Our Condition To-Day. * There were twenty-nine deaths yes terday, twenty-one of them from yel low fever and eight from other causes. The day before there were thirty deaths, twenty-seven from vellow fewr and three from other causes. So the situation is unchanged. Including those being cared for by the Howards, and the various other relief organizapersons under treatment for yellow fever, and there are two thousand and twenty families drawing rations from the relief committee's commissary,-Each family averaging three persons makes a total, exclusive of the orphans, who are otherwise being cared the care of the Odd Fellows and Ma-

It is safe to say, putting all together, that there are not less than seven thou and persons to-day, in Memphis, wholly dependent upon such assistance as the charitably-disposed throughout the Union can give. The frost of last night may kill in part, or altogether, the epidemic which has swept away so many, but it will not as we cannot count with safety on the middle of November, the new year will be upon us before we can be said to have squared our accounts, discharged most of our needy to work, and systematized the dispensation of the charity of our friends. We shall therefore need all the aid we can secure for the Howard Association, but particularly for the citizens' executive committee, upon which falls the burden of caring for the poor. We hope, then, that the generous and good hearts that have so nobly supported us through this trying period of epidemie, full of gloom, a strain upon every emotion and sense, and almost crushing, so overwhelming is its weight of woe, will still uphold us and stand by us until the cup has passed, and the weary days and nights of agony are over. What these have been, let the figures in our "death roll" tell-one thousand four hundred

These are statements of very large size, and were it not that they are endorsed by such authorities as the London Times and Standard, we should hardly consider them worth the notice we have given them. The inventor, of course a Frenchman, proposes to farmer has since dried his tears and take his apparatus to the Vienna expoloaded his shot-gun. The money was sition, and if the hopes of his friends and himself are realized it will proba-bly stand at the head of all the new inventious exhibited on that occasion for genuine utility. It seems probable that the Legislature of South Carolins, now in session. will adopt the suggestion of Governor Moses, of that State, and enact a law 'scaling" the State debt. The Republican papers of that State are strongly in favor of the proposition, which has for its aim, as explained by the Charleston Chronicle, "an honorable, and under the circumstances, a Southern States, rising barometer, fair and final settlement of the vexed condition of South Carolina finances." The only trouble now to be appreonded is the manipulation of members by scheming bond-brokers. In North' Carolina and Virginia similer propositions may be expected in due

November, 1873, will be noted in the future history of Raleigh as the month of many weddings. There are only nine prisoners in Wake county jail. Two of this number are from Johnston county, sent there for safe keeping. The Charlotte Democrat says : Gov. Vance will deliver the address at the Agricultural Fair, at Hickory Tavern, on the 30th inst. He was compelled cline the invitation to address th people at the Greenville (S. C.) Fair.

champion cotton picker of the age. The Munroe Enquirer says : Mr. J. W. The Newton Vindicator says: The Baptist brethren at Catawba intend creeting a large church at that place the ensuing spring, the brick for-which have already been made. The congregation, we learn, numbers about hundred and twenty-five members. The Methodists are also speaking of

The Charlotte Democrat says : We Darts from the Devil; Or Cupid Abused saw at the Bank of Mecklenburg last week two bars of gold from the King's Mountain Mine, worth about $1,200.— We are pleased to learn that the Mine is paying handsomely. We are now reliably informed that this gentleman has still the editorial management of the paper referred to, and has no intention of changing his residence he says, for the next forty or fifty years. The Charlotte Democrat says: We publish this week the letter of Col. Wm. A. Allen, of Duplin county, to which we alluded last week. Col len represents Duplin and Wayne counties in the Legislature, (and is one of the best Senators in that body,) and of course is sensitive when the action and conduct of legislators is assailed or criticised. If every member did his duty as promptly as Col. Allen and a few others, the Legislature would not remain in session more than three weeks, and there would not be so much cause of complaint.
