WILMINGTON, N. C.
THURSDAY, OCTOBER 27, 1870.

The Laurens Affair—Freaks of Joe Crews—He kills a negro, and beats a negro—Rumors and Reports—Six Men Killed.

Two companies of United States troops went up to Laurens and Newberry to-day. The last intelligence from the scene of action is that seven men were killed. Two of the Constabulary and four negroes were killed in the streets of Laurens. The difficulty here was brewing some time, fanned by the fanciful breath of Joe Crews. It came very near bursting forth on the day of the election. Crews called on his militia to get their arms, they got them, but by the time they had done so, there were some Winchester in the hands of the whites. At this juncture, when a collision seemed impossible to be avoided, Colonel Smith, alone, came into the Public Square, ordered the negroes to put away their arms, to vote, and go home. They obeyed him, when the whites did likewise at the request of the Sheriff, Col. Smith's command left next day, when the constabulary started to arrest a man named Johnson, a Tennesseean, armed and abused him, and thus the smoldering embers were fanned into a breeze.

The gallant Crews, after bringing on the difficulty on the day of election, cowardly sought the protection of the United States troops. Having set the mischief afloat, he intended to take precious care of his cowardly carcass. He started the row to make innocent and ignorant men suffer. They went for him, however, sooned the whole country, so far he is still missing. There are various reports concerning him; some say he is hid in the woods, another that he was pursued to the Galinda River—dred upon and wounded whilst swimming the river. We don't believe that either of the reports is true. "A man born to being need not fear bullet nor water." In this there has been immense excitement in this River City. Rumors of assassinations were rife. Guards were placed out, the colored militia sentined their armory. Apropos, two white men ran off the sentinels and guard, and captured the militia armory of 150 rifles at Clinton.

Yesterday the day before the telegraph wires have been kept in incessant vibration to carry the news to Washington and to General Terry, in Georgia, so as to get more troops. The big rob ain't dead yet; he is kicking again, and there must be more troops to finish him. If Governor Scott will arm the negroes, and will not arm the whites; if he will uphold such soundrailes as Crews in their incendiary and inflaming speeches to the negroes; if he will appoint such men to position and place of honor in law so far as those men are concerned, for the law of the land won't reach them, and they will be reached; and the sooner Governor Scott learns this, and learns too, that South Carolinians are not to be treated as barbarians and tyrannized over by such outlaws as Joe Crews and his hands of ruffians, the better it will be for the prosperity and advancement of the State.

The house of Mr. Edmund Davis was entirely consumed last night, by fire, at about two o'clock. The fire was seen issuing from the back piazza, and was, undoubtedly, the work of incendiaries. Nothing was saved. He was insured for $2,500—lost $4,000. The militia are still guarding their armory here. It is needless to say that our citizens have no design upon them. We understand there will be over two hundred cases of illegal voting sent up from this county. Persons from Newberry, Kershaw, and North Carolina voted in our county. There are five hundred cases from Edgefield, and any quantity occurred at Laurens.

NOTICE.

One case we intend to bring forward. A gentleman informed us that he heard Mr. J. B. Dennis, otherwise known as "General," say to a crowd of colored men, in reference to the affair at Laurens, that they ought to take their Winchester rifles, and go and kill those people off, too, as Mr. Dennis, we believe, has some official connection with the Adjutant-General's office here. As he is so belligerent, we hope that Governor Scott will send him, at least, to the front.

The Phonic adds: We learn that the excitement has subsided at Laurens, and that all is quiet. It is reported that five white and three colored men were killed in the difficulty that occurred; and that the firing, which resulted in the death of these men, commenced between a citizen and a member of the State constabulary. Our informant states that the United States troops sent to Laurens will be received with satisfaction, as the community desire law and order. The whole difficulty, it is claimed, resulted from the firing, which was a protection against malaria. Hundreds of physicians have abandoned all the official specialties and now prescribe this harmless vegetable tonic, and nothing else, as a preventive and cure for all the forms of chills and fever. Vigor is the thing most needed in these cases, as well as in dyspepsia and nervous affections, and Hoeslet's Bitters are the safest, easiest, and most wholesome strengthening preparation that human skill has yet concocted.

The Wealth of New York. The assessed value of real and personal property in the city of New York, as published in the local papers, affords much food for thought. We submit from the "Evening Post" a statement of the aggregate for the last ten years:

1860	1,257,747,827
1861	1,375,747,827
1862	1,493,747,827
1863	1,611,747,827
1864	1,729,747,827
1865	1,847,747,827
1866	1,965,747,827
1867	2,083,747,827
1868	2,201,747,827
1869	2,319,747,827
1870	2,437,747,827

The value of real estate has increased much more steadily and regularly than that of the personal estate. Perhaps one reason for this is the extreme difficulty of reaching the latter by any known mode of assessment, while real estate cannot possibly escape. Setting this aside, however, for the present, we ask the attention of our readers to the rapid growth in value of real estate in New York since 1864. In 1865 the increase was seventeen and three-quarter millions, in 1866 it was over fifty-one millions six hundred thousand; in 1867 it was seventy-six millions four hundred thousand; in 1868 it was sixty-seven and three-quarter millions; in 1869 it was sixty-nine million one hundred thousand; in 1870 it was seventy-two million one hundred and ninety-four thousand. We see, therefore, that the ratio of increase culminated in 1867, and that every year since that has exhibited a reduced increase, that of 1870 being nineteen millions below that of 1867. This fact is important, because it corresponds with the census returns. Population having ceased to increase in New York, the ratio of increase in the value of property has diminished. Nor is there any reason to doubt that the two things have been connected. For in the same period in which the ratio of increase in the value of property has been reduced, there has been a general and remarkable reduction of rents. The newspaper organs of the real estate speculators keep up a constant clamor from time to time, by publishing the increase of property or rents in exceptional cases as being characteristic of the city generally.

As the multiplication of houses has borne no sort of proportion to the augmented value of real estate, the rise in the latter can only be sustained by demolishing all small houses and erecting large ones, which, in point of fact, is the settled policy. Last year, for instance, five hundred tenement houses were erected, and of the other new habitations built, very many were luxurious mansions, large boarding houses or hotels.

If the question be asked whether there is any possibility of a decline in the value of property in New York, we can only reply, which, in point of fact, is the settled policy. Last year, for instance, five hundred tenement houses were erected, and of the other new habitations built, very many were luxurious mansions, large boarding houses or hotels.

Perhaps the most curious fact developed by this table is that New York really did not benefit by the war. On the contrary it was only in 1865 that the new national banking system became firmly established, and it was the immense leverage thus obtained that has caused the subsequent speculative movement. That system increased the circulation, power and influence of the New York banks to an extent no one now seems to appreciate.

AN AUTUMN SUGGESTION.

Now, as heavy fogs arise and searching winds commence to blow; now, as the human body, exhausted by inanimate nature by the heat of summer, begins to wilt and droop; now, ere the inclement winter makes its trying onset; now is the time for a preparatory course of the best acclimating medicine in existence, Hoeslet's Stomach Bitters.

Fever and Ague is rampant in all parts of the country. Quinine, the physicians admit, will not quell the phase of the disease which, at the present pervades the entire West. It is well that it is so, for the remedy (so-called) is deadlier than the malady. But if quinine is inefficient in intermittent fevers, Hoeslet's Bitters is irrefragable. It would be safe to make a contract, under heavy penalties, that any given "Fever-and-Ague District" should be exempted from the disorder for any particular time, provided every inhabitant would take the Bitters according to directions, during the term of the contract. There has never been an instance in which this sterling invigorant and anti-fertile medicine failed to ward off the cholera, when taken daily as a protection against malaria. Hundreds of physicians have abandoned all the official specialties and now prescribe this harmless vegetable tonic, and nothing else, as a preventive and cure for all the forms of chills and fever. Vigor is the thing most needed in these cases, as well as in dyspepsia and nervous affections, and Hoeslet's Bitters are the safest, easiest, and most wholesome strengthening preparation that human skill has yet concocted.

Another Mystery Solved. Chemists being unable to discover the ingredients in fragrant Rozopony, which removes all stains from the teeth and imparts such a peculiar rosianness to the gums, the public are hereby informed that it is a preparation from the Bark of the QUELLAYA SAPONARIA or Soap Tree of Chili, imported for the first time into this country for this special purpose. Such is the purifying and innocuous effect of this rare botanical agent, that it removes discoloration from the most fragile textile fabrics, without injuring a single thread.

Save and mend the pieces, use "FALDING'S GLUE." CHEMISTS BEING UNABLE TO DISCOVER THE INGREDIENTS IN FRAGRANT ROZOPONY, WHICH REMOVES ALL STAINS FROM THE TEETH AND IMPARTS SUCH A PECULIAR ROSIENESS TO THE GUMS, THE PUBLIC ARE HEREBY INFORMED THAT IT IS A PREPARATION FROM THE BARK OF THE QUELLAYA SAPONARIA OR SOAP TREE OF CHILI, IMPORTED FOR THE FIRST TIME INTO THIS COUNTRY FOR THIS SPECIAL PURPOSE.
