Poetry.

I am looking over my labors By the light of the setting sun; For I see by the lengthening shadows That my day is nearly done.

My work for the blessed Master Is drawing towards its clo-e; Far less have I done in the vinevard

And yet while the daylight lingers, I will work as well as I may, Nor waste the remaining moments Regretting a misspent day.

And Oh! if now in the vineyard, Are any led there by my hand, I give you tids word at our parting, As near to the gateway I stand:

Do all you can for the Master; Do better than I have done; And then, when the day is ended, You may welcome the setting sun.

A Connecticut Curiosity.

The following remarkable statement has been journeying through the Connecticut press:

"Now it is a Yankee, Mr. Samuel Bromley, of Mystic River, in the State of Connecticut, who announces his ability to live for ten hours with his nose and mouth hermetically sealed. Where is this thing to stop?

The individual referred to above is the popular barber of Mystic, a little village en the Sound, between New Lond in and Watch Hill. He has a unique office in the main street of that delightful old-time hamlet, and is well known along the coast as 'Fat Sam. Those who know him see no reason why he should no: be able to accomplish what is coupled with his name, for he is able to breath for a time without the use of mouth or nostrits, communication between his lungs and the outside world being kept up through his ears.
