For the Journal.

Dear Journal:-In my late periginations I have found my way down to Newbern, Beaufort, &c. Beaufort is a big oblong scattered town, sitting on sand and sea shells, not several feet above tide level .-Plenty of sea breeze, cooling and delicious on the front street. Plenty of burning sun rays on the back streets, with more sand than can be found on the "dry pond" ronte. Court was in session last week and the only case that came to my attention was that of a negress who had been tried for murder and acquitted. She showed her joy by many shouts and gestierlations to the different sojourners, and called forth from her own color many expressions, such as "Ought to have been hung," "Deserved it," "Killed her husband, &c."

Beaufort offers to the sea-side-lovingdlers comfortable quarters, good living, and no musquitors. The Ocean Hotel is an excellent one, and is kept by a gentleman recently a resident of Goldsboro.'-The Atlantic sits out on the water in high tide, and presents a beautiful appearance to boat parties every out on the bay.

Bishop Atkinson made a visit to this town on last Wednesday. He presched to Fort Macon looks like another town opposite Beaufort. We visited it, and found many significant traces of the late war, in the shape of bomb-shall marks. It is now garrisoned by two companies of the Fourth Artillery, and commanded by a Major. The contrast between Smithville and Fort Caswell, the intervening bay and marshes is very great between Beaufort, Fort Macon and their intervening bay and also looked well. It is the voice of all that produce is emiling this year on all things most favorably. On Sunday morning there was an unusual service in the Memorial Chapel of Christ Church, (Epis opal) Newbern Bishop Atkinson confirmed three persons, and ordsined Rev. Mr. Hitton and the Rev. James Bryan Purcell, M. D., to the order of Priests; also, Mr. Flythe to the order of Desgon. In the afternoon ne confirmed ove in private, which may be called a clinic confirmation.
