pray to the Saviour that he may deign to accord you his light and grace. I recommend myself to your prayers, and give you my benediction, and I am your very humble servant.

FR. DOMINIQUE DE SAINT JOSEPH, Superior General.

The following is the superior's letter in answer to Father Hyacinth's reply to the above:

Rome, Sept. 20. Reverend Father—Your letter of the 20th only reached me yesterday. You will easily imagine how deeply it afflicted me, and with what bitterness it filled my soul. I was far from expecting you to fall to such a depth. Therefore my heart blossomed with grief, and is filled with an immense pity for you, and I raise my humble supplications to the God of all mercies that he would enlighten you, pardon you, and lead you back from that deplorable and fatal path on which you have entered. It is very true, my reverend father, that during the last five years, in spite of my personal opinions, which are in general contrary to yours on many religious questions—as I have more than once expressed to you—in spite of the counsels I have given to you on several occasions relative to your preaching, and to which, excepting in the case of your Lent sermons at Rome, you paid but little attention; so long as you did not openly depart from the limits imposed by Christian prudence on a priest, and especially on a monk, I always manifested toward you sentiments of esteem and friendship, and encouraged you in your preachings. But if that is true, so also is it that from the moment in which I perceived that you were beginning to trespass those limits, I was forced to begin on my side to express to you my fears, and to speak to you my dissatisfaction. You must remember, my reverend father, that I did so especially last year, about the month of October, when passing through France, relative to a letter addressed by you to a club in Paris. I then expressed to you your own dissatisfaction, which was given in full, and was published daily on July 22, appears to have determined were also very painful to me, and also drew you from me on observations and reproaches when you last visited Rome.

Lastly, your presence and speech at the Peace League filled up the measure of my apprehension and my grief, and forced me to write you the letter of the 25th of July last, by which I formally ordered you in future not to print any letter or speech, to speak in public or elsewhere than in the churches, to be present in the Chambers, or take part in the Peace League, or any other meeting, the object of which was not exclusively Catholic and religious. My prohibition, as you see did not, in the least refer to your sermons in the pulpit. On the contrary, I desired you in future to devote solely and entirely your talents and your eloquence to teachings in the church. Consequently it was with pain full surprise that I read in your letter that "you could not reason the pulpit at Notre Dame, with language perverted by dictation or mislaid by reticence."

You must be aware, my reverend father, that I have never forbidden you to preach, that I have never given you any order or imposed any restrictions on your teachings. I only took the liberty of giving to you some counsels, and on addressing to you some observations, especially on the subject of your last lectures, as in my quality of superior it was my right and my duty to do. You were, consequently, free to continue your preachings as you had done in preceding years, before my letter of the 25th July last; and if you have resolved not to renounce in the pulpit of Notre Dame de Paris, it is voluntarily and of your own free will, and not by virtue of measures adopted by me toward you. Your letter of the 20th announces to me that you are about to leave your monastery in Paris. I fear, indeed, by the journals and by private letters, that you have already left it, and have cut off your bonds, without any ecclesiastical authorization.

If the fact is unfortunately true, I would remark to you, my reverend father, that you must be aware that the monk who quits his monastery and the dress of his order without the regular permission from the competent authority, is considered as a real apostate, and consequently incurs the canonical penalties mentioned in Cap. Periculus. The punishment he incurs, as you are aware, the greater excommunication, late senectute, and according to our constitutions, confirmed by the Holy See, part iii, chapter xxxv., No. 12, those who leave the community without authorization incur the greater excommunication, ipso facto and the note of infamy. Qui a congregatione recedunt, proter: apostasiam, ipso facto excommunicantem et infamam notantur. As your superior, and in accordance with the prescriptions of the apostolic decrees, which order me to employ every course to bring you back to the bosom of the order you have so deplorably abandoned, I am under the necessity of calling on you to return to the monastery in Paris which you have quit within ten days from the date of the present letter, observing to you that if you do not obey this order within the time stated you will be deprived canonically of all the charges you hold in the Order of Barefooted Carmelites, and will remain under the excommunication established by the common law and by our rules.

May you, my reverend father, listen to our voice and to the cry of your conscience; may you promptly and seriously descend within yourself, see the depth of your fall, and by a heroic resolution manfully recover yourself, repair the great scandal you have caused, and by that means console the Church, your mother, you have so much afflicted. That is the most sincere and ardent desire of my heart; it is also that which your afflicted friends, and myself, your father, ask with all the fervor of our souls of God Almighty, of God, so full of mercy and goodness.

FR. DOMINIQUE DE SAINT JOSEPH, BOSTON AFTER FATHER HYACINTHE.

Boston, October 18. The pastors of the Evangelical churches in Boston and vicinity, at a meeting yesterday, appointed a committee to confer with Father Hyacinth and make suitable arrangements for extending to him a public reception, if such a step is deemed advisable.

FATHER HYACINTHE IN NEW YORK.

New York, October 18. Father Hyacinth arrived to-day in the steamer Perier, from Havre. Father Hyacinth proceeded very quietly to the house of a friend. Report says he will be waited upon by deputations from various denominational societies and requested to explain his views of Roman Catholicism to their respective congregations. Father Hyacinth is at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, where he will remain in seclusion, it is said, for ten days, and will then visit Boston and Washington. At the expiration of his two months visit to this country he will proceed to Rome to seek admission to the Congregational Council. He brought letters of introduction to Gen. Dix and Rev. Henry Ward Beecher, and is a personal friend of the poet Lowell, and other distinguished gentlemen in this country. He does not speak the English language. Fernando Wood was a fellow-passenger and extended many attentions to him during the voyage, which was very agreeable and pleasant.
