THE DAILY JOURNAL

WILMINGTON, N. C.
TUESDAY, JUNE 7, 1870.

WE DO NOT HESITATE TO ASSESS THAT THE DAILY JOURNAL IS LARGER THAN THAT OF ANY DAILY PAPER PUBLISHED IN NORTH CAROLINA. ADVERTISERS WILL DO WELL TO MAKE A NOTE OF THIS, AND INSERT THEIR NOTICES IN THE COLUMNS OF A PAPER THAT REACHES RELIABLE BUSINESS MEN IN EVERY SECTION OF THE COUNTRY.

Transient Advertisements must, in all cases, be paid for in advance.

The Daily Journal is for sale at the paper stands of Mr. T. M. Harris, opposite Parcel House, at Mr. J. T. Daniels', corner of Market and Second streets, by the newsboys, and at the desk in the business office, Journal Buildings, up stairs—entrance first door West.

Library Rooms.

The members of the Wilmington Library Association are hereby notified that the Library and Reading Rooms are open every evening of the week, except Sunday, at 8 o'clock, for the accommodation of members and their guests. Strangers arriving here are tendered the privilege of the Rooms.

J. T. JAMES, Librarian.

From the Warren Gazette, Medical Convention.

WILMINGTON, N. C., June 1, 1870.

Mr. Editor:—Permit me, through the columns of your excellent journal, to give your numerous readers a short account of a visit to Wilmington during the session of the 23rd annual meeting of the Medical Society of North Carolina. We took the cars at Warren depot Tuesday, the 29th, and after a most disagreeable ride of ten hours or more we reached the city. We were quickly and warmly received by the committee of arrangements, consisting of Drs. T. F. Wood, Thomas, Bellamy, Love and Walker, who were in readiness with their carriages to take members to the convention to their temporary but pleasant homes. And here let me pause just long enough to pay a just tribute to the efficiency, courtesy and untiring efforts of the committee. Wilmington has just cause to feel proud of her physicians. They seemed to regard neither time, trouble nor expense in their efforts to please and to make agreeable the visit of their brothers of the medical fraternity.

Wednesday morning the Convention was called to order by its efficient President, Dr. C. J. O'Hagan. The Doctor is a genial gentleman, and discharged his arduous duties with dignity, ability and impartiality. The profession from all portions of the State was ably represented, and we were glad to see that the spirit of medicine and its followers was onward and upward, and in a few years will be ranked first among the living sciences.

After a very harmonious meeting of two days, during which time a great deal of important business was transacted, but especially interesting to the profession, the society adjourned to hear the address of Dr. C. T. Murphy. The Doctor evidently bestowed much care and study on his address, and it was an effort well worthy of his clear head, generous heart and comprehensive ideas.

We have many learned men in the profession, and it would appear invidious to individualize; but suffice it to say, that such lights as Satchell, Johnson, Thomas, Kelly, Hayward, Somers, McKee, Whitehead, and others among its founders, the profession owe a debt of gratitude for having elevated the standard of medicine, and made the society an ornament to the State.

Friday morning the members of the convention, through the kindness of the physicians and citizens of Wilmington, were invited to take an excursion on the splendid steamer Gov. Worth, down the Cape Fear to the Forts, and by special invitation your correspondent accompanied them.

There were on board about 100 of Wilmington's fairest daughters, and lovelier women I never met. Envied by no man, intellect and beauty, it would be unjust to individualize, and I will only say that if there are not a goodly number of brilliant weddings in the hospitable city of Wilmington next winter, it is not the fault of the young physicians who attended the convention. But, young gentlemen of the "Code Medical," I fear you are forestalled for such worth and beauty as the Wilmington ladies possess; could not long remain unthought of.

The very excellent committee who had charge of the boat and its delightful passengers, consisting, as well as I recollect, of Drs. Satchell, Wood, Bellamy, Walker and Love; and, if possible, they surpassed in the thoroughness of their preparations, the elegance of their arrangements, and in their efforts to please and make comfortable anything that was ever my good fortune to witness. The committee had provided an excellent band of music, and as the noble steamer turned her head down stream and gently drifted upon her path, the band broke forth in its sweetest "refrain," and as the sweet, soft notes came floating past us, recalling so forcibly those admirable lines by Cooper—

"There is in souls a sympathy with sounds,
And as the mind is pleased, the ear is pleased
With melting airs, or martial, brisk or grave."

"Sots" were formed, and that most fascinating of all amusements, the dancing, began. Next came dinner, and such a "dinner." The wines were as fine and delicate in flavor as the perfumes that are wafted from the shores of "Arabia, the blessed."

On nearing Fort Fisher we heard such a pop-pop-popping, involuntarily thought of war and its terrible consequences, but on rushing to the saloon to ascertain the cause of such an unusual noise, we found that it was war—or rather a battle—and raging fiercely, too; not of the giants, however, but of the Doctors and champagne bottles. It seems that they had made a vigorous onslaught, and as each bottle was attacked it sent up its loud but merry protestations at being so summarily disposed of.

During dinner an incident occurred which was particularly gratifying to the delegation from this county. Dr. Satchell proposed a toast, and finished by paying a glowing tribute to the worth, intelligence and the beautiful and charming women of Warren, which met with a response from your correspondent.

As we approached Fisher the overwhelming recollections of former days—days of strife and blood—revived upon us, and it appeared as though our excited veterans as they stood on the ramparts beneath the bursting bombs and whining bullets, had ding defiance to their foes. Yonder, thought we, is the parapet from which the gallant Lamb cheered and sustained his noble soldiers. That to the right is where the fearless Whiting spilled his life's blood; and down to the left is the spot where the Federals faltered, mowed down in ranks, as they advanced to the charge. As we gazed on the towering walls of a place and its history by the sanguinary struggle which was fought over it, we forgot the scenes of hilarity which surrounded us—every other thought vanished from us—and we were forcibly reminded of the sentiment of Dr. Johnson, at Iowa, where he says, "To abstract the mind from all local emotions would be impossible if it were endeavor, and would be foolish if it were possible. Whatever withdraws us from the power of the senses; whatever makes the past, the distant, or the future predominate over the present, advances us in the dignity of thinking beings. Far from me and my friends be such frigid platitudes as may conduct us to heaven, and unmoved over any ground which has been dignified by bravery, wisdom or virtue. That man is little to be envied whose patriotism will not gain force upon the plain of Marathon, or whose piety will not grow warmer among the ruins of Iona."

The shadows of evening began to envelop us in their quiet embrace, our vessel bent her course homeward, and after one of the most pleasant days we ever spent, we returned to the hospitable city of Wilmington.

We have so far omitted, but not forgotten, to mention that accomplished journalist, Mr. Engelhard, of the Wilmington Journal. We never met the Major before, but already he has the best niche in our memory. Long may he live to enjoy the good things of this life, and soon may we again have the pleasure of taking him by the hand.

While in the city we of course took a "stroll" and was surprised to find so many evidences of prosperity. The city has nearly or quite twenty thousand inhabitants, and is rapidly increasing, both in size and importance. We up country people have too little intercourse with the Eastern portion of the State, and by no means realize the advantages to be gained by a full communication with the people of the coast. Wilmington is the first city in the State, both in size and location, and our people should give her a liberal share of their trade. We were informed that a line of fine steamers would soon commence running direct to Europe, taking out cotton and returning with emigrants. We were gratified to find so much life and vitality in the city. Her merchants are enterprising and energetic; her mechanics skilled; her capitalists far-sighted and adventurous, and from early dawn till the shadows of twilight the busy hum of the laborer may be heard. The advantages of Wilmington, in a commercial point of view, are patent to any one who will reflect for a moment, and we sincerely hope that the people from this section of the State and further west will no longer allow themselves to be blinded to their true interests, but will at once throw their trade into the enterprising city of Wilmington, and thus aid her in becoming, as she certainly will, the mart of North Carolina.

Not a few farmers behind her merchants in enterprise and intelligence. The Cape Fear Agricultural Society has been but recently organized, and already they have elegant grounds for their fairs, a large membership, and offer liberal premiums and great inducements to the most successful followers of Triptolemus. Then her hunters and sportsmen are long and friends; know them better, and perhaps instead of sending our products to fatten the cities of other States our own would be built up, and thus make us a wealthier and more influential people.

But already we have written too much, and will close with a most sincere wish of meeting the Wilmingtonians one long and by advising all who love beautiful women, generous hospitality, courteous attentions, elegant dinners to visit Wilmington.

LOS.

A friend of ours, says an exchange, who took a trip to California, said that he was not afraid of the Indians, because he belonged to the Benevolent Order of Red Men, and knew all the passwords and winks, and the figurative language and things, and no savage was going to touch him, initiated and fixed up in regalia as he was. He had not gone more than a hundred miles from Omaha before a band of Indians came at him and scooped him up. He took the chief aside and whispered the password in his ear and gave him the grip twenty-six times on both hands, and made some observations about "fifth moons" and "happy hunting grounds." The chief replied in a fraternal manner by tomahawking him and jolting his butcher-knife into his vital. Our friend remarked that these ceremonies were not observed in his Lodge; but the chief wanted to show him all the peculiarities of the western system, so he scalped him and chopped off his nose, and was about to build a bonfire on his stomach when some soldiers arrived and rescued him. He is now the bald-headed Red Man this side of the Pacific ocean, and you never saw a person so disgusted with secret societies and Indian poetry. He is going to sue his Lodge for passing a counterfeit grip on him, and for damage done by loss of his hair.

Who can deny the modesty of Grant?—Not those who affirm his grammar. To the committee on the Steuben celebration our noble President writes: "I regret that my public duties prevent my accepting the invitation, and thus contribute in a feeble manner to the ceremony," &c., &c. What agrees with "contribute" in this sentence? So that by not going to the "ceremony" Grant thinks he "contributes" to it. Which is probably true, and certainly modest. And why should not Grant agree with contribution when, as all experience shows, contributions agree so well with Grant?—N. Y. World.

BEAUTIFUL WOMEN.

All women know that it is beauty, rather than genius, which all generations of men have worshipped in the sex. Can it be wondered at, then, that so much of woman's time and attention should be directed to the means of developing and preserving that beauty? Women know, too, that when men speak of the intellect of women, they speak critically, tamely, coolly; but when they come to speak of the charms of a beautiful woman, their language and their eyes kindle with an enthusiasm which shows them to be profoundly, if not indeed, rationally in error. It is part of the natural sagacity of women to perceive all this, and therefore employ every allowable art to become the goddess of that adoration. Fresh to the contrary, as we may, against the arts employed by women for enhancing their beauty, they still stand the eternal fact, that the world does not prefer the society of an ugly woman of genius to that of a beauty of less intellectual acquirements. The world has yet sought no higher mission for woman than to be beautiful, and it would seem that the ladies of the present age are carrying this idea of the world to greater extremes than ever, for all women to whom nature has bestowed the talismanic power of beauty, supply the deficiency by the use of a most delightful toilet article, known as the "Bloom of Youth," which has been introduced into this country by GEORGE W. LATHAM, a delicate beautifier, which smooths out all indentations, freckles, scars, coming tan, freckles, and discolorations from the skin, leaving the complexion clear, brilliant, and beautiful, the skin soft and smooth. With the assistance of this new American trick of a Lady's toilet, female beauty is destined to play a larger part in the admiration of men and the ambition of women than all the arts employed since her creation. Prof. C. F. Chandler, Chemist to the Metropolitan Board of Health, has recently prepared a chemical analysis of this delightful toilet preparation, and reported that the "Bloom of Youth" was harmless, containing nothing injurious to the health. He also noted the fact of using this invaluable toilet acquisition.

WHY IS IT THAT SO MANY CHILDREN die under the age of five years? That a large proportion of children die under that age, has long been a subject of remark, and without a satisfactory cause ascertained, it is certain. Also, it is known that worms exist in the human system from the earliest infancy; therefore mothers, especially mothers, who are more constantly with their children, cannot be too observing of the first symptoms of worms; for so surely as they exist, can they be

MRS. M. R. PRICE, 156-17

PIEDMONT AND ARLINGTON LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY.

JOHN WILDER ATKINSON, General Agent for North Carolina.

THE SUCCESS WHICH THIS COMPANY has met with has been truly remarkable. The chart of LIFE COMPANIES published in New York, shows that this Company had a greater increase of business in 1869 over 1868, than any Company in America, and that it issued a larger amount of risks in 1869 than any, save three Companies. Nor does this exhibit show only rapid progress, but it shows economical and conservative management.

Those inclined to secure an inheritance for their families are respectfully invited to call on the General Agent at his
