The Prohibition Party.

For the life of us we cannot see what object the Prohibition party has in view in North of the Democratic party. This must be regarded as its mission and so treated. Prohibition and this Prohibition party are to be Burgwyn, Arthur Arrington, regarded as distinct. We have no reference to the cause of Prohibition. But we do say with all the ardor of our hearts that no sober and unprejudiced fy himself on any grounds, whether moral or political, in supporting the candidates of coming struggle. On Fame's Eternal Camping-Ground

Far back in the past are enshrined the deeds of the brave men of one hundred years ago; dim are the pictures of their long suffering patriotism, their heroic endurance and their unselfish devotion. Almost at our doors they marched and toiled and fought for the rich heritage of a free republic bequeathed to us; and only the Democrat in the State can justi- other day the eloquent tongue of the orator wrought their vindication, and their grataful prosperity sent their acclamations of rejoicing toward heav-
