DEMOCRATIC COUNTY TICKET.

FOR HOUSE OF COMMONS.—R. J. Taylor.
FOR SHERIFF.—Jesse M. Taylor.
FOR REGISTER OF DEEDS.—A. Bryant.
FOR TREASURER.—John W. Farmer.
FOR SURVEYOR.—E. R. Ellis.
FOR CORONER.—H. W. Peale.

Election on Tuesday, November 2nd, 1880.

The result of the enumeration shows an increase of population in this State of a little over 30 per cent in the last ten years.

Democratic organization goes bravely on, Hancock and Jarvis clubs are being formed in all parts of the State. When shall we have one in Wilson?

The sectional cry of a "Solid south" will not be heard after Hancock's election. Even the "Solid North" of 1860 will be forgotten. The success of the democratic ticket will ensure peace, harmony and fraternal feelings.

The Cononchet Lothario is gazetted to stump Indiana. But when Conkling begins his canvass, he will find Senator Thurman on hand everywhere he goes, and ready to reply to him. There will be no need of Gov. Sprague's Shotgun, to make Indiana too hot for him.

General Sherman, refuses to furnish any more of General Hancock's letters, to him. He wishes now, he not furnished the one which has been so extensively published. His letters to General Hancock are now called for, but in vain. All soldiers are not Statesmen, and the conquest would be too humiliating.

MAINE POLITICS.

Marshall Jewell declares that Maine is safe for the Republicans, but James G. Blaine Chairman of the Republican State Committee in Maine telegraphs the Chairman of the Republican Committee in Vermont. "You are having a splendid dress parade in Vermont, in Maine the fight is actual and bitter." Weaver, the Greenback Candidate for President is heading for Maine, where the Greenbackers have fused with the democrats, and promise to make things lively.

CONNECTICUT CANVASS.

The democrats of Connecticut have nominated English for Governor and Ford for Lieut. Governor, an excellent ticket, one that will inspire enthusiasm, bring to the polls the whole strength of the democracy of the State, with a large share of independent voters, and it is believed insure the success of the national as well as the State ticket. Mr. Eaton, the sterling patriot and able democratic Senator from that State, will make strenuous efforts for the success of the party.—His own term of office will expire on the 4th of March next, and the Legislature to be chosen next November, will elect his successor. The people of Connecticut, cannot afford to see another, occupy the seat, which he fills so well.

WORK TO BE DONE.

It is the party, not the candidate that the country will pass upon, at the election in November next. Democrats should not forget that however vulnerable Garfield may be, he will be supported by the full strength of the republican party. The democracy to be successful must go to work in earnest both for our national and State ticket, and continue to work until the polls are closed on the evening of the election. We repeat, it is the republican party, well disciplined and thoroughly organized, that we have to defeat. That party must be arraigned at the bar of public opinion, and its crimes against civil and constitutional liberty, held up to the indignation of the American people. Its extravagance and corruption must be thoroughly ventilated, and indelibly impressed upon the minds of the overburdened, tax-paying people of this country. If true to themselves, they will condemn with an overwhelming voice, the party which has so long robbed and plundered them.

OMENS EASY.

We were told by republican organs soon after the nomination of Garfield that an Eagle "towering in his pride of place" suddenly swooped down from his airy home, and perched upon Garfield's residence in Washington City, about the time of his nomination. That portentous event has been recently matched, by the failure of a Garfield kite to fly at all, while a Hancock kite sailed up and away triumphantly. An exasperated republican, it is said mounted his charger, and unsuccessfully attempted to ride it down. Omens are now easy—let us have peace.

NEGRO ORATORS.

The South, it is said, is soon to be visited by colored republican orators from the Northern States. They will come charged with the mission to convert such of their brethren, as have been voting the democratic ticket—to stir up race prejudices, if necessary to bring them back to the republican fold. When democratic negroes go North, and attempt to address their color in favor of Hancock, they are invariably mobbed. We are yet to hear of the first interference with the right of free speech in the South. If these sable orators behave themselves they will not be molested, in their labors, in behalf of their republican masters. But the Southern negroes have hardly forgotten their past experience, and are better able than heretofore, to judge who are their best friends.

CENSUS ENUMERATORS.

The census enumerators are coming in for their share of abuse. Ambitious Cities and Towns, do not show as large a population as has been claimed for them, and of course, they have been badly swindled by the census enumerators. Politicians also have missed their calculations. A much larger increase in certain localities than was anticipated, appears,—fraud is charged, and the superintendent of the census is in trouble. Great care was taken to have an accurate enumeration, and in the absence of proof to the contrary, the reported population must determine the relative size of Cities and the pretentious claims of smaller communities. The politicians also should be held to strict proof of fraud in the enumeration. It is easy to make the charge, but a great national work should not be discredited, without positive proof.

SHAM FIGHTS.

The people North and West have been amusing themselves this summer with Sham fights. This diversion at the present time we think one of very questionable propriety. Suppose Confederate soldiers and sailors, were to assemble at Mobile Ala. or New Orleans, in such large numbers, as were gathered together, of Union soldiers and sailors, at Bordentown, N. J. last week? The Conklings, Camerons, Blaines and all the small fry of republican orators, would point to it as pregnant proof, that the South was fermenting a new rebellion. Especially if leading Confederate Generals participated in and directed the military maneuvers. If the North and West have grown to be such a military people, and have acquired such a fondness for military display, it would be in better taste we think, to postpone its indulgence, until after the election.

A Visit to Hancock.

Mr. E. J. Hale, who always looks after all North Carolinians who go to New York, accompanied the party of Charlotte gentlemen to see Gen. Hancock, and in his letter to the Raleigh News he tells about it: "Like those gentlemen, I went as a North Carolinian, not as a New Yorker. We found a plain-looking gentleman, in civilian's clothes, a better face and person than are indicated by any of the pictures of him that I have seen, about six feet high, full habit, without obesity, slightly gray, the only thing about him that militates against the idea of a handsome man being a remarkably full double chin. He was thoroughly courteous and agreeable and had something pleasant to say to each one of the dozen or more gentlemen who sent their cards to him along with ours. They were from Missouri, Mississippi, Massachusetts, New York, Louisiana, &c. He found that the Mississippian lives near his son, who is planting there; that the Missourian in the vicinity of the spot where he had located the land warrants issued to him by the government for his services in the Mexican war; I discovered that he is as fond of field sports as his and my old friend, Gen. Dyer; that he has been in North Carolina; that he has more aspirations for his portrait from that State than from any other and in other such pleasant chat passed the quarter of an hour that we felt at liberty to inflict upon him. I need not say that we all came away most pleasantly impressed, a fit supplement to his noble utterances on political and national subjects.

THE "BRINDLE-TAIL."

Among the many new additions, to the coinage of words to the English language, we find several epithets of peculiar significance—peculiar in having no well marked etymological value, and susceptible of conveying one idea to one mind and another to another, without the objection of being hampered by authority.

These expletives, representing an evolution, or making of language from the necessary exegesis of thought, stand aloof on the one hand, from what we denominate "Slang," and on the other, fall far below the legitimate vocabularies of Webster and Worcester. They have been invented to convey a signification not otherwise attainable, in the description of certain characters who, at different periods of our post bellum times have floated to the surface and asked for public favor and support.—They are mainly denunciatory epithets serving as a kind of genteel "cuss words" for the christian and materialist, and so admirably adopted to the chameleon hues of the class to which they are applied, that the "Fool" an his "Errand" has affirmed, that the author of "Carpet-bagger" is "akin to the heaven—descended."

This appropriate patronymic was first bestowed upon the peripatetic pariahs of New England, who came South after the war to prey upon the payments of a "Lost Cause,"—and sulking around the graves of issues arbitrated and settled by the sword, this northern "Carpet-bagger" met and courted his free-love partner, the native "Scalawag." A miscegenation banquet, prepared by ghoul, and attended by all that is base and despicable, witnessed this crime against society—this union between "Scalawag" and "Carpet-bagger."

Nature permits many evils, but will not allow an indefinite multiplication of them. The same genus with a different species is permitted to carry out the injunction. "Be fruitful," but the laudance of the command is not given to the balance of the stock. The hybrid is a slur, and an insult to Nature, and she resents it with a terrible revenge. Society in some sort imitates Nature, and while she submits to many wrongs, a proliferation of wrongs will die of its own negation of sight.

The union of the scalawag and "Carpet-bagger" was a fruitful union, but the offspring was a mule, a hybrid, a distorted caricature, destitute of all the good there is in society, and doomed to extinction with his own wretched end. He is partly-colored like Jacob's cattle, and in future ages, the archives of patronomatology will discover why he is called "Brindle-tail."

If the epithet "Carpet-bagger" be "a stroke of genius," the author of "Brindle-tail" deserves to be ranked among the geni. No common mortal without a revelation from the other world, could have bethought himself of such a name, for such a people. Quaint and significant, giving the greatest latitude to definition, this word sums up, and concentrates all the elements of political hucksterism. It is the nom de plume of the disaffected, the talisman of the Greely-democrat, the "cuss-word" of the pious politician, and the disembodied spirit of the strict party man, who votes for the regular nominee, and engineers the election of the renegade apostate who, like

"Pluri-bas-tah, come to love it, As the money poured upon him, In a golden stream upon him Better, ever day, and better. As the pile grew on increasing, So his love grew stronger with it, And he loved his shining money, Better, every day, and better; Better, than truth or honor, And he bowed and knelt before it, Not one day in seven only, But each morning's early sunlight Brought the thought of this his idol, And each night's uneasy slumber Brought the dreams of this his idol: And he bowed and knelt before it, Daily, hourly, without ceasing, In the street and in the market, In the mud and on the side-walk, Here he knelt, and cringed, and grumbled To the duty he worshipped. Should you ask me 'What this idol?' What this god that 'Reu-e-ga-do' Knelt before, and bowed and prayed to, Prayed to with such zeal and fervor That he cut his pants loons through— Cut his knees upon the gravel?' This should be my instant answer: "Money, money, money, money." Copper, silver, and dimes and quarters, All receive some veneration, But the god he wildly worshipped, Traded off his heart and soul for, (As of old did Deceit Faustus, Swapping jackstones with the devil) Was the king of dimes and quarters, Was the god of "Reu-e-ga-do." And the prayers which he, on Sunday, Offered to the King of Heaven, From his lips fell strange and odd, But the week-day prayer he uttered, From his heart came hot and earnest, And the language ran thus wise: "Potent, and ALMIGHTY, DOLLAR!" This is "Brindle-tail" himself, the hybrid product of "Carpet-bagger" and scalawag. A wart upon society, hated before he was born, his generation will die and descend into the lowest of Mahomet's hells.

Physicians recommend Slaxin's Indian Vermifuge as a reliable agent to destroy and expel worms. It is perfectly safe and easily administered. It is cheap and will give satisfaction.

Truth and Honor.
Query:—What is the best family medicine in the world to regulate the bowels, purify the blood, remove costiveness and biliousness, aid digestion and tune up the whole system? Truth and honor compels us to answer, Hop Bitters, being pure, perfect and harmless. Ed. See another column.

THE GAY TOLL COTTON GIN.

I shall commence picking cotton at the Gay gin on the 1st day of September next, and promise the old patrons and public generally every accommodation afforded by any gin in this section. Having added to the old gin house a packing room enables me to also add another lint room, giving me a total of three lint rooms to each of which there will be placed a sixty saw gin, or a total of One Hundred and Eighty Saws, a capacity of Ginning Thirty Bales of Cotton per Day.

I shall use the celebrated Hall & Brown cotton gin all of which have been put in thorough repair. I shall also use my latest invention in Cotton Presses the

WILSON COTTON PRESS

This press has the great advantage of having two swinging press boxes attached to one frame and using only one power, an advantage of two in one. By this means I am able to pack all the cotton ginned by the one hundred and eighty saws. Parties coming to this gin can certainly get their cotton picked without delay. I purpose to gin as cheaply and upon the most accommodating terms as any. Fair dealing shall be my motto. All parties patronizing this gin will confer a favor to come to me with one plaint if any, without delay as I guarantee satisfaction. Bagging and ties will be furnished at my gin. B. H. TYSON.
