THE WEEK IN CONGRESS

in the Pending Tariff Matter.

Appropriation Bills Continue to Engage the Attention of the House-Naval. Acricultural and Indian Bills

The course of debate after Tuesday is somewhat problematical. Tuesday Mr. Hoar, of Massachusetts, will speak on the pending tariff bill, and it is not unlikely that Mr. Aldrich will address the senate on the revenue features of the measure. Last week the claus: fixing the date when the bill-shall take effect was passed over, and when Saturday came the discussion was ostensibly over the second senate committee amendment found in lines 6 and 7 of the opening paragraph, which adds to the house provision that there shall be collected on all articles imported from foreign countries the words, "Or rates of duty, etc. Much of the debate of the week following the introduction of the amendments will be of an impromptu character concerning the changes made, and it will doubtless be the policy of the minority to draw out their opponents by caustic questions and then embroil them in colloquies as to why and how the numerous amendments came to be made. Mr. Harris, if the remarks he has dropped are correctly interpreted, will insist upon longer sessions, and if will meet it with such means as happen to come to hand. They will debate the bills at present until 5 e'clock, but after that hour will protest against the further discussion of the measure for the day. It is not among the impossible conditions, that if Mr. Harris becomes persistent in his desire for an immediate prolongation of debate, a mild system of filibustering may be inaugurated by the minority. The week will, no doubt, force to the front

Appropriation bills will continue to enga e the attention of the house until the calendar has been cleared of measures of that character. There are the naval, agricultural and Indian bills in sight for this week, and the legislative, and judicial and general deficiency yet in store with the committ e on appropriations to be reported. The first of the two last named bills will be placed on the calendar possibly the first of next week, but the deficiency bill
