THE BLISS OF IGNOBANCE-NORTH CANOLINA AND THE WAR.

Now, really, we never knew blessedness of ignorance until we perused the following paragraphs in that pleasant Petersburg paper, the News, in its issue of Wednesday last. The News graciously tells its read ers that: "As our sister State of North Caro ins has been much misrepresented to the part her gallant sons acted in the late civil war, we publish in the News this morning what we consider a rull vindication of that old Common wealth from the aspersions attempted to be cast upon her fame. It has been the mistaken impression of many not unfriendly to her, that North Carolina only furnished a small portion of the troops who composed the Confederate army and helped fight through the four years of bloody strife for the liberties which we sought to establish.

erties which we sought to establish. But, as the figures we present this morning will show, her quots of troops exceeded her voting population, and equaled, perhaps, any other State in the Confederacy, except Virginia, in proportion to population, and consti-tuted one-eith of the whole army of 600,000 mean in arms! 600,000 men in arms!

We think the facts and figures as thus stated by the able writer whom we quote, are correct, and that the old North State can fairly claim, in pro-portion to her population, to have fur-nished as much muscle and blood, and to have borne her part as nobly in the conflict, as any of her sister Sta:es." Now until we saw these lines we had never supposed for a moment that aware that the old State needed "vindication", or that "aspersions" had

The contest is now between the propprietors of the Jouranl and the entire fraternity of printers in this city, We do not propose to discuss what right outsiders have to interfere in the conduct of our private business affairs nor do we propose to submit to any +uch interference. In this country, at least, the right of men combined together to drive othersfrom employment at wages satisfactory to them is not acknoweledged, but the right of private individuals to conduct their private business as to them may seem best, without outside interference is acknowledged. We feel sure that we can get printers to work for us at the rates we propose, indeed before the sun sets, unless some accident detains the train, printers will be here to work for us at our rates and men too who come to us with such indoreement as to give assurance that the JOURNAL will appear to-morrow moring and henceforth as usual so put auend to our troubles.
