The county candidates are now filing appointments at different places in the county.

Mr. Geo. Sugg, deputy revenue collector, of Snow Hill, was in town Sunday and Monday.

Monday and Tuesday mornings were quite cool. Early risers saw frost upon the house tops.

Mrs. W. C. Allen and children left Friday for a trip to Scotland Neck, Washington, and Edenton.

Mr. Blount Pearce, the popular drummer, of Greenville, spent Sunday and part of Monday in town.

The Advance is a reliable medium for advertising. Put in your ad and thus increase your business.

See the change in E. R. Gay's ad this week and visit his establishment for all your wants in wearing apparel.

Mr. W. R. Best's stock of goods is being sold out at cost. Mr. Best made an assignment last week to his father.

The Dundee Star says: "At the Royal Amphitheatre, nothing so enjoyable as Bob Hunting's Barnum-like antics."

Col. H. G. Williams, of Washington, is at home for a short visit. The Colonel is always on hand when voting times come round.

The Cork Advertiser says: "At the Circus we saw and heard an Irish-American Clown, Bob Hunting. He makes one's sides ache, but his wit is a tonic."

We have received the initial number of the Jacksonville Times, published at Jacksonville, N. C. by Arthur Whately. It is a Democratic paper of no uncertain sound.

Mr. Barnes has changed things around somewhat in the post office. The new arrangement gives his clerks a much better room in the rear and makes their working space much pleasanter.

Miss Bettie Lee's Fall opening last week was a perfect success. Her store was one series of artistically displayed goods. The most attractive feature being the extremely reasonable prices. Call and see her stock.

Among the many new attractions in Wilson is the new jewelry store on Tarboro street. Mr. Max Harris, after spending several years in New York, has returned to Wilson and has opened a store that would do credit to any town. Everything is neat and attractive.

Dr. H. F. Freeman, candidate for Congress on the Populist ticket, addressed the (local) Populist club in the court house Friday night. There were some whites present, but the audience was made up mostly of negroes. We had heard of some wild statements made by the doctor on that occasion, but as we did not attend we cannot give any report.

Enraged was the scene of action yesterday. All the county candidates were out in force. Maj. Robbins was also on hand and did not fail to take advantage of the opportunity to put in some effective work. Maj. Robbins is one of the most effective speakers in the State. After speaking at Lenoir, he came to Wilson and addressed a large body of the faithful at the Opera House.

Mr. Robt. Bruce Evans, formerly foreman of the ADVANCE, but now employed in the Government printing office at Washington, is at home for his vacation. Bob is as dapper and gay as of yore.

Some of our tobacco buyers are away for a few days, but those remaining keep things moving. The prices were better this week than they have been for some time. The sales of last week were the largest ever known in this section.

Cotton continues low. Farmers, make arrangements to plant a more diversified crop next year. Put an acre or two in Irish potatoes, a little field of peanuts, a big field of corn, and a few hills of tobacco, a few fruit trees, in fact a little of everything you want for your own use, and then plant a surplus in cotton.

Good prices and clever treatment will tell—when a man once tries the Wilson market he is never satisfied anywhere else. Our warehousemen are all clever gentlemen, and being likewise good judges of tobacco they see that every pound on their floors brings its full value, hence it is the farmer that is pleased.

Mr. W. C. Gorham is having his residence supplied with water pipes. If all our citizens who are able, would take the city water there would be no trouble in paying for the system and furthermore there is no doubt but that the use of this water for drinking purposes would in a great measure check the tendency to chill and fever and malarial troubles, so prevalent during the summer season.

North Carolina Teacher. The North Carolina Teacher for September is full of choice reading matter. It is one of our best periodicals and is almost indispensable to a well equipped teacher.

The Housekeeper. The Housekeeper a semi-monthly paper, published at Minneapolis, Minn., is a most excellent paper for the home. Excellent suggestions about housekeeping are found in its columns and any one would be benefited by reading it.

Henry to Speak. Next Thursday Mr. W. R. Henry, of Henderson, will speak at Saratoga and at Stantonburg the next day.

Mr. Henry is one of the most eloquent speakers on the stump and it would be worth while to hear him. Let everybody both Democrats and Populists turn out to hear Walter Henry, the able expounder of Democratic doctrine. He will certainly give you something to think about.

Death From Old Age. Last Sunday in Valdosta, Ga., Mrs. Polly Lucas passed away at the advanced age of ninety-seven. She was the mother of the late Dr. H. D. Lucas of Black Creek and Mr. B. Lucas of Valdosta, Ga. She resided in Black Creek until about fifteen months ago when she went to Georgia to dwell with her son, who is in business at Valdosta. Thus perhaps has passed away one of the oldest original inhabitants of this county. The cause of her death was old age. We extend sympathies to the bereaved ones.

President Kilgo's Address. Last Friday night a large crowd of people, friends of the graded school, assembled at the school building to hear the very fine address of President Kilgo, of Trinity College. It had been announced several days before that he would be here, and in consequence a full house greeted him.

He was introduced by Superintendent G. W. Connor in a few well chosen words. Mr. Kilgo is quite young, smooth face, spare build; but with a quick eye and an intelligent countenance. He impresses one at first with rather a feeling of disappointment but when the fire of his eye begins to flash, you see the power of the man begin to bubble over. He had no particular subject. He made a plea for education, and it was such a plea that everyone who heard him was impressed more than ever with its great importance. He spoke for one hour, and his audience was held throughout. No report of his address could do it justice, and so we attempt none. It was one of those products of the human mind that must be heard to be appreciated. President Kilgo is an orator. He is truly eloquent. The fire of his oratory blazes out with such brilliancy at times that his audience is spell bound.

This was the first of a series of lectures before the Graded School and it was a great success. Superintendent Connor informs us that he expects to secure the services of other eminent men to deliver lectures during the school year.

That Joyful Feeling. With the exhilarating sense of renewed health and strength and internal cleanliness, which follows the use of Syrup of Figs, is unknown to the few who have not progressed beyond the old time medicines and the cheap substitutes sometimes offered but never accepted by the well informed.

On Sunday last, the infant daughter of Mr. Ephraim Harrell. The funeral took place on Monday.

On Saturday last, at his residence on Barnes street, Mr. H. Perry. He was quite old and infirm. He leaves a widow.

OBITUARY.

In the death of Mr. John T. Barnes, announced in the last issue of this paper, Wilson county loses one of its oldest, most prominent, and loyal citizens, and his friends one whose life and character excited the kindest feelings and warmest attachment. Mr. Barnes was always deeply interested in the welfare of the town, and until prevented by his failing health actively and generously contributed to every undertaking having for its purpose the advancement of the material, educational, or religious interest of the town. He was of one of the oldest and most highly respected families of this section, born within what is now the limits of the county. He became in early life Sheriff and continued to hold the office for many years until he voluntarily retired to private life. He thus became identified with the people of the county, and always manifested a warm attachment to and sympathy with them and their interests. With no disposition to trespass upon the domain of his inner life, the writer knowing him intimately for many years as a friend and neighbor, thinks it but a just and truthful tribute to his memory to say that he found him loyal in his attachments, generous in his charities, ever ready to aid in good works and relief of suffering, kind and sympathizing to the unfortunate, given to hospitality. In his home he was always at his best. Like all men of strong character, he had convictions and always gave honest and fearless expression to them. When his confidence was once given, it was rarely withdrawn and to those who enjoyed it he was candid and confident. High qualities of character were greatly admired by him and the standards by which he judged men were high and accurate. He was singularly free from ostentation or desire for show. Simple and natural in his manners and tastes, always approachable by his friends and especially so by the poor and distressed. Of his kind offices, which were many, he never spoke, and very many of the most valuable and generous services rendered by him are known only to the recipients and confidential friends. Trials and misfortunes came to him, as to all of the children of men—death severed the tenderest and strongest ties of his life. He spoke but little of the experience of his heart but those which found expression bear assurance that, in passing through the shadows, he was sustained by the hope of a better and brighter home beyond, and the promise of the One who never fails those who seek Him was realized. Those who knew him best and loved him most are comforted with the assurance that he rests safely on the other side. We shall always cherish his memory as one of the friends of our young manhood—always kind and generous. More than twenty years' association served to strengthen the bonds of friendship and kindly regard.

A Horse Takes the Bit. Last Sunday a run away occurred on Vance street in which Robt. Herring and horse participated. The horse started to run and Mr. Herring gave him a yank with the reins that would doubtless have brought him to his senses, but the lines broke; and the horse with accelerated speed dashed down the street, turning the corner at the Disciple church, and upsetting two or three men who attempted to stop him. Mr. Herring found the ground at that point, and the horse feeling free and easy careered down Goldsboro street. He soon tired of having it all his own way, and came to a stand still. No damage was done.

Speaking at Black Creek. The county canvass opened at Black Creek on Tuesday last. All the county candidates were present and made short speeches after which the Hon. F. A. Woodard made one of his strong and convincing talks.

He held his audience spell bound until nearly sunset. The crowd was very small, much smaller than we would like to see out on such occasions. It is hard to make the people take an interest in a one sided discussion.

A Gay Runaway. One day last week quite a commotion was made on Nash street by a run away steed. His ox-ship had been tied behind McCraw's New Cash Store, but as his master failed to appear at the usual hour for dinner, the poor beast broke loose and started homeward, at a lively run, but alas the cruel people would not permit him to escape to pastures green but whooped and shouted until they got tired. Then some one stopped the run-away.

It is about time that a society for the prevention of cruelty to animals be formed in Wilson.

Day after day a number of beasts may be seen in various parts of the town, tied up to fences and left standing all day without food or water. This is wrong and should be stopped.

A Barnum Day Crowd.

Nothing but words of commendation were heard by thousands of ladies, gentlemen and children, who attended Robt. Hunting's Circus and managerie this afternoon and it is probable that the tents will not hold all the people who would like to attend this evening. Mr. Hunting the proprietor, claims to be the only foolish person in the party. It may be said, however, to his credit that in the capacity of clown he is king of the Circus arena of the present day, the same as Dan Rice as many years ago. He has no superior clown. His work elicited rounds of applause from the immense audience, and his re-appearance was each time greeted with applause by those present even before he attempted to be funny. His comedy was remarkably free from chestnuts which clowns usually keep in stock. He has surrounded himself with a troupe of stage performers of which he may be justly proud as every act is a feature from start to finish. No circus and managerie has exhibited in this city that has given more universal satisfaction and this, of itself, does account for Mr. Hunting's popularity in the Oil Regions. The show is much larger and better than ever and we cheerfully recommend his show to all and they will find the proprietor, subordinates and all connected with the show ladies and gentlemen in every sense of the word.—Oil City, Pa., Derrick.
