

THE WILSON ADVANCE

JOSEPHUS and C. C. DANIELS
Editors and Proprietors.

The Advance endeavors to be an impartial and unpartisan journal, serving special interests to the extent in which it is published. It is democratic in its views and will accept no aid or contribution from any party or person who is hostile to Democratic principles. It believes in the State and the State's interests and will spare no effort to accomplish that result. It will seek to remedy the industrial development of the State and will take no interest in any other matter in its power to aid the farmers and laboring men in their efforts to better their condition. It is a non-sectarian journal. Every effort is made to establish a liberal and progressive school of thought and to give the public a fair and impartial view of the State and its people. It is a non-sectarian journal. Every effort is made to establish a liberal and progressive school of thought and to give the public a fair and impartial view of the State and its people.

The South will remain solid so long as the battle flag of the Republican party is the "bloody shirt."

Great Scott, did you ever see the like? Chinese and Infidels against white men and Christians.—New Bern Journal.

Capt S. B. Alexander cannot accept the nomination for the Senate this year.—Charlotte Chronicle, Why not?

GEN. RUFUS BARNINGER, an old fashioned Republican, has left the sinking ship of Radicalism and comes out squarely for Cleveland.

DOCKERY is evidently very much afraid of a joint canvass. Judge Fowle—it is evident—is too much for him—or he at least thinks so.

I doubt the propriety of the "Third Party" movement. Prohibition, and not office is what we want.—Rev. R. N. Price in Holston Methodist.

If the time ever comes when war taxes should be reduced it does seem to us that hour has arrived.—The Republican party stands firmly planted in the way of any reduction, however.

What our neighbors think of us. Is there not truth in it? "Every man in the United States, except saloon keepers, is expected to and forced to obey the laws of the land."—Toronto Globe.

This issue between the two parties both in the Nation and State is self respect and self preservation. In the Nation the tariff and the bloody shirt represent that issue—in the State white supremacy as represented by the present system of county government.

'Chinese' Harrison and 'Gano' Morton! The epithets are not nice, but they have 'got there all the same'; and they arise from candid examination of public records on matters of legitimate public importance in the pending canvass.—N. Y. Star, Dem.

The Tarboro Southerner speaks of the nomination of Dockery as "the con nomination." Well said, brother, for truly the "con" controlled the convention which Dockery describes as "a noble body of men as ever assembled in our State."

The Democrats of Indiana are organizing that State as it has seldom been organized. All factions of the party—and there are several—are united and exerting themselves earnestly to secure every vote possible for Cleveland and Thurman. The prospects of Democratic success in that State very bright everything says.

This Salisbury Truth is a weekly newspaper that has been adopted as the official organ of the Knights of Labor. The Truth—true to the best interests of the laboring men of the State—has come out squarely for the Democratic party.

There are two parties in North Carolina—and only two. The white man who does not throw his influence to the Democratic party is an ally—whether he intends it or not—of Radicalism. It is every man's imperative duty to declare himself unequivocally for one party or the other.

There are now living in Manum township Durham county, ten men over sixty nine years of age who voted for William Henry Harrison in 1840. Nine of these old men will repudiate the grandson and vote for Cleveland.—Daily Tobacco Plant.

The Duclos French General, Boulanger, and the Premier, M. Florquet fought a duel in Paris, France, last Friday. Gen. Boulanger suggested that M. Florquet was an impudent liar and a duel followed in a few hours. M. Florquet was not wounded. Gen. Boulanger was pierced through the neck and will die. He will probably keep quiet for a while now.

Levi Morton, the keeper of the Money-bags, has his eye upon the North Carolina shekels. He is a party to the suit to recover $9,000,000 out of the whites of North Carolina who were plucked, robbed, insulted and slandered by the carpet-baggers, sealawags and negro assistants.

The Democrats of Craven county have nominated Mr. H. S. Nunn editor of the New Bern Journal for the Senate. Missrs J. W. Lane Joel Kinsey and R. A. Russell, for the House are clever genial gentlemen we hope will lead the Democracy to a Glorious victory this fall.

Shelby, the capital of the great Democratic county of Cleveland, had a big time last week. A torchlight procession fully a mile long, stores and dwellings illuminated, and plenty of good speeches! Cleveland and Catawba will try for the banner this year. Catawba says she will hold it. Cleveland says not. Look out for a big vote.

J. H. Lindsay, Sec. and Treas., says in his paper, the Kernersville News and Farmer: The next meeting of the North Carolina Press Association will be composed wholly of men who have the interest of the profession near heart. If any one succeeds in getting to Morehead City upon the representation that he is editing a paper, and it afterwards appears that he is not, all courtesies will be forthwith discontinued.

The speeches of Dockery at Raleigh and Durham appear to have fallen far short of what was expected of this terror that the Republicans have been threatening to put on the Democratic candidates and utterly demolish the whole party. Dockery is smart, shrewd and unscrupulous but his speeches lack the fire and "git-up-and-git" that it was expected they would be filled with. The ass has evidently been parading in the lion's skin—in the Republican papers.

The following from the Maxton Union is too good to lose and we give it to our readers: No doubt my son Oliver when he reads what Judge Russell has to say, will rise up and exclaim: Daniel, 'thou art beside thyself, much learning doth make the mad.' And then you will hear the response come back: "I am not mad most noble Oliver but speak forth the words of truth and soberness."

The appointment of his own son to a cadetship at West Point, by John Nichols caused considerable unfavorable comment among the best people of the State. It may therefore be of interest to our readers to know that young Nichols has failed in his examinations and lost his place. It is to be hoped that the deservng boys of the district will now have an opportunity to compete for the place.

The audacity of the Republican politicians is something astonishing. Fritchard, the candidate of that party for Lieutenant Governor, made a speech in Durham a few days ago in which he said that the protective tariff had built up Durham. Brother Burkhead answers him in the Plant as follows: "The highest protected enterprise ever started in Durham, the Wooden and Woolen Mills, protected by a tariff tax of about 70 to 80 per cent, burst, and will be sold at auction."

Prof. Randall is the man who a few years ago, started from his home in Burke county afoot to make his way to the State University. He was without money or influential friends, but determined to make an honest effort to obtain an education. He found a friend in Hon. Kemp P. Battle, President of the University, who saw he had pluck and energy. He has improved every opportunity since that time and today he appears as one of the faculty of the University of South Carolina.

'Ah, there Grover, stay there. This is what a disgust and somewhat drunken member of the Chicago convention telegraph the illustrious occupant of the White House. It was not respectful and it was very slany indeed but it expressed the sentiment of a large majority of the people of this country exactly.

The Charlotte Chronicle speaks a truth to which every honest man will say amen, when it says: "The Democratic party of the State certainly has a candidate for Governor who commands its respect for cleanliness of private life. We can rally around him as an honest man, and citizen who in all capacities has been a fearless advocate of the rights of the people.

The Democrats of North Carolina offer Fowle and Holt, men representing the intellectual and material interests of our own state, while the Republican, to complete their ticket, borrow from Tennessee a man who is a graduate of the Republican internal revenue law as a tail to their state ticket "Choose ye this day whom ye will serve."—Bakersville Democrat.

How can they reconcile this with the earnest, tearful temperance plank adopted at Chicago? "It is asserted that Mrs. Ben Harrison, wife of the Republican candidate for President, possesses the secret of making the most delicate and delectable light claret punch ever tested in political life. It is prepared after the old "Tippecanon" recipe and is a drink fit for the gods."

The Rural Vermonter is a paper that is published in the interest of the farmer. That paper speaks a truth when it says: "Never before in the history of legislation has such a pressure been brought to bear upon Congress to enact laws for the protection of producers and consumers against the adulteration of food products as is now being brought by the farmers of this country. The success which has attended their efforts in the past gives to them the courage to believe that at the present time their appeals will surely be heeded." The fight in the interest of the farming classes has been carried on for years by the Democratic party, and it will continue until the burdens of the present high and iniquitous tariff are lifted from the shoulders of the people.

A Ludicrous Scene. The Chicago Herald furnishes the following interesting remarks about "the delegate from North Carolina": "There is always a good deal of fun at a Republican convention. The colored brother knows his opportunity and refuses to keep his eloquence bottled. Sooner or later he is heard from, and he performs it in a way that would make a comedian's eyes turn green with envy.

While the Vice-Presidential nominations were being made O. J. Spears a colored delegate from North Carolina, arose in his place to a question of privilege. It was no more nor less than that the clerk had omitted to call North Carolina to see if she had a candidate to put in nomination—as the Chair admitted. The clerk voted, but he had called that State, but Spears stuck to it that he had not. So it was called, and thereupon, to the delight of the eager spectators, Spears arose and made a speech.

From the first sentence to the last his speech was punctuated by the spasms of laughter of the audience. Mr. Depew seems to have been so far overboard by his sense of the ridiculous as to manifest his delight in a more uproarious manner than is usual with that gentleman. When Spears appealed to the 'magnanimous magnanimity' of the convention, Mr. Depew could not restrain his risibles, but gave way to most uproarious laughter. Whereupon Spears turned to him and said, with much dignity, that he presumed the gentleman wanted him to say 'magnificent magnanimity,' which drew forth still louder laughter. The gem of the speech, however, was in its close, which is given verbatim:

Spears said then, Mr. President, with all this in view, it is the duty of this convention to nominate Levi P. Morton. [Loud applause.] Connecticut will be satisfied, New Jersey will be satisfied, and Ohio; and with this grand old banner— [indicating the American flag] [Loud applause.] Benjamin G. Morton, [loud laughter] and Levi Harrison, [roars of laughter] will win victory. [Loud laughter and applause.] And if it was proper and if I may be permitted, I will move his nomination by acclamation. [Great laughter and cheers, during which the delegate sat down.]

Benjamin G. Morton and Levi Harrison is not so bad! The Herald is not sure that it would be a more attractive combination than the one put up.

Slip of the tongue, as it undoubtedly was, it nearly drove the convention into hysterics. Here is the issue in a nutshell. The collection of a tax greater than that required for the purpose of government is extortion; and it is subversive of the Constitution.—Memphis Avalanche.

DOCKERY AT RALEIGH.

The Negro Rabble to Which He Spoke at Our State Capital.

The interest of the Democrats of the State in the speeches of the Republican candidate for Governor is greater this year than it has been in many. So loudly have the wonderful campaigning qualities of Dockery been heralded over the State that many Democrats feared he would make a campaign that would win white votes for the demagogue—as everybody admits Dockery to be. The impression this fellow made at Raleigh will be read with interest by our people. The State Chronicle gives a full report of the speaking and among other things has this to say of the way in which Dockery was received and spoke:

"There was yelling when Tom Devreux quit speaking and introduced Mr. Dockery. Whether the negroes yelled at delight because Tom was going to quit, or because Dockery was going to speak, we couldn't tell. Probably it was both. Mr. Dockery began by saying that he always had an anxiety to speak to the people of Wake county, and would do so later in the campaign. He would work earnestly. It was part of his purpose to see Judge Fowle and ask for a joint canvass—take himself from the hands of all committees and go on the 'Dockery line.'

He hoped that dirt and scandal would not be thrown, but if so he said he was ready to go into it as anybody else. He defined the mighty issue of the campaign to be the right to select our Magistrates and Commissioners. He made the regulation, with some variations, Radical speech against the present system of County Government.

He dared any man to show him one single act of President Cleveland's administration which helped the people. [Here Dockery was interrupted, and he said "Hold on, my friend. The issue is at a point." He went at length into what he said were facts that showed the Democrats had done nothing.

Quitting the tariff, Mr. Dockery discussed the Internal Revenue, and charged the Democratic party with having done nothing to repeal it. [In 1870 I, said Mr. Dockery, in Congress, in advance of my party, voted for the immediate and unconditional repeal of the Internal Revenue."

"That honored father of mine taught me to reverence Henry Clay. If ever you saw a Protectionist, I am one." He charged the poverty of the South to a belief in Low Tariff. He then returned to the tariff—dull, heavy, and illogical.

He charged that the Democratic party was opposed to the Blair bill, Mr. Dockery did not, while on the subject of education, tell his hearers that when the Radicals in North Carolina were in power they stole the school fund; and that the present party for Superintendent of Schools is notoriously and grossly incompetent.

"I have heard it intimated," he said that if Dockery elected we will have a repetition of the dark days of 1868-9. I was not in the Legislature, but my honored father and myself rode through the country and urged them not to issue bonds in such large quantities." He said he had nothing to do with the corrupt legislation of 1868-9.

"My character is mine. It is my all. I am a farmer. I am not any man's character and mine shall not be assailed without holding the assailant to the strictest responsibility. I will not be maligned. If any man makes an attack upon me, he must prove it, or by the eternal gods one of us must bite the dust."

The concluding parts of his speech was on the negro question. In the course of which he charged that the reason North Carolina did not secure immigration was because of the continual arraying of race against race. He paid a high tribute to the negro for his conduct during the war.

As he had finished a friend (it had evidently been previously arranged) that this impromptu affair should take place called out in the crowd and asked if the report was true that he had said 'I will give you the day when I can put my hand on the head of a negro and while child and pass them to the people at the Sunday School together.' Mr. Dockery pronounced this charge a LIE, and then quit speaking.

An ambitious vocalist wants to know how long it is possible to hold a note. We knew a man once who held a note for six years, and lost his money on it.

The Joint Canvass

Judge Fowle has addressed the following letter to Col. Dockery:

RALEIGH, July 14th, 1888.
HON. O. H. DOCKERY:
Dear Sir—Your letter of July 9th was received as I was on the eve of departure from the city, and I asked the chairman of the Democratic Executive Committee, Spier Whitaker, Esq., to reply to it.

Mr. Whitaker on July 4th had invited the chairman of the Republican Executive Committee to make joint appointments for yourself and myself. On July 7th Mr. Whitaker invited you or your chairman to make joint appointments. On July 9th Mr. Whitaker again invited you to meet me at my appointments already announced, or if you did not like them at other appointments to be agreed on, which I enter I find published on the 11th inst.

Upon my return here this afternoon, I find that no reply as yet has been received to his letter, and that Mr. Whitaker has been called out of the State by the sickness of his mother, where he may be detained sometime. I invite you, therefore, on Wednesday or Thursday next, at such hour as you may consider convenient, to meet me at the parlor of the Yarboro House in this city to agree on joint appointments for discussion between you and myself. If the time or place I have designed is not convenient to you I will meet you at any place or time you may indicate.

No appointments heretofore made for me shall stand in the way of a joint canvass between us.

Very Respectfully,
DANIEL G. FOWLE.
