Terrible Sufferings and Horrible Death From the Dread Disease.

The mad dog scare has received a fresh impetus by the sad death from hydrophobia of Mr. Joe J. Best, a hard working colored man of this place on last Saturday morning March 25th. Mr. Best was bitten by his own dog during the last Holidays, but never experienced any suffering or inconvenience from the bite until last Thursday. While at work on that day he was taken sick, he left the plantation and started for his home which he was destined never again leave alive. His illness soon began to manifest well defined symptoms of hydrophobia, and despite the skill and attentention of Drs. Tatum and Faison the terrible disease strengthened its hold upon the frame of the afflicted one, and soon his body was racked by spasms and convulsions; these increased in force and frequency until it was necessary to tie him to the bed to prevent him from injuring his attendants or doing himself harm. To witness the writings and convulsive struggles of a strong man bereft pointment in the Primitive Baptist of reason, foaming and gnashing in agony and pain is a spectacle that will cause the most hardened heart Baltimore yesterday where she has to feel sympathetic towards the afown and brought relief to the poor
