THURSDAY, November 15, 1894.

EVERYBODY is trying to find out a reason for the great landslide of last week. There are many reasons, but no one of them will prove to be any salve to the souls of the hundred and one defeated candidates all over the State.

CONGRESSMAN Woodard is elected from this district by about three thousand majority. Some of the news reports have been saying that his election was doubtful. We only wish that other districts had been doubtful in the same way.

THOSE COUNTIES, that are to have Senatorial primaries on the first Monday in December to decide between Ransom and Jarvis, had better turn the meeting into a Populist-Republican hand organ show. It would be more appropriate.

It is now Chief Justice Faircloth, and if he did furnish the single quality of broad backsides, the people seem to have been satisfied with that commodity anyhow. He goes to a place where his broad backsides will again become conspicuous.

GREATER NEW YORK was carried. It is almost certain that New York and Brooklyn will become one city. The legislature of New York State will have to give its approval which it undoubtedly will, and then Chicago will have to take a back seat for a generation.

MONDAY the great steamship Saint Louis was launched at Philadelphia. Mrs. Cleveland christened her breaking a bottle of wine over her as she glided into the water. A large crowd was present. President Cleveland made a speech complimentary of the American navy.

ALL DEMOCRATS are sorry of the defeat of Hon. Wm. L. Wilson, of West Virginia, the great tariff reformer. He went down in the storm last Tuesday along with Springer of Illinois, and Bland of Missouri. Mr. Cleveland should give Mr. Wilson a suitable foreign appointment, for he richly deserves one.

ON a clear November day the hosts of Democracy went down before the combined forces of Republicanism and Populism. If the Democratic party had won, it would have been a miracle. After conducting such a campaign nothing but defeat ought to have been expected, and then we would not have been surprised.

WE REGRET to chronicle the death of Judge Jesse F. Graves, which sad event occurred at Mt. Airy, N. C. on last Friday morning. We never saw Judge Graves, but have always regarded him as an upright honorable man. He was one of the men who honored the bench in North Carolina. Our State loses much in the death of Judge Graves.

CHAIRMAN POU says that the stay-aways were the persons who caused the defeat Tuesday before last. According to the report of the Raleigh correspondent of the Wilmington Messenger, Mr. Pou thinks that there were fully 30,000 Democrats in this State that did not vote. That is about the size of it. The Democracy is not beaten. They have just been caught napping.

CAPT. KITCHIN denies the rumor that he had renounced Populism before the election. He wired Marion Butler that he was a Populist and would not vote the Democratic ticket. Well, he didn't, but if the reports are true he didn't vote the Populist ticket either. So where does Kitchin stand? He seems to be in the position of a certain youngster who was run over by a calf.

AT LAST the Senatorial question has been settled. Jarvis and Ransom have both been elected to stay at home. So much for conducting a campaign in the interest of a man who did not stand squarely upon the platform adopted by the State Democracy. If there had been anything else but defeat, after such a campaign, it would have been one of the most remarkable things of the age.

THE REASON WHY.

Almost everybody is asking the cause of the great political upheaval of last week. It was perhaps the greatest political reaction that has ever taken place in this country. Some great underlying cause, of course, produced it. What that cause is will, perhaps, never be known accurately, for different ones will have different things to explain.

It is quite evident, that it is a great popular disapproval of the party in power. A little reflection will help to get at the beginning of that popular fault finding. It was in 1893 that the present administration came into power, on the fourth of March. It was in May of that same year that the greatest financial panic in the history of this country began, whose effects are still to be seen in five cents cotton and forty cents wheat.

With such a great disaster coming so fast upon the heels of the Democratic administration, the masses of the people turned away from it in disgust. It was useless to tell the people that the Democrats did not cause the panic. It was useless to tell them that five cents cotton was due to some remote cause prior to the incoming of Mr. Cleveland's administration. They would not believe it. People as a rule do not like to hunt for remote causes. They attribute the cause to the most apparent object, let it be innocent or otherwise.

The Democratic party was in an unfortunate position. It was before the people. It was between the people and the Republican party, the real author of the trouble, and true to the instinct of popular ideas the people plastered the first wall they came to, and that was the Democratic party.

The tariff bill, while in reality one of the best tariff laws this country has ever had, did very little good in quieting down the discontent that was prevailing. In fact, we might say that it increased the popular revolt. It took sugar from the free list and put it upon the dutiable list. While a political economist will readily see that it is better to tax sugar directly than to give a bounty to the producers, still the people as a rule, are not political economists, and did not see it in that way. So the tariff bill, instead of allaying the reaction, rather increased it.

Its benefits are too deeply laid to become manifest so quickly, while some of its virtues really seem to a superficial observer to be evils. That bill is really a good one so far as it goes, and the result of the election shows a rather hasty judgment on the part of the people, which we believe will be reserved two years from now.

But there are many causes, and those that operated in New York are not the ones that operated in North Carolina. But there is no need to grieve over split milk.

THE NORTH CAROLINA JONAH.

Great as was the discontent of our people, we believe that North Carolina could have been held in line if the leaders had conducted the campaign on little different lines. The people saw months ago that the whole party machine was being used in the interest of Senator Ransom and that his reelection to the United States Senate was the prime object with them.

Almost anybody can see that it was a Ransom campaign. That very fact kept many men from the polls who otherwise would have been there to cast their ballots for Democracy. We blame nobody specially for it. Chairman Pou, perhaps, made the best campaign that he could under the circumstances, but we disagreed all along through the campaign with his methods, and believe now that they were wrong.

Senator Ransom did not accept the platform adopted at Raleigh, but in effect repudiated it by his manner. Still he was allowed to make a canvass of the State, with the sanction of the Democratic Executive Committee, when he ignored the great question of financial reform entirely. We sounded the warning note all along, and made the statement sometime ago, that if the State was lost to Democracy, it would be partly because of the campaign orators' ignoring the silver question. We have no reason to change that opinion now. We did not think: at the time that the State would be lost, but we were fearful of the result.

The discontent was great, but when it became apparent that Senator Ransom was to be forced upon the people any way, the discontent became general and apathy prevailed. And therein lies the cause very largely of the great defeat in this State.

New York met her Waterloo on account of the income tax and the revelations of the Lexow committee, but those did not operate in this State. It came about on account of the fatal division on the silver question, of which Senator Ransom was the disturbing factor.

BERNARD was voted for under two or three different names all over the district, and that circumstance may result in the election of our townsman, John E. Woodard. Young Bro's. shoes cheaper than ever.

HOW WENT THE ELECTION.

Last Tuesday week was a black day for the Democracy all over the country. The reaction was powerful, especially in the North and West. The South departed also from its time honored record, and some parts of it went Republican and Populist.

New York went Republican by 154,000 majority, electing twenty-four Republican congressmen. Connecticut sends a solid Republican delegation to Congress. New Jersey and Pennsylvania are heavily Republican, as are also Maryland and Delaware.

West Virginia, too, has gone over to the Republicans seemingly with the intention of staying. Every State in the North and West have rolled up their old time Republican majorities. Illinois sends a solid delegation to Congress.

In Congress the Republicans have elected over 250 members and the Democrats about ninety and the Populists the balance. The Democratic majority in the Senate will be broken, and the Republicans will have that after the 4th of next March.

North Carolina turned topsey turvey and went Republican. The legislature will be fusion on joint ballot, which will lose for the Democrats two Senators from this State. The fusion ticket has been elected by about 15,000 majority. The Democrats have lost about every Senator unless it is Daniel in the Third and Woodard in the Third.

From this State only three Democratic Congressmen are elected: Woodard in the Second, Shaw in the Third, and Lockhart in the Sixth. Cooke is beaten in the Fourth by over four thousand majority. Blount and Edwards are beaten for the Senate from this district. There is nothing to congratulate ourselves over.

CAUSE OF THE BAD WEATHER.

To some extent, however Democratic disasters are the direct outcome of Democratic dissensions and mistakes.—Salsbury Herald.

The vote on Tuesday from Cherokee to Currituck was a terrible condemnation of the party of "perfidy and dishonor." The people condemned the betrayal of the country to the goldbugs by a Democratic Congress.—Goldsboro Caucasian.

There are two causes for this effect. The first is the failure of the administration to please any section of the country, and the second is that the elections occurred in the midst of a panic and general business depression.—Clinton Democrat.

In our opinion, the cause is the ridiculous attitude which the party permitted itself to be placed in of attempting to legislate on the tremendous party question of silver and the finances by combinations outside of party lines.—Fayetteville Observer.

Many causes operated to bring about Democratic defeat. The real responsibility and direct cause, which, of course, embraces others, was the bitter conflict within the ranks of the party, and the antagonisms that grew out of these conflicts.—News and Observer.

The North Carolina Democracy broke down under the weight of the Administration. Its platform was all right, and if the fight had been waged along that line the result would have been different. The victory for bimetalism in the State convention was completely neutralized by the fear of the election of two Cleveland Senators.—Riedsville Weekly.

In an interview with a Messenger reporter, on Monday last, Chairman Pou gave it as his opinion that the causes of the Democratic defeat were directly traceable to two things, viz "stay at home Democrats and a want of conservatism in the mode of conducting the canvass." Mr. Pou has so far vindicated the position taken by the ADVANCE throughout the campaign. We have claimed all along that this was an age of conservatism and reason, and we notice that now after the time has passed when such acknowledgment would have been beneficial, a number of our public men and State papers are awakening to the fact that mud singing is more than apt to soil the singer's fingers.

THE RESULT.

North Carolina is Democratic. The State ticket is elected by about 30,000 majority. The Legislature will be Democratic on joint ballot. All of the Democratic nominees for Congress, except Graham in the Fifth District are elected. The indications point to the election of Settle.—Wilson Mirror.

The Mirror kept its forms open until late Thursday evening to get full returns from the election, which the Advance couldn't do. We were sorry that we couldn't. The above news, however had better be accepted with a little grain of allowance.

Cor. Statesville Landmark: There was a sad accident happened near here last night. Mr. John Patterson's cow boy went out on horseback Sunday evening for the cows. It is supposed that the horse got swamped in the bottom and threw the boy off and trampled his head and shoulders in the mud. He was taken out to day dead. He was 15 years old.

CHAIRMAN POU.

The thanks of the Democratic party are due to Chairman James H. Pou for the splendid manner in which he has conducted this campaign. His sagacity, his prudence, and his wisdom have worked wonders in the State. He has conducted a magnificent campaign and the Democracy of North Carolina owes him a great debt.—Wilson Mirror, (issued Nov. 9.)

We have read the above over two or three times, but for the life of us we can't see the sarcasm that must be couching somewhere between the lines. Our brilliant neighbor evidently knows how to be so ironical that you can scarcely see the irony.

It is quite amusing to hear men at Democratic headquarters attaching blame to Senator Ransom now when some of them were throwing up their hats and shouting for him before the election. THE ADVANCE called attention to the danger of keeping Senator Ransom so prominently before the people four weeks or more ago, but our warning was unheeded. The party managers are beginning to see their mistake now, but the horses are gone and there is no need to shut the stable door.

GENERAL RANSOM has been elected to stay at home, the place where he should have been during the whole campaign. It was perfect folly in the first place to put him in the field, unless he had previously been sitting most conscientiously on the stool of repentance. But he had not repented at all, and in our opinion, it was suicidal to send him out to make Democratic speeches, and the leaders who sanctioned it must bear their part of the blame for the earth's jumping up last week.

The Newspapers.

The good which has been accomplished in the development of the South by the work of its newspapers can never be fully measured. Under many discouragements and often with but meagre support from the business men of the community, the majority of Southern papers have been persistently, day in and day out, laboring for the upholding of that section. It is to be regretted that the great work which they have done has received so little practical encouragement. In other sections the hearty support of newspapers is almost universally regarded as a matter of necessity, and every business man makes it part of his business to deal liberally with his local papers. In the South, on the contrary, the newspapers are not so fully appreciated. Business men generally do not seem to understand that the newspaper is not a luxury but a necessity; that if they want to discover new means of developing their business, they must study carefully the newspapers, and not simply regard the newspaper as something to be glanced over hurriedly and thrown aside.

The local papers should be liberally supported, because the life and eury of every town is judged by the world at large by the looks of its local papers. The city that has no live, progressive paper, filled with the advertisements of live progressive merchants will attract very little attention from the outside business world. Every man contemplating an investment in any Southern town carefully studies its newspapers, as he can largely judge by them the character of the business men of the place.

Nine men might read a copy of any paper and do it so carelessly as to find little in it of value, while the tenth man, looking for opportunities for business or for information that will be of value, sees opportunity of utilizing this information in many money making ways.—Manufacturer's Record.

A Famous Show of Beauty.

The show of distinguished beauty, transcribed by famous artists taking place at the Academy of Fine Arts in New York, has been anticipated by the Cosmopolitan Magazine in its November issue, in an article by Wm. A. Coffin, with illustrations of some of the more beautiful faces.

"Great Passions of History" series has for this month's subject the romantic career of Agnes Sorel, who influenced destinies of France under Charles VII. "The Art schools of America," "The Great British North-west Territory," the Chiefs of the American Press, and the "Public Library Movement," are amongst the Cosmopolitan's table of contents. Survivors of the war and their children will find intense interest in "The Story of a Thousand," a personal narrative begun in this number by Albin W. Tourgee, who tells in a graphic way, of a regiment which saw fierce service—of its organization, its marches, its sports, and its death roll.

Stand by your town.

Not a dollar invested there but some good comes of it. There is no family like your family; there is no wife like your wife; there should be no town like one's own town, where we live, educate our children, on whose streets do our babies play and may some day help. Let the newspapers stand by the town and let the business stand by the newspaper, and let us make our homes as famous as possible.—Goldsboro Headlight.

After the Grip
Relief from Hood's Sarsaparilla
Wonderful and Permanent.

"C. L. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.: 'I had kidney trouble and severe pains in my back, which was brought about by a cold contracted while in camp at Linfield in 1882. I have been troubled more or less since that time and have been unable to do any heavy work, much less any kind of. I received only temporary relief from medicines. Last spring I had an attack of the grip, which left me with a bad cough, very weak physically, in fact my system was completely run down. I tried a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla and it made me feel so much better that I continued taking it, and have taken six bottles. It has done wonders for me, as I have not been so free from my old pains and troubles since the war. I consider Hood's Sarsaparilla a God-sent blessing to the suffering.'" W. J.
