Rangers of Discord.

At a time like this, we submit there should be no discord in our ranks.

Harmony is what we need—what we must have,

we hope to succeed.

Differences of opinion should be tolerated upon minor matters, every democrat should not be expected to think alike upon all subjects.

Some latitude of expression of individual sentiments must be allowed; or it is evident that the independent element will increase, into a dangerous antagonizing power,

Honest and hostile criticism cannot be relied upon, to exercise a restraining influence, or to win back those who are inclined to express independent views.

It is far better we think, to agree to disagree upon some objects, than to keep up the fratricidal warfare, which is daily weakening the democratic party.

We make赔ably at the wrangling and dissension in the ranks of our opponents, while presenting to the world a fair spectacle of disunion and want of harmony. All who claim to be democrats, and who are seeking office under "republican endorsement," but expect to vote the democratic ticket at the next election, ought to be left to enjoy their "whim-whams" in peace.

The attempt to read out of the party men who have always supported the consistent democrats, and who announce their intention still to remain in the party is a rash experiment, and if at all defensible, cannot now be afforded. It is, as Shakespeare says,

"The eagle interfliteth birds to sing of him that know what they mean thereby."

Surely the great democratic party of North Carolina, so strongly entrenched in the affections of the people, and so well assured of victory in the coming contest, can afford to overlook a little propensity here and there towards the exercise of private judgment and the expression of individual opinions.

We have purposely avoided mentioning any democrat to whom the above remarks might seem applicable, and while we do not attempt to ourselves any authority to recommend the same, we trust we may be permitted to remind both the critics and critics of that saying of the wise King of Israel, "Behold how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity!"

The Position of the South.

That the South is solid for the Democracy should occasion no surprise; indeed, it would be truly "absolutely strange" if it were otherwise.

Every instinct of shrewdness which characterizes a brave and courageous people, has impelled the South to assume and maintain an attitude of solid support of the party, which has been her steadfast friend since the close of our war.

For seventeen weary years of oppression and wrong the democratic party has stood by her, aiding and assisting her against the tyranny and outrages of the republican party. In the dark days of military supremacy and carpetbag misrule, the National Democratic party stood steadfast and true to the South, and now when the effort is being made by the republican party to oppress the South and destroy her prosperity by restoring her to the greedy clutches of her former oppressors and plunderers, the same party as represented in the Halls of Congress, stands solidly up in her defense, contending for her every foot of ground.

The same enlightened chivalry—so to nominate a negro. The reasons feelings which prompted the nomination of the man to this record—heretofore still prompt her action were openly advocated to remain solid for the defense and formed the staple of many oratory. The dangers adverted hitherto by the same steadfast friends have not yet carried off the much divided spirit of anti-slavery. We took no stock toward the South has never been in the quarrel and we shall take none in the fight. We command the people having voted no and should govern himself accordingly, believing that it was of more importance that the will of the people should be obeyed than any law should be made.

The Long Range Candidate.

Mr. G. W. Stanton of this county has well earned the apportionment of the long range candidate of Southern Congressmen being removed from the seats to which they were elected by the people, in order that the republican majority may be increased in the House, so that they may be able to carry out with impunity, their schemes of corruption and break down the solid support of the South for the democracy. The former they may accomplish, but in the latter they will fail. The South cannot be moved by outrage and hostility.

There would have been no solid South, if the republican party had acted in a spirit of justice-towards us, and exhibited any signs of friendship, during the many years that have elapsed since the close of our civil war. But it cannot now be expected that our people spanned the Atlantic to find Hubs, O'Hara and Humphrey placed their names in nomination amid loud cheers from their respective followers, but when Sharpe proceeded to place Stanton in nomination the effect was magical.

In the Congressional convention the friends of Hubs, O'Hara and Humphrey placed their names in nomination amid loud cheers from their respective followers, but when Sharpe proceeded to place Stanton in nomination the effect was magical.

Messrs. W. S. Cook of Cumberland, Thos. J. Armstrong of Peterder, and O. L. Chestnut of Sampson, were made temporary secretaries by acclamation.

Mr. Huske of Cumberland, moved that as the roll of counties was called each delegation should name one member to act as committee on credentials, and also one each to compose respectively the committees on permanent organization and on platform. The following were named.

On motion of Mr. Allen, of Duplin, the nomination of Mr. Welcom, of Wharton J Green, of Cumberland, was declared the nominee by acclamation.

Resolved, That we, the representatives of the democratic party for the Third Congressional District, in convention assembled, at Warsaw this day, the 29th of July, 1882, do hereby endorse the plattform laid down and endorsed by our party in convention for the State at Raleigh July 5th, 1882.

That we believe our duty to be to adhere firmly to the doctrine and principles of the national democratic party, and to do everything in our power to advance and promote the interests of the democratic party in national, State and county government.

Mr. Bruce Williams, of Pendleton, presented a minority report, adding the following:

Resolved, That we, the representatives of the democratic party for the Third Congressional District, in convention assembled, at Warsaw this day, the 29th of July, 1882, do hereby endorse the plattform laid down and endorsed by our party in convention for the State at Raleigh July 5th, 1882.

Such scenes have never before occurred in Wilson, and on account of their demoralizing effects, it is to be hoped never will again occur anywhere in North Carolina. When it becomes evident that the convention was and would be controlled by the negro delegates, we were prepared to witness scenes of disorder and confusion, resulting from their ignorance of parliamentary proceedings, but throughout the tumultuous crowd, dignified by the name of a convention, all sense of decency and propriety seemed to be set at nought, and the representatives of Africa revelled and riot ed as their brutal instincts prompted.

Some of our citizens regarded it as a first class show of the serious-comic order, while others were overwhelmed with shame and disgruntled at the saucy performances. Not a few white republicans and some who had been thinking of voting the republican ticket, have been heard to say, that they were done with the republican party, and that they should hereafter vote for democrats.

The failure of the convention, in view of the majority report, as regards the question, the minority report, on a call of counties, was voted down by a vote of 254 to 79. The majority report was then adopted.

Mr. Bowkin, taking his seat, read the convention for the honor conferred, and dedicated the convention ready for business.

On motion of Mr. Newton, of Columbus, the nomination of Mr. Powell, Sampson, made able and eloquent speech, nominating the present member, Hon. John W. Shackelford, of Onslow.

Mr. J. N. Stoddard, of Duplin, seconded the nomination of the Hon. John W. Shackelford.

He is a good and honest representative, who, for the last four years, has labored faithfully for the South, and now when the effort is being made by the republican party to oppress the South and destroy her prosperity by restoring her to the greedy clutch of her former oppressors and plunderers, the same party as represented in the Halls of Congress, stands solidly up in her defense, contending for her every foot of ground.

Wilson county will send representatives to the legislature who are instructed first and last all the time against prohibition.

Mr. A. F. Paddison graciously presented the name of Hon. A. M. Wadell, of New Hanover.

Maj. W. M. Bobbin's speech at the Tredegar democratic convention had the true ring. He said he had voted for prohibition, but hence forward, in any legislative office which he might hold, he would consider that upon the question of prohibition he was an instructed member, his people having voted no and should govern himself accordingly, believing that it was of more importance that the will of the people should be obeyed than any law should be made.

Mr. W. E. Murchison, of Moore, seconded the nomination of Mr. D. H. McLean.

Mr. N. A. Steedman, of Bladen, made a earnest and forcible speech, reviewing the situation and endorsing the candidacy of Col. H. B. Short, of Columbus.

Mr. T. H. Smith, of Bladen, placed in nomination Col. H. B. Short, of Columbus.

Mr. R. S. Huske, of Cumberland, spoke, advocating the claims of Col. W. H. Short.

Capt. J. W. Ellis, of Columbus, seconded the nomination of Col. H. B. Short.

Mr. W. E. Murchison, of Moore, seconded the nomination of Mr. D. H. McLean.

Short; Harnett, Moore and Cumberland for Mr. McLean.
