progress in education and good morals. At a money sacrifice of millions of dollars she has rejected the tempting offer made by the lottery company for a renewal of their charter. North Louisiana did it. The yeomanry of the hill country were marshaled for the fight by good men in the towns and villages, and they carried everything like a cyclone, There has not been such excitement there since the war. There has never been such masterly eloquence on the hustings, and never did the people come together with such unanimity on any issue as they did on this. White and black, Democrats and Republicans, rich and poor, all voted together this time, and they have redeemed the State from the power of the octopus. I have been to Ruston again, where the State Educational Convention was held, and there I heard all about the great lottery canvass, and who were in it, and how it was managed, and how it absorbed everybody and everything. There was enough anti-lottery eloquence to make a book-a book of speeches for the school boys and college boys to spout from. Dr Palmer gave them a start last fall, and it inspired orators all over the State. Ruston is a charming little town of 2,000 people, nearly all white. It is a brand new town and quite select. They don't exactly vote on applications for citizenship, but a bad man is blackballed, all the same, and can't get a start. There are no rich responsible to the people for all the people and no poor people, and are no saloons, no jugs, no gamb-
