Conservatism vs. Radicalism-The

FRIDAY, MARCH 22, 1872. From the Raleigh Sentinel.

Difference. During the time from March, 1868, to November, 1870, the State was under the absolute rule of the Radicals and racicalsm. During that time these Radicals, in 1,000 Able-Bodied Men, the interests of "carpet-baggers" and noted robbers and thieves, undertook to enrich > make appropriations to that amount. The people are familiar, to their sorrow, with what was done with the bonds of the State after they were issued in pursuance of that legislation. They were worse than stolen!

> The Radicals then had absolute away!
> They did! The people know they did!
> The world know they did! Civilization > execrates them for it! And well it may. From November, 1870, until now, the Conservatives bere partial rule through the Legislature only. How much did they undertake to increase the public debt? Not a dollar! $000,000,000! Thus the account stands as to increase of the publie debt of the State. Let the people

The Radicals did more than steal millions on millions, and this is undenlable. The Conservatives, so far from plundering and defrauding a down-trodden people, did, by wise and prudent legislation, that which cut down the current expenses of our radical and essentially extravagant system of State Government tens of thousands of dollars per annum, as we will show from day to day from the records.

These Radicals have the unparalleled effrontery to go before the people again this year and ask the people to continue them in power! Was such shameless audacity ever seen before? We think not. They actually put forward the same leading men who stood by and sustained their villainies and crimes against the State and people. They don't even pretend to a "new departure." They propose for the future without any apparent or pretended change. It is a notorious fact, that if they happen to find among them one suspected of being an honest man, they forthwith cast him under-he don't answertheir purpose. Mark what we say. A number of men who have been recorded Radicals, but who have been in fact moderate Republicans, will be turned out of the Radical party and cast adrift! We say emphatically that radicalism and honesty and patrict ism cannot subsist together! If public honesty and virtue go up, radicalism and Radicals go down! We appeal to facts patent to everybody to sustain us in this unqualified declaration. The Radicals, we repeat, undertook in two years of their absolute rule to increase the public burden $26,000,000! Since November, 1870, the people have ruled through the Conservatives in the Legislature— pending that time the public burden has not been increased one cent, but the ordinary expenses of the State decreased tens of thousands of dollars! So the public records show.

Washington Dispatch to N. Y. World Senator Summer and the Cincinnati Convention.

Strong Opposition to Judge Davis Senator Trumbull or Charles Francis Adams Proferred.

Senator Sumner, in conversation with a and not the representative of any particular faction or section. Summer and his friends will do all they can to defeat the nomination of Davis at Cincinnati. It is understood they prefer Senator Trumbull or Charles the first opportunity, reviewing the administration of Grant, and showing how it has tory is filled with all sorts of corruption. General Garfield and Mr. Dawes, whose names were mentioned by Senator Tipton to a Cincinnati reporter as among those opposed to the nomination of Grant, are considered alarmed lest their standing in the party may be com-promised. It has been generally under-stood here that neither of these gentlemen was very enthusiastic for Grant, and that they would prefer some other person should receive the nomination. The opposition within the ranks of the Republican party has always counted upon Dawes and Garfield as men who, while they would not openly oppose Grant, held themselves ready to join anything that promised suc-cessful opposition. Tipton's statement, however, seems to have been premature, if not indiscreet, and both gentlemen have authorized a denial of it. They say they have no sympathy with the Cincinnati movement, and do not wish to be counted as among its supporters.

It is stated in New York that govern-ment officers have discovered an extensive scheme of smuggling silks, laces, gloves, &c., which have been bought in Europe, sent to Hallfax, and thence to St Stephens, New Brunswick, and smuggled across at Calais, reaching Boston, New York and Chicago in large quantities. It is alleged that a Mr. Howard, in Halfas, with Montreal parties, have thus snuggled several hundred thousands of dollars worth the Suddenly it broke near him and covered the decks with old, and Hattie Lyon, sixteen years old. broke near him and covered the decks with millions of mosquitoes, while part of the flock went through the mainsail, leaving nothing but the bolt ropes hanging idly to the spars. Corroborative evidence to this astonishing tale was found in the person of a "down-East skipper," who heard the story, and who, on comparing dates with story, and who, on comparing dates with the narrator, declared that two days afterward he was boarded by the same flock of mosquitoes, and they all wore cancass breeches.

AN EXPEDITION TO NORTH CAR-OLINA.

A Proposition to Capture the Lowery Outlaws Enterprise of a New Yorker.

A reporter of the New York Tones gives an account of an interview with a party named Abbott, in that city, into whose presence down in one of the dark basement rooms of Chambers stree', he was mysteriously introduced, a day or two ago.— Omitting the manner of introduction as described at length we publish the account of his Ku-Klux and war adventures in North Carolina. Much of it sounds like mere stuff; "You have a story to tell?" said the reporter inquiringly.

"Yes, sir," said the host; "do you know

Barry Lowery's gang?" "I have'nt the pleasure of their acquaintance," replied the reporter, in a tone "Well, I do. They are the North Carolina outlaws of which so much has been said in the newspapers about," remarked Abbott. "Have'nt you read about them?" The reporter confessed that he had, but that the accounts had made but little impression on his mind.

"Well, I am down on them, and I want to get square on the whole crew, and the Ku-Khix, too," said Mr. Abbott. "What is the story?" said the reporter, coming to business at once.

"Well, it ain't much, though it will make an item." "I'll write it down as you tell it," said the reporter."

"Take a seat at the table," said Mr. Ab The chair was moved up to the table, the guide was dispatched for a pitcher of ale, and the reporter took down the following brief statement from the lips of his entertainer. Mr. George Abbot, the gentleman already described, is now in correspondence with some of the most prominent citizens of North Carolina, in reference to the outrages committed by the notorious Barry Lowrey and his gang of outlaws, who have long been a terror to the respectable citizens of the State. The Governor of North Carolina has offed a reward of $35,000 for the body, dead or alive, of the leader of this band or horse-thieves, robbers and murderers. Lowrey defies the authorities, threatening to kill anybody who is sent to apprehend him. Mr. Abbot was in North Carolina during the war, being present at the taking of Wilmington. He was also there in 1866 and 1867, under the name of Jack Allen. He was well known as a Northern man and a Unionist, and was regarded by the natives with everything but kindly feelings. He was ordered to leave by the Ku-Klux at that time, but remained under proscription and in daily peril of his life. Mr. Abbot traveled through Robinson and Sampson counties, then infested by Lowrey and the Ku-Klux, in the character of a traveling dealer in hosiery and Yankee notions, though his travels were not confined to these sections of the State, nor his business limited to selling merchandise He visited other counties and used his money in various speculations. He had shooting matches on several occasions with lously escaping death or serious wounds.

In 1866 he formed the acquaintance of a mulato named Jack Livingston, to whom he had been recommended by some friends of his in Samuson, county. of his in Sampson county. It was represented to him that Livingston was a friend to Union people, and would be of service. Livingsten, however, betrayed Abbotto the Ku-Kiux, and he was forced to take refuge in the swamps for two days to escape the murderers who had been put upon his trail. He swore vengeance on Livingstone, who, gentleman yesterday, said he did not favor the nomination of Judge David Davis for the Presidency. While he refused to name his candidate, he expressed the opinion that he should be a national man bis didlike to insure his negrous safety. he alleges, has been secretly connected with his dislike to insure his personal safety,-Abbott left North Carolina in 1867, but returned to the State in the summer of 1809. About midnight, on the day he reached Weldon, he was accosted by a number of men, who ordered him to leave town by Francis Adams. There are those who assert that Sumner himself is rather ambitions of receiving the nomination; but at minutes. Abbott suspecting that he would all events he is open in his opposition to be thrown from the bridge, asked to be Davis. He is said to be preparing a powerful speech, which he will deliver upon ceiving a favorable answer through the interference of Mr. James Gooch, a merchant of the city. Abbott has smarted ever violated the constitution, and bow its his-tory is filled with all sorts of corruntion, ment in the State by the Ku-Klux and the Lowrey outlaws, and his summary ejectment from Weldon, in 1809. He wishes to go back to revenge his wrongs on his enemies, and stimulated by the large reward offered for Lowrey's capture. His intimate knowledge of the haunts and hiding places of he robber band, he believes, eminently fits him to lead an expedition against them.

"If the respectable white people of North Carolina want to be rid of Lowrey, Pm the man can do it," he said at the conclusion of his story. Mr. Abbott was a member of the 57th regiment, volunteers, in the rebellion, was among the troops on Island No. 10, took part in all the engagements of Commodore. Foote's fleet in the Mississippi river, and was on the Mound City when she blew up. He also took part in General Ryan's ill-starred expedition to Cuba.

From further investigation the reporter ascertained that Abbott is now enlisting a small force of determined men, and proposes to start in a few days for North Caro-lina, when the proposed hunt for Lowrey's gang will at once commence.
