WILSON QUOTATIONS.

Table with columns for MOKERS, CUTTERS, FILLERS, and WRAPPERS, listing various grades and prices.

ROCKY MOUNT—Our sales are holding out remarkably well considering the season of the year.

OXEORD—The sales were light this week, with character of offerings and prices showing no improvement.

WINSTON—The receipts on the loose leaf market were again very small last week, the continuance of unfavorable weather being responsible for it.

HENDERSON—Our market is without any feature of special interest. Receipts for the week have only been moderate, dry winds still interfering with handling to acco.

RICHMOND, Va.—The market is quiet but we are going on "in the even tenor of our way" earnestly wishing Congress to adjourn, when we hope to have less of politics and more of trade.

Going to Goldsboro.

The Langdon Dramatic Company, after filling a week's engagement here left Sunday for Goldsboro, where they play a week. While in Wilson they made a very favorable impression, and we will always be glad to welcome them when they decide to come again.

A Case Where it Did Not Work.

It is claimed that circumstantial evidence when backed by direct evidence is conclusive. A case sometimes comes up when all signs fail.

One day last week a gentleman in town had occasion to send a diamond pin to Baltimore, after packing the pin carefully in a small box he placed the box upon his bureau, washed his hands, put on his coat and picked up (as he thought) the package he had just prepared for shipment and went to the express office, where he stood by and witnessed the sealing of the package and took a receipt there for from the agent.

He went over in his mind every circumstance connected with the packing and promptly came to the conclusion that the package had been robbed in transit. He therefore handed the telegram to the express agent for investigation. On going to his room later he happened to notice a small box on the bureau and on opening it he found the missing pin. It seems that he had taken the wrong box to the express office. The gentleman assures us that had anyone suggested the possibility of his having expressed an empty box he would have been ready to stake his life that the box expressed contained the pin, and yet while the empty box was being carefully watched the one containing the gem was carelessly thrown aside. Should it have it so happened that some one had seen the second box and taken possession of it, the result would have been difficult to guess.

An Important Factor.

The effort of a newspaper to build up a town is practically nullified unless it is backed up by the business men. A stranger turns from the news column of a paper to its advertising pages, and if he fails to find there the business cards of the merchants and professional firms, he comes to the conclusion that the publisher is not appreciated, in which case it is a good place to keep clear of. No town ever grew without the active assistance of its newspaper. Nor can papers grow and build up their localities without the assistance of the town. Business men should realize this and remember in giving support to the newspapers they are not only building up their own business, but helping to support that which is steadily working for the growth of the whole town.—Ex.

The First of the Civil-Service Extension Order.

The President has issued a comprehensive order placing the Indian service under the operation of the civil-service law. Only the agents themselves and a few minor positions are excepted. This order is probably the first of a series which will practically take the entire government service out of politics and offices from the grasp of the spoilsmen. It was within the President's discretion to have issued an order embracing all the departments of the government, or to extend the working of the civil-service law to each branch. Evidently he has chosen the latter course and unless all reports as to his intentions are without foundation, other orders will soon be made until finally the whole government service is on a practical civil-service basis. If this should be done, the spoilsmen will be deprived of one of their most effective and dangerous weapons, and hereafter the voters who have been influenced by the promise of office will have an opportunity to vote according to their conviction, and not with an eye fixed upon the spoils alone.

All You Have to do is to Not and the Machine Does the Rest.

The commissioner of patents recently granted a patent to James C. Boyle, an eccentric citizen of Spokane, Wash., for what he called "a saluting device." When attached to the ordinary head it relieves the wearer of the manual labor of lifting his hat when he meets an acquaintance and his hands are otherwise engaged. All he has to do to accomplish this is to slightly nod. The motion starts the machinery, which is in the interior of the tile. The hat is suddenly lifted about one foot above the head, on an apparatus like that attached to a self-dumping coal cart. Then, after remaining at rest a moment, it describes a semicircle and settles back upon his cranium.—Washington Dispatch.

It may save you time and money to be informed that, when you need a blood purifier, Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the kind most in favor with the medical profession. It is the standard and, as such, the only blood purifier admitted at the Chicago World's Fair.

To Confederate Dead Between now and May 1 there is to be erected at Mount Hope Cemetery a stately monument to stand amid and commemorate the dead of the Confederate Veteran Camp of New York. The monument is of Vermont granite, and will consist of four massive pieces of stone. Three of these pieces will form the base and pedestal, and together will weigh about 60 tons and will stand 9 feet high. Upon them will rest a granite shaft formed of a single stone 4 feet square and 51 feet tall. The monument will be inscribed: Sacred to the Memory of the Heroic Dead of the Confederate Veteran Camp of New York.

Charles B. Rouse, the well known merchant, who is a member of the camp contributed $5,000 toward the cost of the monument, and the balance of the cost, about $5,000, was contributed by its builders, C. E. Tayntor & Co. The monument will stand in a plot which is a gift to the camp from the cemetery company. In this plot will be buried not only the members of the camp, but also their families.

To meet the expenses of the burials a mortuary fund will be established, and it is expected that this fund will be provided from the proceeds of a benefit performance which will be given at the Fifth Avenue Theatre on the afternoon of April 9. Mr. Harry Miner will contribute the use of the theatre and Joseph Jefferson and other well known actors will appear.

The entertainment will be under the management of the following committee: Mrs. Algonon Sydney Sullivan, Mayor W. L. Strong, the Hon. Abraham S. Hewitt, Mr. J. Piermont Morgan, Col. Fred D. Grant, General Horace Porter, Dr. Chauncey M. Depew, Major Paul Dana, Gen. Buttergeld, Gen. Martin T. McMahon, Hon. W. C. Whitney, Judge Daly, Hon. Theodore Roosevelt, Hon. G. B. McClellan, and many others. The date for the dedication of the monument has not yet been fixed, but it is intended to have it upon some national holiday, and Union soldiers and Confederates and persons from all sections of the country will be invited to take part in the ceremonies.—N. NERVOUS Troubles are due to impoverished blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the One True Blood Purifier and NERVE TONIC.

A Tempting Offer.

A criminal lawyer in Chicago, who is noted for his facility in acquitting any prisoner in whose defense he may be employed, without much regard to the character of the evidence, is in great demand, particularly among those who feel that their cases may be precarious. He received a letter the other day from a prisoner in the county jail. It recited that the writer had been arrested for horse stealing, and was indicted at the last session of the grand jury. It declared that the writer had little hope of acquittal unless good talent could be enlisted in his behalf, and he begged the lawyer addressed to take the case. Then came the pathetic part of the letter, "I have no money," the writer said, "to pay for legal services, and very little property. But the horse is a good family driving horse; it can do a mile in 2:36, and is gentle enough for any lady to use. I will give you the horse if you'll take the case." The lawyer is still undecided.

Advertising. The ability of a farmer who planted seed and then left it to take care of itself would be questioned. Just so with advertising. This is the seed the merchant plants, and if not rightly taken care of a fruitful harvest ought not to be expected. To get good results from advertising you must help it along. This is the grease put on the squeaky wheels of your wagon to help it up the hill. Simply oiling the wheels though will not start it going or keep it running. It requires pushing, and then the grease will make it move and lively too, if the requisite amount of push be there. It will have to be a case of pushing and pushing if you want to get the wagon to the top of the hill.—Philadelphia Manufacturer.

The heirs of an estate in Los Angeles county, Cal., valued at $200,000, went to law about it some time ago, and the executor now announces that he has just 40 cents of the estate left.

Dear reader, did you ever stop to think that there is a way to avoid a story? When you have a dreadful scandal or tale of wrongdoing poured into your ears just stop a bit and ask what is the end of it all. Did you ever think that many people like to excuse their own wrongdoing, or are moved by the motive of revenge when they set out to ruin another's character? The remembrance that there are always sides to every story has saved him from trouble and should be continually kept in mind.—Greensboro Record.

A nurse in Los Angeles, Cal., holding the baby she was hired to care for as surety for the payment of her wages. The mother of the child fell behind in her payments to the nurse, and finally the nurse refused to surrender the child until she was paid in full. The case is to come in court on habeas corpus proceedings. The nurse's lawyer claims that a man being can be held as security for a debt.
