EDITORIAL NOTES.

GEORGE DORR received $50,000 for illustrating Shakespeare.

Cor. Fennell hears that the Prince of Wales is coming to the Centennial. Cor. Sperry's eldest daughter is said to be about to marry a Spanish nobleman.

In 1766 there were only 25,000 or 30,000 Baptist communicants. They are now said to number about 2,000,000.

A large number of professional and business men of Louisville, Ky., have organized a society for wearing old clothes.

WM. O. BYRANT, Whitehall Ried and George W. Curtis will be the judges at the inter-collegiate oratorical contest in New York January 31.

A correspondent of the New York Herald suggests a popular Centennial ticket. Gen. Sherman for President, and Gen. Joseph E. Johnston for Vice-President.

The London tea merchants are considerably exercised over the new orders relative to the analysis of green teas, as it is well known that all this class of teas are colored artificially.

The skeleton of the horse that carried General Sheridan on his historic twenty-mile ride to Winchester, Va., during the war, is owned by a Rochester, N. Y., man, and is to be exhibited at the Centennial.

The Western Union Telegraph Company are about to lay pneumatic tubes, two and a quarter inches in diameter, between some of their offices in New York, and are also preparing to put some of their wires underground.

Taking photographs at night! It is done, nevertheless, and by burning bisulphate of carbon with peroxide of nitrogen, a light is produced which has the same artistic effect as sunlight.

The anonymous old gentleman who has been announced for a time as intending to establish a college of music in Central Park, with an endowment of $5,000,000, is now said to be Mr. Samuel Wood, of New York City.

The Jackson (Miss.) Clarion, the leading Democratic paper of the State, draws up a bill of indictment against Governor Ames, upon it asks his impeachment. It charges that he has corrupted the judiciary and ignored the law in his appointment of Judges; that in defiance of law he has dismissed Judges who would not be his servile tools; that he has sought to control the decision of Judges of his own appointment; that he has placed the civil in subordination to the military power; that he has incited riot and murder for partisan ends; and in appointing certain revenue agents he violated the Constitution—art. 4, section 38.

The New York Nation, in a recent article entitled "The Winding Up of the Freedman's Savings Bank," urges upon Congress, at its next session, the duty of a thorough investigation into the manner in which the affairs of the bank were conducted while in operation and are being worked up, now that it is defunct. The subject, the Nation pertinently observes, is not a savory one for Republican newspapers, and exposure of it is not now to be expected as a Republican feat. Therefore, it says, we earnestly commend the notion of the honest man of the Democratic party when next winter in Congress they begin the great work of investigating the dark places in Republican history.

A new line of fortifications is being built rapidly around Paris, including detached forts of the first class. The circle of the defenses around the city will extend over one hundred miles, and it is estimated that the lines of a besieging army would have to be developed over a distance of about one hundred and thirty miles. The present forts, which received such a battering from the Prussian rams during the winter of 1870-71, will be allowed to rot as the interior or second line of defense. Any future defense of Paris will require one thousand regular soldiers.

MASSACHUSETTS MADE ALIVE.

The fabulous millions of debt into which the Southern States have been plunged by the extravagance, corruptions and crimes of the miserable adventurers who seized their governments immediately after the war has been and is the subject of serious consideration. It will stand a lasting disgrace upon the government which permitted it—nay which ordered it. Yet when facts regarding Radical administrations in States where local governments had not been overturned, and where tax payers and intelligent white people controlled affairs, and not ignorant and prejudiced blacks, are published, we find the condition of things but little better. The great extravagance in the Federal administration, and the unprecedented cost of the government are well known to our people. We have seen, however, a statement in regard to the debt of Massachusetts which is really astounding, and which is now claiming the thoughtful consideration of her people.

Massachusetts is, par excellence, the Radical State of the Union; that is she has been, but even among her people Radical extravagance and crimes are beginning to bear their legitimate fruit, and we look to see her arrayed in strong opposition to a party which has inflicted so grievous a burden upon her citizens.

In 1865 the debt of Massachusetts was forty-three millions of dollars; in 1870 it was sixty-three millions, and in 1875 it is one hundred and eleven and a half millions. And it must be recollected that this terrible increase has been since the return of peace. The close of the war found the State burdened with forty-three millions of dollars of debt. After ten years of uninterrupted Radical rule in every department of its government, the debt has been nearly tripled.

In the face of these startling and alarming figures can it be wondered that a State which had been safe to the Republican party by majorities often exceeding seventy-five thousand that falling below it, should now cause congratulation in the party by electing the Radical ticket by five thousand majority. If in the next five years, if that party can retain control of the State so long, the increase in the public debt is continued with anything like the former ratio, Radicalism will be buried in the same grave with the credit and prosperity of the State. In reading the statement of the public debt of Massachusetts we believe we know the cause of the rapid decline of Radicalism in that State.

THE SPEAKERSHIP.

The foremost candidates for the Speakership of the House of Representatives are Randall and Kerr. A special to the Cincinnati Commercial says the friends of Mr. Randall are using the argument against Mr. Kerr that he is Tilden's candidate for Speaker, and that the plan is to make him a candidate for Vice-President next year on a hard money platform. Some of Kerr's friends think that he will make as much headway, and be quite as strong a candidate for the Vice-Presidency if he gets the position of Chairman of the Committee on Appropriations, which will give him the leadership of the House. A gentleman who arrived from the south-west reports that three Democrats from Arkansas and three more from Texas are for Randall. Lamar, of Mississippi and Senator Gordon are throwing their influence for Randall, and this will have a very considerable effect. It is said that Ohio Democrats are all opposed to Mr. Kerr, while Illinois Democrats are all for him. The New York Herald makes the following points: "When it is argued against Mr. Randall that he accepted the back pay voted by the last Congress, it should not be forgotten that Mr. Kerr, his competitor, also accepted back pay when voted by a Congress of a few years ago. The difference between Kerr and Randall's position and that of Mr. Kerr is the difference between cant and sincerity, and every sincere Democrat will rejoice in the opportunity to show his respect for courage and manliness of opinion by welcoming Mr. Randall to the office of Speaker."

From a statement printed in a New York paper, it appears that the public servants of the metropolis receive salaries which compare very favorably with those paid many of the high officers of the Federal Government. The Mayor for instance, receives $12,000 per annum, or $2,000 more than a member of the Cabinet; the Comptroller receives $10,000, as much as the Secretary of the Treasury; while the Deputy Comptroller is paid $7,000 or $1,000 more than an Assistant Secretary of the Treasury. These are good fat salaries for municipal officers, and it is not to be wondered at that some of the papers suggest the propriety of a reduction.
